

Turks Aim For Split

By The Associated Press

Turkish armored forces drove from their positions in northern Cyprus on Wednesday to within five miles of Famagusta on the eastern coast of the island and toward Lefka on the west coast — apparently bent on seizing territory Turkey failed to win at the Geneva peace talks.

A United Nations spokesman announced a cease-fire agreement for the Nicosia area in central Cyprus and fighting fell off in the capital shortly afterward. But there was no indication the Turks would stop advancing elsewhere on the Mediterranean island.

The Turks' objective seemed to be to split the island along the so-called Attila Line. This runs east and west, dividing the island from Famagusta through Nicosia to Lefka, and to the Turkish Cypriot enclave of Kokkina on the northwest coast. Famagusta is 35 miles east of Nicosia and Lefka is 20 miles west of the capital.

The territory north of the line was Turkey's original demand at the Geneva talks, which broke down early Wednesday after the Turks refused a 36-48-hour cooling-off period requested by Greece.

The Turks opened the second round of fighting on the island Wednesday with dawn air strikes against the capital — soon after the Geneva stalemate — and it continued despite a renewed cease-fire call a few hours later by the U.N. Security Council. The Turks claim their army is acting to protect the lives of the Turkish Cypriot minority on the island — outnumbered four to one by Greek Cypriots.

The Cyprus government, controlled by the majority Greek Cypriots and supported by Greece, is battling the Turks with its own army, known as the Cypriot National Guard.

In Ankara, Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit said the Turkish force did not intend to take the whole island but only territory "considered to be a fair share of the Turkish Cypriots." Turkey invaded Cyprus July 20, five days after the Cypriot national guard overthrew the government of Archbishop Makarios.

The Nicosia cease-fire was announced for 6:15 p.m. — 12:15 a.m. CDT. The U.N. spokesman said the U.N. command had been trying to achieve the cease-fire throughout the day in accordance with the Security Council cease-fire resolution adopted early Wednesday. He said the Cyprus national guard accepted first, and then the Turks agreed.

Another Security Council meeting was called for Wednesday evening in New York, but was postponed until Thursday morning to await Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's return with a report on his meetings with European leaders.

Greece Quits NATO Forces

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece, angered by Turkey's continuing military push on Cyprus, pulled out of the NATO military alliance Wednesday and sent more troops and tanks to the Turkish border in Thrace.

Premier Constantine Karamanlis summoned his cabinet and veteran political leaders to discuss the possibility of going to war with Turkey, but the government remained silent on its military plans.

U.N. spokesmen said three of the world organization's peacekeeping soldiers were killed and 22 wounded in the latest fighting. The three killed were Austrians. The Austrian Defense Ministry claimed in Vienna that they were in a marked U.N. vehicle that was attacked by a Turkish plane near Larnaca.

Other reports said 28 persons were wounded during a Turkish air strike on a mental hospital, and that a newsman was also hurt during a raid on the International Red Cross headquarters in the Nicosia Hilton.

The U.S. government warned Greece and Turkey that their military aid will be cut off if the two NATO allies go to war. White House press secretary Jerald terHorst said President Ford was in close touch with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger concerning the Cyprus situation.

Ford spoke by telephone with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan of Britain.

Greek government.

The United States has seven military installations in Greece with about 3,000 servicemen and 7,000 dependents. Six destroyers of the U.S. 6th fleet use Athens as a home port.

The government's decision to go it alone militarily, as France decided to do under Charles de Gaulle, was a popular one among Greeks. Like France, Greece said it would remain part of NATO's political branch.

AIM Demands Hare's Capture

From Press Reports

One of the men convicted in the Raymond Yellow Thunder case was paroled from the Nebraska State Penal Complex Wednesday and an American Indian Movement leader called upon AIM members to capture the man.

Melvin P. Hare, 28, was one of two brothers convicted for false imprisonment and manslaughter in the death of Raymond Yellow Thunder in Gordon, Neb., in February, 1972.

Frank Black Elk, acting director and coordinator for the Lincoln chapter of AIM, called upon AIM members to capture Hare.

The parole board's office said Hare left the Penal Complex Wednesday.

Black Elk said he did not know what would be done with Hare if he were caught. "That would be left up to the people."

AIM held protests in western Nebraska at the time of the Yellow Thunder incident. AIM leaders were critical of the way authorities handled the case.

Hare was eligible for parole after serving eight months and 17 days of his sentence, according to the parole board. He served 10 months and five days of his two-year sentence.

His brother, Leslie D. Hare, is serving a six year sentence.

Black Elk said "This is just another incident which proves the kind of dual system in the courts of this nation."

He said if the situation had been reversed and the Hare brothers were Indians and Yellow Thunder white, the Indians would be serving life sentences or facing execution.

During his appearance before the Parole Board Hare was asked if he had any trouble with any Indian inmates.

"After they got to know me it was okay," Hare told the board. Hare said he was going to work on construction after his release from the institution and the board wanted to know if that might include work in the Gordon area.

He said he didn't think so. "I'm not interested in the western part of the state," Hare said.

Justice Department Will Drop Charges

By H. J. ANDERSON
Star Staff Writer

The U.S. Justice Department will drop all Wounded Knee charges under a federal civil disorder statute as a result of two acquittals delivered Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom, according to U.S. Atty. William Clayton in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Clayton said the action will affect about 50 of the remaining 115 defendants in the Wounded Knee "non-leadership" cases in Lincoln.

"We believe the decision tells us to drop all 231A3 charges," Clayton said. The figures refer to a statute prohibiting interfering with a law officer in the performance of legal duties.

But he said his office will review the dismissed cases to see if the Justice Department should prosecute under another statute.

Urbom acquitted Gregorio Jaramillo, 22, of Denver, Colo., and Michael Eugene Sturdevant, 30, of Neopit, Wis., of charges under statute 231A3.

The judge said the prosecution failed to prove "beyond a reasonable doubt" that officers at the

2 Defendants Are Acquitted

Wounded Knee encampment in the spring of 1973 were "lawfully engaged in the lawful performance of official duties."

Clayton said the charges will be dropped before the next trial begins Aug. 26.

According to one of Urbom's law clerks, that trial includes: Robert LeRoy, charged under the 231A3 statute; Roger Iron Cloud, Wallace Little Jr. and Beau Little, charged under the statute and also with assaulting a federal officer.

Clayton said there can be no successful prosecutions under the civil disorder statute as long as the defense can prove some part of the Army or Air Force were present without a presidential order. And that was the case, he said.

At a Wednesday afternoon news conference,

American Indian Movement press representative Frank Black Elk said the Sioux Indian Treaty of 1868 and the military involvement will be chief defense tools for upcoming trials.

The treaty made the Pine Ridge Reservation, including Wounded Knee, sovereign land and U.S. marshals have no right on it, Black Elk said.

Black Elk, also director of the Lincoln AIM chapter, read a statement from the Wounded Knee legal Defense-Offense Committee:

"... (through the indictments) it has become clear to the American Indian Movement that the government is making an effort to tie it up in the courts, hoping that it will die."

He called Tuesday "a historic day." Black Elk said he knew of no plea negotiations and he, personally, would not go along with any deals.

Acquitted defendant Sturdevant was informed of the decision at his home in Wisconsin. He had been released from Lincoln Aug. 1 when he complained about an "overbearing" attitude in Lincoln.

Ford OKs Permitting Citizens To Own Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill permitting private citizens to own gold next year for the first time in 42 years was signed by President Ford Wednesday.

The legislation says Americans may hold, sell or purchase gold as of Dec. 31 of this year, although the President could allow it sooner, if he wishes.

Lifting of the gold ban was an amendment to a bill providing for a U.S. contribution of $1.5 billion to the International Development Association, which makes low-interest loans to the world's poorest nations.

The administration opposed lifting the gold ban, but wanted the IDA contribution so much it decided against a veto.

However, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said last month while Richard Nixon was still president that the administration might ask Congress later for a special extension of the ban if it seemed private gold sales would cause economic disruptions.

Although Americans have been able to own gold coins and gold jewelry, they have been prohibited from owning it in bullion form since 1933.

Commercial gold dealers like Handy and Harman of New York said earlier this year that they would market gold ingots in sizes ranging from half an ounce up after gold purchases were approved. The ingots would vary in price according to the price of an ounce of gold and would be sold at retail outlets and through the mail.

Major commodity exchanges also prepared contracts for gold future and initial indications were that they would offer the contracts — promising delivery at a later date — in amounts of 100 ounces.

Coin dealers expanded their operations in advance of Ford's action and one large dealer, Perera Fifth Ave., Inc., initiated a 24-hour "Gold Line" to give callers information about the price of the precious metal.

Mimutes after the signing by President Ford was announced, Samuel Weiss & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange, reported that it had begun taking orders for gold from the public and other NYSE member firms.

A spokesman at Weiss said the firm's bullion prices would be tied to the rapidly fluctuating gold prices quoted in world markets and would include the firm's own commission of six or seven per cent.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt imposed the gold ban in a maneuver to drive up prices of goods during the depression.

The idea behind the tactic was that as Americans sold their gold to the government, which was required, they would then spend the money they received on other goods, and that would drive up prices.

The opposite situation exists now. With high inflation, some Americans may wish to put their money in gold hoping its value will be more stable than money.

But although gold prices have increased five-fold in recent years, from $35 an ounce to about $150 an ounce at present, it has dropped back from its historic high of $186 an ounce on Feb. 26 of this year. It fell as low as $130 an ounce last month.

Council Sets Additional Centrum Funding Talks

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Council members agreed to discuss Thursday whether to let the people seal the fate of the beleaguered Centrum project following a three-hour public hearing on both the merits of that proposal and overall city budget proposals.

The lawmakers will debate at a special session Thursday noon whether to send the question of financing the Centrum with general obligation bonds to a November showdown at the polls, or to go the revenue bond route.

Both Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and the city's consultants are recommending the revenue bonds.

But, several citizens testifying Wednesday said if the council went with revenue bonds, it would be circumventing the wishes of the people.

Overshadows Others

The testimony from proponents and opponents of the proposed $7.4 million Centrum overshadowed most other matters raised during the budget hearing which saw more than a hundred people jam the council chambers.

The only other topic drawing fire and praise was the proposed city picking up of the now federally funded city's Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Program (LASAP).

Several people attacked the Centrum itself, others questioned the methods of financing, while a property owner in the block lamented the city's handling of the project.

Support for the proposed 1,000-car parking garage and merchandising stores, on the block from 11th to 12th between O and N Sts., which would be built with private funds, came from Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC) Chairman Dick White.

White billed the project as being "the catalyst which will start a whole new era for downtown Lincoln."

Support Pledged

And Chamber of Commerce President John Olsson pledged up to $637,000 from businessmen and property owners who have agreed to form a nonprofit corporation to supervise development of the retail area fronting O St.

The proposed financial package calls for the city to receive $637,000 from the sale of that land to private developers.

Additionally, the mayor is proposing that $3.63 million in parking revenue bonds be issued to help finance the garage.

Fees collected from garage customers would be used to retire those bonds.

Another $2.3 million would come out of highway allocation funds, while the remaining $835-000 would come from general revenue sharing coffers.

Owner Unhappy
While DAC has been formulating a downtown redevelopment plan for more than year, at least one property owner in the Centrum block was unhappy about how the entire Centrum venture has been handled.

Richard Moulton, owner of an apartment on N St., argued that the city was "deliberately putting it through too fast."

Moulton asked how could citizens discuss the plans and proposed financing when little information was available and when the latest financial figures were published Tuesday, one day before the public hearing.

Apology Offered

City Atty. Dick Wood apologized to the property owners if they have been neglected and promised that future meetings will be held to discuss the plans. Wood noted, however, that detailed design plans are just now being formulated.

Under state redevelopment statutes, Wood said the council had to declare the block blighted before plans could get under way. On Monday the council made that determination.

Lloyd Hinrichs, who has lost property through condemnation, compared the city's handling of the Centrum to "a Watergate type of affair." He alleged the city was trying "a form of coverup here," but declined to give specific details.

Quick Responses

That charge brought quick responses from council members, with Helen Boosalis stating the city "is not trying to put anything over on the public."

On the overall proposed $102 million budget, Mayor Schwartzkopf reported that additions added by the council during recent weeks will add a mill in property taxes to his budget. The mayor estimated the new levy would be 23.17. The levy for 1973-74 is 23.70 mills.

Council members also will discuss Thursday noon numerous requests made at the hearing.

LASAP Opposed

Tom Headley presented a petition signed by 1,600 people opposing city funding of LASAP when federal funds expire Dec. 31. Headley said a number of people are concerned with the administration of the drug antabuse, which he charged is being misused.

However, Joseph Ridgeway, who said he has been taking the drug for a year through the LASAP program, said administration of antabuse is voluntary and is not forced on anyone.

Several other people questioned proposed budget cuts and voiced concern that the counseling staff was being reduced from three to one.

'Gold Plated'

The mayor is proposing that the program, which he termed "gold plated," be slashed from $437,000 this year to $170,598 next year. The cuts were made in administration and in the rehabilitation divisions.

The lawmakers also heard requests for:

—$110,000 for the Lincoln Area Mobile Home Team which was granted a $75,000 city subsidy last year.

—$2,600 from the Lincoln Rose Society to help finance additional facilities at the Woods Park Rose Garden.

—$2,300 from the Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

—unspecified amount from the semi-pro baseball league for baseball field lights.

—unspecified amount from West A residents and West O businessmen for improvements in West Lincoln.

Ford Favors Extension Of Revenue Sharing

Washington (UPI) — President Ford told a group of Democratic and Republican governors Wednesday he enthusiastically supports federal revenue sharing with the states and favors its extension when current legislation expires in 1975.

Democratic Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, a frequent critic of Nixon administration policies and the program for plowing back tax receipts to state and local governments, told reporters: "The difference in this meeting was the difference between the sun shining and a drab day. This was a wonderful meeting. It was very refreshing."

Ford was occupied much of the day with keeping abreast with events in Cyprus but he held two meetings at the White House — one with the governors and later with mayors from across the country — in his effort to get outside ideas on how to meet the country's major problems.

Utah Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, also a Democrat who spoke on behalf of the 15 governors who attended the session in the cabinet room, said Ford "assured us of his continued enthusiastic support for revenue sharing and for its extension in new legislation."

A number of the governors said they stressed that the revenue sharing programs as it now operates is hampered by red tape and bureaucratic inefficiencies.

Republican Gov. Winfield Dunn said Tennessee could turn back a significant portion of its receipts from revenue sharing to the federal government if it were not required to employ a sizable manpower force to keep track of funds and regulations.

"He got the message," Dunn said of Ford.

The legislation authorizing the revenue sharing expires at the end of 1975. A number of governors have been concerned that Congress might not extend the program or renew with unfavorable changes.

In addition to revenue sharing, Ford discussed with governors the Midwest drought, the economy generally and the problems of energy during their hour-long meeting.

Attending were the governors of Utah, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Colorado, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Minnesota and the Virgin Islands.

His next conference was with the mayors of a number of big and middle-sized cities including Joseph Alioto of San Francisco, Abraham Beame of New York, Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, E. J. "Jack" Garn of Salt Lake City, Ben Boo of Duluth, John C. Orestis of Lewiston, Maine, and others.

Man Replaced By Lady Trio

New York (UPI) — Alan Greenspan, head of President Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, is being replaced as chairman of Townsend-Greenspan & Co. — by three women.

Greenspan said in resigning the chairmanship of the economic consulting firm that he expects to return to the company when his tour of government service is completed. But he said he would have no contact with the firm while in Washington.

His replacement consists of an executive committee composed of M. Kathryn Eickhoff, Bess Kaplan and Lucille Wu. Another woman economist, Judith Mackey, a former vice-president of Townsend-Greenspan, is rejoining the company.

Minister Honeyed And Feathered

The Rev. Brent Hiller of Peoria, Ill., promised to let students honey and feather him if attendance at vacation Bible school reached 100 or more. It turned out to be 118. Whereupon the Rev. Mr. Hiller was doused with honey, left photo, and covered with feathers, right. Last summer he was pelted with chocolate pies when attendance broke the century mark. He isn't saying what he plans for next summer.

President Calls For Sacrifice To Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford called for an "atmosphere of self-sacrifice" to deal with inflation, while his economic advisers pushed his new inflation-fighting program in Congress Wednesday.

"Why can't everybody make a little sacrifice?" Ford asked during a meeting with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He met with Long to discuss legislative weapons to improve the economy.

There were these other developments in what Ford has called the nation's No. 1 problem:

—Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said his House Banking and Currency Committee will complete action this week on a bill to establish a Cost of Living task force and have it ready for action by the full House Monday.

—Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told a Senate finance subcommittee that the United States will have a high rate of inflation for the next two to five years.

—Presidential economics counselor Kenneth Rush urged the new Senate Budget Committee to help reduce the 1975 federal budget below $300 billion, if possible, and to help balance the 1976 budget.

Ford, meanwhile, expressed "serious disappointment" over a $5.6-billion cut in the defense budget by the Senate's defense appropriations subcommittee. He said "reductions of that magnitude" could have an adverse effect on the nation's security.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., had supported the subcommittee's action, saying the $81.9 billion budget it finally recommended was "realistically aligned with the present state of our economy and fiscal affairs."

Ford has told Congress he wants a Cost of Living task force approved by the end of next week, and Patman indicated Wednesday he was doing his part to get this done. The Senate Banking Committee will take up a bill Thursday.

Budget Director Roy L. Ash told the Patman committee that Ford supports a task force with about 25 people and a budget of $1 million to help keep track of inflationary forces in the economy.

But he said the administration did not want authority for wage and price controls or subpoena powers to compel businessmen or labor leaders to supply it with information it wants.

Rush, who was the leadoff witness at the inaugural session of the new Senate Budget Committee, said federal budget deficits in 14 of the last 15 years have been a major cause of the nation's current inflation.

But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, the committee chairman, said this remained to be proved as far as the committee is concerned.

"On this point we have heard a lot of talk," Muskie said. "We need some hard analysis."

Report Accuses Nixon Of Misusing Power

Washington (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee's impeachment report to be submitted to the House next week sharply accuses former President Richard M. Nixon of violating laws, subverting the Constitution and of "repeated and continuing misuse of the powers of the presidency," it was learned Wednesday night.

Copies of a 193-page draft, written under the leadership of special counsel John M. Doar, were circulated to the 38 members of the committee. A copy was obtained by UPI.

The draft gave 30 reasons for the committee's 27 to 11 vote on July 27 for an article of impeachment charging Nixon with obstruction of justice in the Watergate cover-up.

The report cited equally strong reasons for voting Article 2 charging Nixon with misuse of the powers of the presidency and Article 3 charging failure to respond to the committee's subpoenas.

The report was delayed in part by Nixon's disclosure Aug. 5 that he had withheld three June 23, 1972, tapes containing incriminating evidence of his involvement in the Watergate cover-up.

The disclosure led to unanimous committee support for Article 1. overwhelming House support for impeachment and strong signs the Senate would convict him and remove him from office. Realizing that, Nixon resigned effective last Friday.

The committee concluded "that Richard M. Nixon, using the powers of his high office, engaged, personally and through his subordinates and agents, in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation of the unlawful entry, on July 17, 1972, into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee; to cover up, conceal and protect those responsible; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities.

"This finding is the only one that can explain the president's involvement in a pattern of undisputed acts that occurred after the break-in and that cannot otherwise be rationally explained," the report said.

"For more than two years, the president engaged in a course of conduct which involved deliberate, repeated and continued deception of the American people."

Dick Randolph of Randolph's Car Wash is proving to Lincoln the big difference in car wash quality

Dick regards the Car Wash business as a science. That's why his people, like Harold Heying, his equipment and his methods of operation are the very best.

When Dick Randolph introduced the exterior car wash concept to Lincoln way back in 1967, he went first class. And today, Randolph Car Wash enjoys the reputation of being the best car wash in Lincoln.

To keep up that reputation, Dick and his manager, Harold Heying recognized that some of the 1974 cars with radical styling designs and extended bumpers would be more difficult to clean, so they turned to Hugh Moxley of General Equipment Company, the authorized Hanna distributor, as they have in the past, for recommendations. The result is why Randolph's Car Wash has been temporarily closed. General Equipment Co. has installed a completely new automatic system to meet the demands of today's new styled automobiles.

This new system, a 2100 Arch Style Canopy Car Wash System may look like a bunch of beams, bolts and brushes, but it's something much more... it's the finest, most sophisticated automatic cleaning machine in the world. And the results on your car, '74 or not, will tell the difference that has made Randolph Car Wash the leader in Lincoln.

Grand Opening Soon

Randolph's Car Wash will be open again with the most modern car wash system in the area. We apologize for the temporary inconvenience while our 2100 system was being installed.

We are mighty proud of the relationship we've developed with Dick Randolph. He is the kind of solid citizen and business man who is a credit to his community. And a credit to our car wash industry. His philosophy of doing business, his customer concern and his success have earned him a position of respect.

Dick Randolph's insistence on a quality operation parallels precisely the Hanna insistence on quality equipment and a desire to help operators maintain the high professional standards of the Car Wash industry.

Maddox Ties Opponent In Runoff To Julian Bond

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Segregationist Lester Maddox, who faces a runoff with George Busbee for the Democratic nomination for governor of Georgia, attacked his opponent Wednesday, tying him to black legislator Julian Bond.

"The fellows I'll be in a runoff with are the two B's — Busbee and Bond," Maddox said. The former governor failed to win a majority in Tuesday's primary, although he led the list of candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination to succeed Gov. Jimmy Carter, a Democrat barred by law from succeeding himself.

Bond, a former state representative who won the Democratic nomination for the state Senate, had backed Busbee. Busbee, 47, of Albany, has been a leader in the Georgia House for 18 years.

"Rep. Bond already has said he will run for president (of the United States)," said Maddox, adding that the 34-year-old legislator would need the backing of the statehouse to do so.

Said Bond of Maddox's comments: "This campaign has been until today without any reference to race. The old Lester Maddox has come out."

Maddox, 58, now lieutenant governor, has said that if elected

again, he will remove the portrait of the late civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., from the Capitol.

Maddox took a commanding first place lead in the Democratic primary. Busbee held the No. 2 spot, edging out smalltown banker Bert Lance in a field of 13 candidates.

In the Republican gubernatorial primary, Macon Mayor Ronnie Thompson, campaigning on a law and order issue, took a firm first place lead but also faces a Sept. 3 runoff against Harold Dye, a former state official from Atlanta.

With 92 per cent of the precincts tabulated, Maddox held 282,589 votes, or 35.4 per cent. Busbee had 169,731 votes or 21.2 per cent.

In the GOP primary, with 65 per cent of the precincts counted, Thompson had 17,733 votes or 41.5 per cent. Dye's vote was 9,858 or 23.1 per cent.

Veteran congressman John Davis, who has served seven terms in the U.S. House, apparently lost his bid for an eighth to a strong conservative, Dr. Lawrence McDonald, a Marietta physician.

U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge and other Democratic congressional incumbents swept to victory in the primary elections. Georgia's lone Republican congressman, Ben Blackburn, had no primary opposition within his own party but faces a strong Democratic contender in November, State Rep. Elliott Levitas.

$112 Million In Heroin Seized; Case New 'French Connection'

NEW YORK (AP) — The seizure of $112 million worth of heroin concealed in a shipment of simulated antique furniture was announced Wednesday by federal narcotics agents who described the case as a new "French Connection."

Five persons were arrested in the case and held in a total of $9 million bail after one of the group tried to sell information about the smuggling scheme to U.S. agents for $400,000.

The drug, 75 kilos said to be 90 per cent pure and worth $3 million at the wholesale level alone, was actually built into a load of furniture sent from France and traced to a Long Island City warehouse, officials said.

Authorities estimated the street value at $112 million.

A spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration estimated that the 75 kilos could keep 4,800 heroin addicts supplied for a month.

Those arrested were Maurice Leon Schoch, 39, of Nice, France, described as the informant, and his brother, Claude, 28, also of Nice, identified as a dental technician.

Nadine Besset, an attractive willowy redhead in her 40s and said to be Maurice's girlfriend; Albino N. Garro, described as an Argentine citizen, and Claude Breteche, also from France, were the others.

Agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration arrested them as they were leaving a Manhattan restaurant Monday.

U.S. Atty. David G. Trager said he was deeply concerned over the seizure because it showed that the so-called "French Connection" routes supposedly destroyed a year and a half ago were still viable.

Trager said that this development coupled with the recent decision of the Turkish government to allow farmers in that country to grow opium poppies again poses a problem of greater concern than ever before.

The original "French Connection" case occurred in 1962 when police and agents found $98 million worth of heroin hidden in imported autos. The book and popular movie of the same name were based on the case.

Health Compromise Proposed

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., Wednesday proposed a new compromise national health insurance plan in an effort to expedite one of President Ford's key legislative goals.

The new compromise, one of a series over the past few months, would set up an insurance program financed by federal funds for the poor and by payments from both employers and employees for most citizens.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he had not discussed the plan with either Ford or Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chief health insurance sponsor in the Senate.

Ford requested passage of a national health insurance plan in his address to a joint session of Congress, but even with his backing there appears only a marginal chance of passage this year.

Mills said, however, he felt the Ways and Means Committee could complete a bill and have it to the House floor before the end of September.

Details of the Mills plan still are fuzzy, but generally it would work this way:

— A state-run, federally financed health insurance program would be established for the poor. Benefits would be the same in all states.

— A health insurance program to pay normal health care costs would be financed largely by employers with employees paying some small portion of the premiums. This program likely would be handled through private health insurance companies.

— A catastrophic illness plan would be established to handle major medical bills. This would be financed by a payroll tax on employers and employees, with employers paying about 75% of the cost of premiums.

Mills outlined his plan to reporters following a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee which has been working on a health insurance bill for about two weeks. He has not drafted any definite language, and indicated his ideas were open to changes.

New York — The first strong signal that substantial amounts of Mideast oil dollars will be flowing into the Treasury's new special securities was received by the money market here. Such a move would mean that Washington's effort to get the big oil exporters to invest part of their huge earnings in non-negotiable U.S. Treasury securities has been successful. On his recent trip to the Middle East, Treasury Secretary Simon sought investment commitments from the big oil exporting countries as part of a plan to recycle the so-called petrodollars to aid fuel-importing nations.

Southern California surfers, who regard the waves breaking off the point at Nixon's estate as the best in the area, are being allowed back on the strand after five years of being excluded by the Secret Service.

Gold Speculation High

London — The renewed fighting on Cyprus and continuing anxieties over world economic trends brought speculative buying into gold on the London bullion market, while the stock market plummeted to another 19-year low. The price of gold leaped $5.75 an ounce to $157.50 at the close in a traditional reaction to international uncertainties. Investment funds tend to flow into gold bullion at times of war or economic distress on the theory that it is the safest investment.

Evers Says Tax Charge Designed To 'Break Me'

FAYETTE, Miss. (AP) — Mayor Charles Evers, the first black mayor of a biracial town in Mississippi, said Wednesday that his indictment on federal income tax charges was designed to "break me financially and break me politically." He said unidentified people were angry over his fight for civil rights.

Evers said he was innocent of the charges that he failed to pay more than $52,000 in taxes.

He told a news conference that he knew his tax records were being investigated by a federal grand jury and that he had told the Internal Revenue Service he would be willing to pay any due taxes.

He said he was told, "No, we want you."

He added: "I think they got me."

It don't mean a thing if it ain't got that ding.

Maddox Ties Opponent In Runoff To Julian Bond

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Segregationist Lester Maddox, who faces a runoff with George Busbee for the Democratic nomination for governor of Georgia, attacked his opponent Wednesday, tying him to black legislator Julian Bond.

"The fellows I'll be in a runoff with are the two B's — Busbee and Bond," Maddox said. The former governor failed to win a majority in Tuesday's primary, although he led the list of candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination to succeed Gov. Jimmy Carter, a Democrat barred by law from succeeding himself.

Bond, a former state representative who won the Democratic nomination for the state Senate, had backed Busbee. Busbee, 47, of Albany, has been a leader in the Georgia House for 18 years.

"Rep. Bond already has said he will run for president (of the United States)," said Maddox, adding that the 34-year-old legislator would need the backing of the statehouse to do so.

Said Bond of Maddox's comments:

"This campaign has been until today without any reference to race. The old Lester Maddox has come out."

Maddox, 58, now lieutenant governor, has said that if elected

again, he will remove the portrait of the late civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., from the Capitol.

Maddox took a commanding first place lead in the Democratic primary. Busbee held the No. 2 spot, edging out smalltown banker Bert Lance in a field of 12 candidates.

In the Republican gubernatorial primary, Macon Mayor Ronnie Thompson, campaigning on a law and order issue, took a firm first place lead but also faces a Sept. 3 runoff against Harold Dye, a former state official from Atlanta.

With 92 per cent of the precincts tabulated, Maddox held 282,589 votes, or 35.4 per cent. Busbee had 169,731 votes or 21.2 per cent.

In the GOP primary, with 65 per cent of the precincts counted, Thompson had 17,733 votes or 41.5 per cent. Dye's vote was 9,858 or 23.1 per cent.

Veteran congressman John Davis, who has served seven terms in the U.S. House, apparently lost his bid for an eighth to a strong conservative, Dr. Lawrence McDonald, a Marietta physician.

U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge and other Democratic congressional incumbents swept to victory in the primary elections. Georgia's lone Republican congressman, Ben Blackburn, had no primary opposition within his own party but faces a strong Democratic contender in November, State Rep. Elliott Levitas.

New York Times News Summary

Saxbe Settled

Washington (Star-News) — Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, who has been reading hints for nearly a week that he would be the first Cabinet officer to be bounced, has now settled in to service for the rest of President Ford's term.

Dog Fights Revealed

Chicago — Pat Podzianowski, a construction worker by trade, is part of a group of men — as many as 5,000 by the best-informed estimate — who regularly meet clandestinely at locations across the country to pit their dogs against each other. The savage matches are held secretly not only because they are illegal but also because the fights are always accompanied by heavy betting, ranging from $25 to $20,000.

Iran Offers Loans

New York — Iran is reported ready to provide loans to Grumman Corp. to continue F14 production.

Securities To Be Sold

New York — The first strong signal that substantial amounts of Mideast oil dollars will be flowing into the Treasury's new special securities was received by the money market here. Such a move would mean that Washington's effort to get the big oil exporters to invest part of their huge earnings in non-negotiable U.S. Treasury securities has been successful. On his recent trip to the Middle East, Treasury Secretary Simon sought investment commitments from the big oil exporting countries as part of a plan to recycle the so-called petrodollars to aid fuel-importing nations.

Suppression Continues

Seoul — The South Korean government continued suppressing political adversaries of President Park Chung Hee.

Reconsideration Urged

Brussels — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization urged Greece to reconsider "as soon as possible" her decision to pull out all Greek troops from the 15-member defense alliance; the NATO council met in emergency session and Secretary General Joseph Luns broke off a vacation in the Black Forest to rush back to NATO headquarters here.

Nixon Visits Beach

San Clemente, Calif. — Richard M. Nixon is taking daily drives to a heavily-guarded and deserted beach at the Camp Pendleton Marine base 13 miles south of his San Clemente estate while the general public is being welcomed back on his own beach. Southern California surfers, who regard the waves breaking off the point at Nixon's estate as the best in the area, are being allowed back on the strand after five years of being excluded by the Secret Service.

$112 Million In Heroin Seized; Case New 'French Connection'

NEW YORK (AP) — The seizure of $112 million worth of heroin concealed in a shipment of simulated antique furniture was announced Wednesday by federal narcotics agents who described the case as a new "French Connection."

Five persons were arrested in the case and held in a total of $9 million bail after one of the group tried to sell information about the smuggling scheme to U.S. agents for $400,000.

The drug, 75 kilos said to be 90 per cent pure and worth $3 million at the wholesale level alone, was actually built into a load of furniture sent from France and traced to a Long Island City warehouse, officials said.

Authorities estimated the street value at $112 million.

A spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration estimated that the 75 kilos could keep 4,800 heroin addicts supplied for a month.

Those arrested were Maurice Leon Schoch, 39, of Nice, France, described as the informant, and his brother, Claude, 28, also of Nice, identified as a dental technician.

Nadine Besset, an attractive willowy redhead in her 40s and said to be Maurice's girlfriend; Albino N. Garro, described as an Argentine citizen, and Claude Breteche, also from France, were the others.

Agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration arrested them as they were leaving a Manhattan restaurant Monday.

U.S. Atty. David G. Trager said he was deeply concerned over the seizure because it showed that the so-called "French Connection" routes supposedly destroyed a year and a half ago were still viable.

Trager said that this development coupled with the recent decision of the Turkish government to allow farmers in that country to grow opium poppies again poses a problem of greater concern than ever before.

The original "French Connection" case occurred in 1962 when police and agents found $98 million worth of heroin hidden in imported autos. The book and popular movie of the same name were based on the case.

Health Compromise Proposed

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., Wednesday proposed a new compromise national health insurance plan in an effort to expedite one of President Ford's key legislative goals.

The new compromise, one of a series over the past few months, would set up an insurance program financed by federal funds for the poor and by payments from both employers and employees for most citizens.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he had not discussed the plan with either Ford or Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chief health insurance sponsor in the Senate.

Ford requested passage of a national health insurance plan in his address to a joint session of Congress, but even with his backing there appears only a marginal chance of passage this year.

Mills said, however, he felt the Ways and Means Committee could complete a bill and have it to the House floor before the end of September.

Details of the Mills plan still are fuzzy, but generally it would work this way:

— A state-run, federally financed health insurance program would be established for the poor. Benefits would be the same in all states.

— A health insurance program to pay normal health care costs would be financed largely by employers with employees paying some small portion of the premiums. This program likely would be established through private health insurance companies.

— A catastrophic illness plan would be established to handle major medical bills. This would be financed by a payroll tax on employers and employees, with employers paying about 75% of the cost of premiums.

Mills outlined his plan to reporters following a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee which has been working on a health insurance bill for about two weeks. He has not drafted any definite language, and indicated his ideas were open to changes.

County Taxes In Line

While no one welcomes a tax increase, there is little basis for criticism of the Lancaster County Board in its approximate two-mill hike in the levy for 1974-75. The two mills equals $2 per assessed valuation. Your assessed valuation is supposed to be approximately one-third of your actual market value.

Thus, the actual increase to the average home-owner in Lincoln as a result of the county budget will be somewhere around $15 a year. Now, $15 is $15 and when it's in taxes, it seems like even more, but that is a little more than $1 a month.

Additionally, the tax rate for the county, while higher than last year, is still a mill lower than it was in 1972-73. And the 1974-75 levy is still 3½ mills under the county's legal limit of 14.28 mills.

The county in its new budget has not gone hog-wild. At least half of this coming year's increase will be found in the institution of a new personnel plan, something the county has badly needed for a goodly number of years.

This will help make county salaries competitive and put county personnel matters on a professional level. It is being done, too, in cooperation with the city for the sake of greater efficiency and service.

The county board has had to provide for capital outlays in planning for higher mileage reimbursement schedules and for a doubling (by state law) of various court operational expenses.

Some $1.5 million in federal revenue-sharing funds will be plowed by the county into a wide range of mostly human services or social welfare programs. But some of this money, too, will substantially improve county road and highway operations.

Some may argue that such funds should have been used, in effect, to reduce the county's mill levy but such is not their purpose.

And of course, all county departments have to contend with inflation in the conduct of their daily affairs. We know that the economic times are not easy on anyone but we do not see the county budget as out of line in that connection or excessive in any other regard.

Have We Been Suckered?

Everyone knows what a "gut feeling" is. It is the opinion you have of something or someone that comes from a simple subjective look at things. It is the feeling you have more or less regardless of the facts.

It isn't very scientific but it often seems to prove to be the truth. And whether it is right or wrong, we are often slow to change such an attitude.

In the case of petroleum and the gasoline shortage, the gut feeling of a lot of people is that we have been suckered by the big oil companies. There is a feeling that there has been a lot of manipulation of production and distribution in an effort to arrive at higher retail prices and, thereby, bigger oil company profits.

While some may see it in just the opposite light, a recent statement by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon will add to the sucker feeling. He says that conditions of production and the market place are now such that the price of gasoline at the pumps could drop six to seven cents a gallon in the coming months.

That raises skepticism simply because it is such a radical departure from all that we have been led to believe. We have no doubt at all that industry people could explain the situation in such a way that it is perfectly logical and removes all doubts about the economic integrity of the oil companies, but we are not sure everyone would buy their case.

Further, the oil companies spend millions on advertising to tell the American people about the need for profits to support further exploration. Then, we learn of Federal Energy Administration displeasure of Mobil Oil's intent to use hundreds of millions of dollars of its profits to acquire the holding company for Montgomery Ward.

Maybe the whole business makes sense but the pattern of things is most bewildering. Added to all the above is the speculation that we will have fuel oil shortages again this winter.

If the price of gasoline goes down and fuel oil becomes scarce, the consternation of the American people will be all the greater.

MARQUIS CHILDS

The Unity Problem

WASHINGTON — Every editorialist and stump speaker in the country will ring the changes from this day forward on the need for unity around President Ford. While this is a fine sentiment coinciding with the mood of the country, for the President himself achieving unity is a problem that will not be solved by rhetoric.

Above all within his own party, severely wounded by the Nixon scandals, with most of the White House aides either in jail or about to be tried, he must move quickly and surely to try to pull together the faltering elements of the fragmented minority. With the congressional election only three months off, every poll has shown the GOP with heavy losses across the country.

The resignation of Richard Nixon and the accession of Gerald Ford may prove an antidote. Certainly Ford in the past six months has worked like a beaver helping Republican candidates in district after district. How effective this will be only the returns in November will show.

Unity will turn above all on Ford's choice of a vice president. This is not a measure merely of the importance of the office although five vice presidents in this century have inherited the No. 1 position. But it is a symbol of how diverse elements can be brought together in a common front.

The front-runner in this interval is said to be former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. That is an invitation to the ultra-conservatives to start firing. They would like to bring Rockefeller down and substitute one on whom they look favorably. A candidate from this quarter is Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Elected four times governor of what was until recently the most populous state in the Union, Rockefeller has a long background in foreign policy and administration at the national level. From the point of view of proven experience, he has been the best qualified of anyone in his party for the office of chief executive.

Yet the right wing has never forgiven him for, in their terminology, his liberalism. This is a myopic delusion. He is a moderate, moving more recently to a center position, who has had of necessity to come to grips with the problems of galloping urbanism.

In the rallying cry for unity, Ford's position will inevitably be

WASHINGTON — "No Amnesty For Nixon." The bumper stickers have already started to appear, blue letters on a white background, their message harsh and unequivocal. Lawyers and politicians and ordinary citizens alike are speaking out with a similar message. The American Bar Association, at its convention in Hawaii, is considering a resolution to the same effect.

The pressure is understandable, for there are good arguments in favor of prosecuting Richard M. Nixon, and, adding to the immediacy, there is also a pending prosecution with a Sept. 9 trial date for six former Nixon subordinates charged with the same crime in which Nixon has admitted a role.

There are good arguments against prosecuting Nixon. Also, the pressure, at the moment, is directed at one man, Leon Jaworski, the special Watergate prosecutor; and there are those who believe that the decision should be made elsewhere.

And there is some feeling that the decision should be postponed, emotions are high now, and the question is momentous.

The present situation, briefly, is this: Nixon, having given up the presidency and, with it, whatever immunity it carried, is now liable to prosecution for any crimes committed while in office. He himself has made public transcripts of his conversations that, to lawyers, provide a prima facie case against him on at least the charge of obstruction of justice. There is evidence from the transcripts and from other sources that might support additional charges against him.

President Ford could pardon Nixon, but he has shown no inclination to do so, and indeed, his press secretary has implied that the new President would be opposed to a pardon.

Congress could conceivably pass a pending resolution favoring clemency, an act that while not legally binding would at least give Jaworski some psychological backup should the prosecutor decide not to prosecute Nixon. Such action, though, now also appears unlikely.

Jaworski, the man authorized to prosecute Nixon, is thus on his own.

As a result, there are three basic questions, as follows: 1. Should Nixon be WASHINGTON — In his first few days in office, President Ford has touched off an explosion of common sense in Washington. He's not waiting for the Congress to cut the presidency down to size. He's lopping off the grandeur and keeping the dignity, and turning the old Nixon "enemies list" into a company of friends.

The man has the town laughing again. He wants a "good marriage" with the Congress, and not just a "honeymoon", he said. He pokes fun at his voting record, which incidentally, is not very funny. He has George Meany back at the White House and scalds GM for gouging the public, and talks about common courtesy and ordinary decency, as if they had gone out of style, which in a way they had.

Perhaps the most important thing so far, however, is that he is not confusing the government with the President, or babbling on about a generation of peace, but worrying about the price of hamburger and trying to get a good team on the field before the season starts.

His first test will be not only in his selection of a vice-presidential nominee, but what he gives the man to do. Nobody needs to tell him about the importance of picking a man of Sunlight is delightful . . . in fact, essential to all life on earth, but I must admit I have appreciated the change in temperatures and cloud cover that has obscured some of the brilliant sun. A small shower made the air smell fresh but it wasn't enough to help the crop situation in our area. For a short while, the scent of moisture falling on dry grass and dusty earth tingled the nose for it had been so long since we had smelled the freshness of rain, our sense of smell has gone almost dormant.

I took advantage of one of the cooler days and popped a meat loaf into the oven along with potatoes and an apple crisp. It had been weeks since I have done any baking. When the temperatures sizzled, I fizzled as far as baking was concerned. In fact, eating during hot weather is not my prime interest. I never seem to be eager to try a new recipe.

A sandwich, fruit, something icy cold to drink sound much more interesting to me. In fact, the very fact of thinking of Christmas dinner with mashed potatoes, gravy, turkey and rich dessert makes me turn my head the other way. At the moment I find it difficult to think I can muster enough energy to prosecuted, or should the books be closed and the former President left alone? 2. Who should decide? 3. When should the decision be made?

The questions involve far more than just the fate of Nixon, for any decision on his legal status will affect to one degree or another the status of other defendants or potential defendants. There is something more at stake, too: the public's perception of its legal system.

The arguments in favor of prosecuting Nixon go thus: The law applies to all persons equally, and Nixon must be prosecuted for his alleged crimes in the same way that anybody else who apparently committed crimes would be prosecuted. If Nixon is not prosecuted, the prosecutions of his former subordinates would be unfair and might have to be dropped. If he is not prosecuted, he will be able to go about the country saying that he has done no wrong and, perhaps, having his opinions heeded.

Finally, the argument goes, a failure to prosecute Nixon would lessen whatever respect Americans have for the law.

The main argument on the other side is that Nixon has already suffered a penalty harsh enough for whatever offenses he committed — he forfeited the presidency, he brought disgrace to his family, he was and undoubtedly will be humiliated.

Another argument is that a proper system of justice allows compassion and mercy. A corollary is that prosecutors in this country have vast discretion — as suggested by Elliot L. Richardson, the former attorney general, who has said he thinks that "as a matter of discretion" Nixon should not be prosecuted.

Letting Nixon free while prosecuting his former aides for what may have been subordinate roles in the Watergate crimes seems, on the face of it, unfair. But it is possible that those aides could be let free — that those prosecutions could be dropped, or pardons issued.

Such a decision could perhaps be justified on the grounds that the aides were acting at the direction of the President, and since the President was not being prosecuted, for national policy reasons, the aides should not be either.

That possibility, of course, raises the next question: Who is to decide what should be done with Nixon? For while a prosecutor has huge discretion in deciding whom to prosecute and what charges to bring, and while there are few ways to control a prosecutor's discretion, there are public policy reasons for prosecutors posing some limits on themselves.

Jaworski is a cautious and traditionally minded prosecutor, considering himself guided if not totally bound by such guidelines as the American Bar Association's standards for prosecutors. Those standards give a variety of reasons for declining to prosecute, such as inadequate proof or reluctance of the victim to testify, but those reasons are not particularly helpful in this case.

Also, a decision by Jaworski not to prosecute Nixon might set a precedent on which other prosecutors could rely if they wanted to avoid prosecuting important public officials.

So, although Jaworski has broad power — including, as a practical matter, the power to decide not to prosecute Nixon — he might be reluctant to take such a step on his own.

Paul C. Warnke, former general counsel to the Defense Department and assistant secretary of defense, was among observers who said that the central question was whether a pardon or immunity for Nixon would bring the criminal law into disrepute.

It is a question that perhaps cannot be answered right now, given the emotions generated by Nixon's resignation. It can be postponed by delaying the Watergate cover-up trial a few months, as some of the defendants have asked.

More than that, though, it is a question that involves, as Warnke put it, "determining the national character." And so, to him and to some others as well, it is a job for the President, not the prosecutor.

presidential stature. In the last thirty years, four of the seven vice presidents have succeeded to the presidency, but these days the vice president is, or should be, more than a spare tire kept around in case of an accident.

The truth is that the modern presidency is too much for any one man. To be chief executive, head of government and head of state, principal spokesman, secular preacher, skipper of the speed and direction of the ship, among other things, will force him either to share responsibility or pass a law inventing the 48-hour day. This is especially true of a man like Ford who keeps his doors open and almost enjoys listening to gabby fools.

Also, there is nothing in the modern trend of picking presidents from Capitol Hill to prove that senators and congressmen make good administrators. They are accustomed to handling small staffs and talking a lot, and going for a beer or a game of golf when they feel like it.

A good case can be made, therefore, for making the vice president an assistant president, with far more responsibility than any vice president has had in the past. During the last world war, Winston Churchill kept over-all control of his cabinet but split it in two and put Sir John Anderson in charge as his deputy for home front affairs, while he concentrated on the conduct of the war.

The presidential and parliamentary systems are not the same, but there is nothing in our system that forbids a similar division. The vice president's work is what the president says it is. Ike had an assistant president in Sherman Adams, and turned Vice President Nixon into an unguided missile, whizzing around the country attacking the wicked Democrats. This relieved Ike of the dirty political work, but turned Nixon into a noisy and disruptive partisan — a role that destroyed him in the end.

... knowledge of sewers and dreams . . .

The urgent war now for America is on the home front. The President recognized this by his emphasis on inflation, and by the need for consultation and cooperation to deal with it, and he has the character and experience on The Hill to deal with it. A vice president, assisting the president in the White House, with knowledge of the world, and the executive experience and political savvy to see that the president's decisions are carried out by the departments and agencies — no mean job — could not only share his executive burdens but relieve him of the social burdens of giving and listening to elegant toasts with visiting dignitaries while his mind is on something more important.

This may be the best argument for Nelson Rockefeller as vice president. He has always been a good, durable, steel-belted tire, accustomed to the pot-holes in New York City's roads, but he is also that rare thing: a good administrator with a knowledge of sewers and dreams, and just old enough — his age is finally an advantage — not to be a threat to the President or anybody else.

Besides, to President Nixon's everlasting credit, he brought Kissinger into the government on Nelson Rockefeller's recommendation, and the relationships between Ford and Kissinger go back a long way to the days when Ford attended Kissinger's seminars at Harvard.

So there is a chance now for Ford to decide: to field the best foreign policy and domestic policy team available, and at the same time bring the governorships and the states into his new administration. The President has stated the objectives: peace and strength at home and abroad; "communication, conciliation, compromise and cooperation."

prepare such a dinner.

I saw a huge flock of blackbirds swoop into a corn field last evening. It is the time of year when the birds begin to gather in flocks for their annual trip to the South. They will spend a few more weeks eating and adding fat to their bodies for the strenuous flight, but as far as their singing and bird life in Nebraska are concerned, it is over for another year.

With the exception of the doves and the Bob White that call from the hedge row, the gay notes of bird song cannot be heard. How silent the fields and tree-tops become now. Perhaps we notice their activity and song more because we are surrounded by many trees. The long lane and the orchard provide an ideal place for the Bob White to take cover.

One farmer who has ninety head of cows and calves found his pasture conditions to be critical so he has his cattle in our pasture now.

We sold our cattle last spring and The Farmer never bought more to replace them when the prices soared. Consequently the wild prairie land grew tall and lank as did the pasture-land grasses. Since no animals have grazed them, there is an ample growth to sustain a herd of cows for a short time.

It sounds strange to hear the bawl of cows and calves once more and see them standing in a ring about the tank, switching their tails as they come into the lot for a drink.

Ninety head of cattle can nibble a goodly portion of grass in a short time. Perhaps later there will be other fields that can provide feed for them.

I haven't seen as many rabbits about the yard as I usually have in past years. Perhaps it is because I had no garden for them to nibble on this year.

Usually I would see them hopping about the front yard, around the fringes of the garden or along the lane.

I saw one during the hot spell stretched out full length by the side of the road one day, resting in the shade of a small weed. Apparently it was too hot to hop for it remained quiet as I passed with the car. No doubt it was certain also no dog would give chase on a day such as that with temperatures above the hundred-degree mark.

If the weed had been bigger, I might have stopped and said, "Move over, Brother Rabbit. We humans have had it, too."

When I returned later in the day, the rabbit was gone. He must have needed a bigger weed.

"DID I DREAM IT ALL, KITTY, OR WAS IT REAL?"

County Taxes In Line

While no one welcomes a tax increase, there is little basis for criticism of the Lancaster County Board in its approximate two-mill hike in the levy for 1974-75. The two mills equals $2 per assessed valuation. Your assessed valuation is supposed to be approximately one-third of your actual market value.

Thus, the actual increase to the average home-owner in Lincoln as a result of the county budget will be somewhere around $15 a year. Now, $15 is $15 and when it's in taxes, it seems like even more, but that's a little more than $1 a month.

Additionally, the tax rate for the county, while higher than last year, is still a mill lower than it was in 1972-73. And the 1974-75 levy is still 3 1/2 mills under the county's legal limit of 14.28 mills.

The county in its new budget has not gone hog-wild. At least half of this coming year's increase will be found in the institution of a new personnel plan, something the county has badly needed for a goodly number of years.

This will help make county salaries competitive and put county personnel matters on a professional level. It is being done, too, in cooperation with the city for the sake of greater efficiency and service.

The county board has had to provide for capital outlays in planning for higher mileage reimbursement schedules and for a doubling (by state law) of various court operational expenses.

Some $1.5 million in federal revenue-sharing funds will be plowed by the county into a wide range of mostly human services or social welfare programs. But some of this money, too, will substantially improve county road and highway operations.

Some may argue that such funds should have been used, in effect, to reduce the county's mill levy but such is not their purpose.

And of course, all county departments have to contend with inflation in the conduct of their daily affairs. We know that the economic times are not easy on anyone but we do not see the county budget as out of line in that connection or excessive in any other regard.

Have We Been Suckered?

Everyone knows what a "gut feeling" is. It is the opinion you have of something or someone that comes from a simple subjective look at things. It is the feeling you have more or less regardless of the facts.

It isn't very scientific but it often seems to prove to be the truth. And whether it is right or wrong, we are often slow to change such an attitude.

In the case of petroleum and the gasoline shortage, the gut feeling of a lot of people is that we have been suckered by the big oil companies. There is a feeling that there has been a lot of manipulation of production and distribution in an effort to arrive at higher retail prices and, thereby, bigger oil company profits.

While some may see it in just the opposite light, a recent statement by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon will add to the sucker feeling. He says that conditions of production and the market place are now such that the price of gasoline at the pumps could drop six to seven cents a gallon in the coming months.

That raises skepticism simply because it is such a radical departure from all that we have been led to believe. We have no doubt at all that industry people could explain the situation in such a way that it is perfectly logical and removes all doubts about the economic integrity of the oil companies, but we are not sure everyone would buy their case.

Further, the oil companies spend millions on advertising to tell the American people about the need for profits to support further exploration. Then, we learn of Federal Energy Administration displeasure of Mobil Oil's intent to use hundreds of millions of dollars of its profits to acquire the holding company for Montgomery Ward.

Maybe the whole business makes sense but the pattern of things is most bewildering. Added to all the above is the speculation that we will have fuel oil shortages again this winter.

If the price of gasoline goes down and fuel oil becomes scarce, the consternation of the American people will be all the greater.

The Unity Problem

WASHINGTON — Every editorialist and stump speaker in the country will ring the changes from this day forward on the need for unity around President Ford. While this is a fine sentiment coinciding with the mood of the country, for the President himself achieving unity is a problem that will not be solved by rhetoric.

Above all within his own party, severely wounded by the Nixon scandals, with most of the White House aides either in jail or about to be tried, he must move quickly and surely to try to pull together the faltering elements of the fragmented minority. With the congressional election only three months off, every poll has shown the GOP with heavy losses across the country.

The resignation of Richard Nixon and the accession of Gerald Ford may prove an antidote. Certainly Ford in the past six months has worked like a beaver helping Republican candidates in district after district. How effective this will be only the returns in November will show.

Unity will turn above all on Ford's choice of a vice president. This is not a measure merely of the importance of the office although five vice presidents in this century have inherited the No. 1 position. But it is a symbol of how diverse elements can be brought together in a common front.

The front-runner in this interval is said to be former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. That is an invitation to the ultra-conservatives to start firing. They would like to bring Rockefeller down and substitute one on whom they look favorably. A candidate from this quarter is Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Elected four times governor of what was until recently the most populous state in the Union, Rockefeller has a long background in foreign policy and administration at the national level. From the point of view of proven experience, he has been the best qualified of anyone in his party for the office of chief executive.

Yet the right wing has never forgiven him for, in their terminology, his liberalism. This is a myopic delusion. He is a moderate, moving more recently to a center position, who has had of necessity to come to grips with the problems of galloping urbanism.

In the rallying cry for unity, Ford's position will inevitably be compared with that of two other vice presidents who inherited the office at a moment of stress and strain.

Calvin Coolidge succeeded upon the death of Warren Harding in the wake of the Teapot Dome scandals. With no 25th Amendment, there was no vice president until the Republican convention in 1924 picked Charles G. Dawes, an Illinois banker. The Coolidge-Dawes ticket won by a landslide. In that year, however, the Democratic Party was hopelessly divided in a quarrel between North and South.

Harry Truman, written off as a loser in 1948 by the liberal left, picked Sen. Alben Barkley of Kentucky as his vice president. Contrary to the polls, the prognosticators Truman and Barkley won in November.

Ford's choice of a vice president is hardly analogous. Under the 25th Amendment, it is his personal selection. Rockefeller has strong support in Congress, one of his staunch backers being Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott who held virtually the full Pennsylvania delegation for him in 1968.

That he could be confirmed by the Senate and the House, although a few right-wingers might dissent as left-center Democrats voted "no" on Ford's confirmation, is certain.

Rockefeller as vice president would have a distinct advantage in foreign policy. Out of years of experience in Latin-America, first in World War II and later as a philanthropist, he has an encyclopedic knowledge of the region. After the false starts and abrupt stops in Latin-American relations, Rockefeller could be counted on for creative imagination and wise counsel in that area.

In his first remarks after Nixon's resignation, President Ford pledged to keep Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in office, at the same time giving him high praise. Kissinger was associated for many years with Rockefeller in preparation of a series of reports on national defense and he worked hard for the then governor of New York in the 1968 campaign.

They would be an invaluable team in support of the new President confronting a troubled world.

Ninety head of cattle can nibble a goodly portion of grass in a short time. Perhaps later there will be other fields that can provide feed for them.

I haven't seen as many rabbits about the yard as I usually have in past years. Perhaps it is because I had no garden for them to nibble on this year.

Usually I would see them hopping about the front yard, around the fringes of the garden or along the lane.

I saw one during the hot spell stretched out full length by the side of the road one day, resting in the shade of a small weed. Apparently it was too hot to hop for it remained quiet as I passed with the car. No doubt it was certain also no dog would give chase on a day such as that with temperatures above the hundred-degree mark.

If the weed had been bigger, I might have stopped and said, "Move over, Brother Rabbit. We humans have had it, too."

When I returned later in the day, the rabbit was gone. He must have needed a bigger weed.

Nebraska Wheat Growers Urged To Treat For Smut

Holdrege (AP) — Holly Hodge, president of Nebraska Wheat Growers Association, Wednesday urged all wheat growers in the state to treat their wheat seed supplies for smut before fall planting.

Hodge said treatment of seed supplies in recent years has fallen off because of the "mercury scare," but that substitutes are now available.

Hodge said there are a number of reasons to take the precautions, including the loss of overseas markets.

Approximately 70-to-80 per cent of the Nebraska wheat crop leaves the state, much of it going to foreign countries, according to Hodge.

Hodge said China is a good example of how exports might be affected by blight, because the country has a zero tolerance to TCK smut, and that Chinese officials will not allow imports of wheat bearing the TCK strain.

Hodge noted that Dr. Louis Palmer, University of Nebraska plant pathologist, has said there is no TCK smut in Nebraska at present.

However, there has been some "stinking smut" reported, according to Palmer.

Hodge also pointed out that smut causes production losses that cost farmers a lot of money.

The smut losses in Nebraska during 1973 were estimated at one per cent of the crop, or 94,000 bushels, Hodge said.

Hodge also explained that smut treatment can prevent seedling blights, which can cause serious losses to farmers.

Hodge suggested that wheat farmers contact their county extension agents to find out which treatments are suitable in their areas.

Crop Spraying Plane Crashes

SUMMERFIELD, Kan. (AP)—A crop spraying plane crashed in Pawnee County, Nebraska, about one-half mile north of here Wednesday during a rainstorm.

Chuck Thomas, the pilot, was treated at a Pawnee County hospital.

Kansas Mishap Kills Nebraskan

BELLEVILLE, Kan. (AP) — Leonard J. Habrich, 50, Bruning, Neb., was killed early Wednesday when his car collided with a tractor-trailer truck north of Belleville and just south of the Nebraska line.

Trooper Kenneth Cook of the Kansas Highway Patrol reported that Habrich apparently was on the wrong side of the road when he collided head-on with the north bound truck, loaded with oil barrels.

The car wedged under the truck and both vehicles landed in the ditch beside U.S. 81.

The driver of the truck, Tommy Estell, 34, Yukon, Okla., was admitted to Republic County Hospital in Belleville.

McCook Man Fatally Struck

McCook (AP) — A 74-year-old McCook man was killed Tuesday night when the State Patrol said he was struck by a car about three miles west of McCook on Route 6.

He was identified as Ruben Richard Munsell.

The patrol said he was struck by a westbound car driven by Josephine Petersen, 55, of Stratton.

The death raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 235 as compared with 246 a year ago.

New Milo Variety Makes Good Crop

Ted Smith of Lincoln is a happy man and he is in agriculture. With the drought and low cattle prices he may be the only happy farm businessman in the state, but he has a good reason.

Last spring Smith distributed a small amount of a new variety of sorghum seed which is about seven days earlier than full season types.

These fields are now fully headed out with hard green milo berries that will certainly ripen into a very good crop.

Smith estimated that his customers have about 1,200 acres of the variety planted in southeast Nebraska on dry land. Since this is the first year any farmers have planted the variety nobody knows what it would do in a normal year, but in dry 1974 it is a winner.

Good News: Dry Beans May Set Crop Record

There was some good news for farmers and consumers in the federal crop report issued Monday but nobody noticed it.

We will have plenty of beans to eat in 1975. It seems that the national dry bean crop is expected to reach a record of 20.9 million 100-pound sacks.

Nebraska, the nation's top dry bean producer, will have a crop 19% larger than last year.

Farm prices for dry beans are now averaging $30.50 per hundredweight, double last year's price but well under the $50 a bag price that prevailed during the winter.

There was some more bad news in the fine print at the bottom of the crop report. Hay production in Nebraska will be the lowest since 1948. Alfalfa weevils reduced the early cuttings of alfalfa and drought hurt the later cuttings. Late rains might aid forage production enough to provide some badly needed late harvests.

Home Mortgage Rate May Halt Nebraska Loans

Omaha (AP) — Processing of FHA and VA home mortgages may be halted in Nebraska because the government has raised the maximum interest rate to 9.5%.

Loan officials said Wednesday a special session of the legislature would be necessary to lift the state's 9% usury limit on home mortgages.

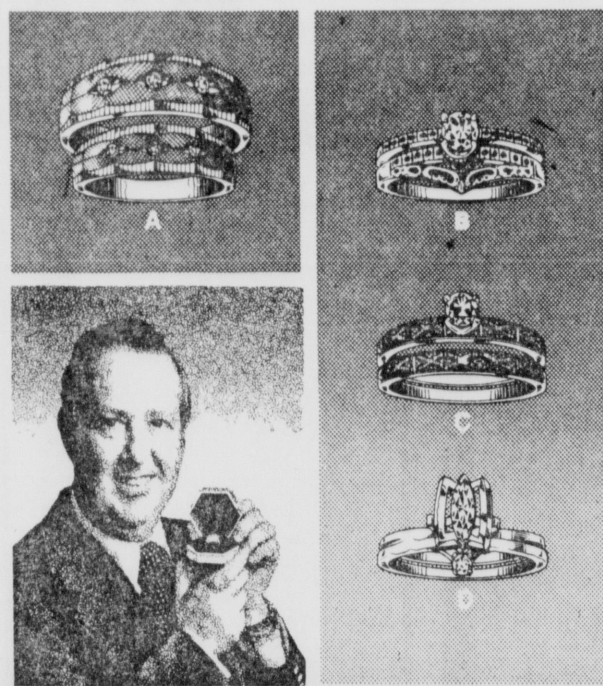

If the usury limit stays, major sources of mortgage money to home buyers will dry up, they said.

Robert Root, executive vice president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Omaha, said that the new rate will force savings and loans to charge additional discount points at the time of sale to make the yield of loans sufficiently high so the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. will buy them.

When the corporation buys a mortgage, the savings and loan can then use that money to make another loan, Root said.

Robbery Suspect Sought

Fremont (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation and other law officers searched Wednesday for a suspect in the robbery Tuesday of the First State Bank here of close to $23,000.

The loss figure came from Jim Moore, president of the bank.

Fremont police said witnesses had put together a composite of the suspect, but officers said he was still being sought late Wednesday.

A stolen car used in the robbery was found in downtown Fremont Tuesday.

Special Agent in Charge of the Omaha FBI office, Ronald L. Maley, said the robber may have had a female accomplice.

Bank president Jim Moore said it was the first holdup in the bank's 18-year history.

Chief Cashier John Stohs said the man entered the bank, produced a small pistol and ordered a teller to hand over the money.

The bandit then moved to another teller and repeated the same, procedure, Stohs said.

When a third cash drawer was found to be locked, Stohs said, the man ordered the money from the drive-up window turned over, then left carrying the three boxes.

Auxiliary Teller At UNL Okayed

State Banking Director Henry Ley has approved installation of a detached auxiliary teller facility at the University of Nebraska.

The facility will be in the Nebraska Union Building at 14th and R Sts.

The Gateway Bank will operate the auxiliary teller facility.

Plant To Close

New York (UPI) — Liggett & Myers Inc. announced that the Cleveland plant of its Allen Products pet foods division will close Aug. 31. The company said high operating costs and the cost of projected pollution control regulations forced the decision.

Police Still Probing Alliance Boy's Death

Alliance (AP) — Authorities here are continuing their investigation into the death of a 4-year-old Alliance youth who died late Monday afternoon.

Box Butte County Atty. Paul Empson, who is also the acting county coroner, said autopsy results on the body of John Edward Moyer indicated that the boy died of "asphyxia due to aspiration of gastric content."

The child was found unconscious on his bed with two pillows over his face, according to Empson.

Empson said the boy's father, Harold Moyer, made the discovery, and that immediate attempts by police officers to revive the child failed.

Empson said the child's mother, Anne Moyer, was rushed to the local hospital for treatment of apparent self-inflicted wrist lacerations, and that she was later transferred to a Scottsbluff hospital.

The case is being treated as a "homicide," Empson said.

Late Tuesday, Empson said charges would probably be filed within a week after the investigation is completed.

Auxiliary Teller At UNL Okayed

State Banking Director Henry Ley has approved installation of a detached auxiliary teller facility at the University of Nebraska.

The facility will be in the Nebraska Union Building at 14th and R Sts.

The Gateway Bank will operate the auxiliary teller facility.

Plant To Close

New York (UPI) — Liggett & Myers Inc. announced that the Cleveland plant of its Allen Products pet foods division will close Aug. 31. The company said high operating costs and the cost of projected pollution control regulations forced the decision.

Omaha FBI office, Ronald L. Maley, said the robber may have had a female accomplice.

Bank president Jim Moore said it was the first holdup in the bank's 18-year history.

Chief Cashier John Stohs said the man entered the bank, produced a small pistol and ordered a teller to hand over the money.

The bandit then moved to another teller and repeated the same, procedure, Stohs said.

When a third cash drawer was found to be locked, Stohs said, the man ordered the money from the drive-up window turned over, then left carrying the three boxes.

Police Still Probing Alliance Boy's Death

Alliance (AP) — Authorities here are continuing their investigation into the death of a 4-year-old Alliance youth who died late Monday afternoon.

Box Butte County Atty. Paul Empson, who is also the acting county coroner, said autopsy results on the body of John Edward Moyer indicated that the boy died of "asphyxia due to aspiration of gastric content."

The child was found unconscious on his bed with two pillows over his face, according to Empson.

Empson said the boy's father, Harold Moyer, made the discovery, and that immediate attempts by police officers to revive the child failed.

Empson said the child's mother, Anne Moyer, was rushed to the local hospital for treatment of apparent self-inflicted wrist lacerations, and that she was later transferred to a Scottsbluff hospital.

The case is being treated as a "homicide," Empson said.

Late Tuesday, Empson said charges would probably be filed within a week after the investigation is completed.

Saunders Sheriff Investigation Set

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wahoo — A public hearing has been called by the Saunders County Board of Supervisors to determine whether Sheriff Joe Divis' manner of endorsing uncollected tax warrants constitutes "willful neglect of duty."

The hearing is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Friday. It was called after receipt of a legal opinion, prepared at the board's request by County Atty. Robert Sullivan, holding that Divis' method of endorsing the returned "distress warrants" does not comply with the law.

State law provides that a sheriff's endorsement of a returned distress warrant must indicate one of three things: that the tax has been collected, or "upon diligent search" no property could be found on which to levy, or that the delinquent taxpayer has filed an affidavit that he is unable to pay by reason of poverty.

Divis instead has been returning some warrants with the recommendation that they be turned over to the county attorney for prosecution.

Divis, a Democrat running for reelection in November, says he believes the law is being selectively enforced for political reasons. He declines to say who he believes is behind the calling of the hearing.

Required by Law

State law requires county supervisors to call such a hearing if a sheriff fails to make legal return of distress warrants. If the board finds evidence of "willful neglect of duty," it must, under penalty of law, initiate procedures to remove the sheriff from office.

Divis, however, says his two predecessors in office endorsed warrants the same way without any action being taken. Sheriffs in other counties do the same as well, he says.

"It seems kind of odd that this is being done just before election when it wasn't done before in all these years," said Divis, a former state fire marshal. "It definitely looks like it is political."

Marching Band May Be Back At Peru College

Peru (AP) — After an absence of more than 15 years, the Bobcat Marching Band of Peru State College may be back on the gridiron this autumn.

Dr. David Edris, a new member of the school's music department, says he plans to reactivate the band during a clinic, which is to begin next Monday.

Edris said he is looking for musicians in other musical groups on campus.

The 90 blue and white uniforms for the band were donated to Peru State by Plattsmouth High School, after the Plattsmouth band got new uniforms.

The uniforms will be altered to fit the Peru State band members, Edris said.

Prospective band members will have to supply their own white shoes.

Backing up Edris' determination to field a band this year, the school has ordered a new set of drums.

Office Understaffed

According to Divis, the problem is that his office is so understaffed that it cannot possibly complete all the collections.

"I've asked them for more help," he said, referring to the supervisors. "You'd have to have somebody do nothing but collect taxes, and he'd have to work day and night during the few months we have to collect them. In larger counties, they get two years to collect them."

Some of the delinquent taxpayers make partial payments, he said. Others "promise to pay and don't come to the door next time. You beat on their door and don't find anyone."

"I treat people the way I want to be treated," Divis said. "I figure the sheriff's office is to help people. This is why I felt by going through the process of law, and the county attorney calling them into court, we'd get some action."

Divis said he investigated the statutes long ago and concluded that making such a recommendation in his endorsement was all right. "I didn't think I'd done anything wrong, and I still don't," he said.

Divis says he believes people should be required to pay their personal property taxes when they get their license plates, "and there wouldn't be any problem."

The sheriff said he and his staff often work weekends and evenings as well as their regular shifts when necessary and that he hasn't taken his vacation for four years.

"I've collected more taxes than the two previous sheriffs," Divis said, including taxes he inherited from them. "We've made more arrests and uncovered more crime since I've been in here than we have for a long time."

"I have nothing to hide," he concluded. "I still stand on my record."

The supervisor said the board has informally — but "pretty much" unanimously — endorsed Divis' November opponent, Republican Robert Schense. Divis soundly defeated Schense for the sheriff's position in 1970.

But it is coincidental, the supervisor said, that the board's action comes just three months before the election.

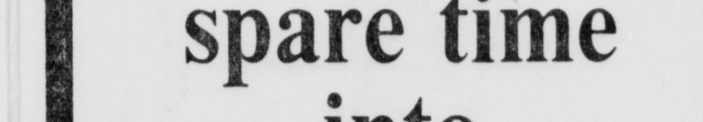

Divis could be right, the supervisor conceded, that the two previous sheriffs endorsed warrants the same way Divis does. "But that doesn't excuse anybody if we can better ourselves," he said.

Backing up Edris' determination to field a band this year, the school has ordered a new set of drums.

Saunders County Board Chairman George Rezac of Valparaiso refused to answer questions about the hearing. Another supervisor, who wished not to be identified, said the seven-member board is "probably half and half" in party affiliation but was unanimous in calling for the hearing.

"We are really unhappy with the way things are going down there," he said, claiming that Divis is "slow on collecting delinquent taxes . . . I like Joe, but Joe has got to do his job." The problem, he said, is "nothing serious — just a lot of these little things."

The supervisor said the board has informally — but "pretty much" unanimously — endorsed Divis' November opponent, Republican Robert Schense. Divis soundly defeated Schense for the sheriff's position in 1970.

But it is coincidental, the supervisor said, that the board's action comes just three months before the election.

Marriage Risks Rise With Age

By ROBERT PETERSON
The marital woods are full of hazards for the gullible of all ages. But the dangers increase when the years have passed and loneliness causes folks to cast caution to the winds in their eager quest for remarriage.

This column could quote from a dozen letters received in recent months on this theme, but the following describes compactly the trap into which some older women fall:

"Right now I must be saddest person on earth," writes a 62-year-old woman in Denver. "Six months ago I was the happiest woman anywhere, for after five years of widowhood I met a handsome stranger at the supermarket. I don't know how I ever fell for his line but it was sweet music indeed having a fine-looking 69-year-old widower say he'd fallen in love with me at first sight.

"My two children didn't like him, and my lawyer and minister were skeptical. When I mentioned the children's attitude, he said they were more interested in my estate than my happiness and that they'd never accept anyone in their father's place. This seemed reasonable at the time.

"He was apologetic about his old flivver beside my new Chevrolet, and frankly admitted that he'd been bankrupt once and lost the home he had owned. He dressed well and said he had 'some personal income,' but blamed his late wife for squandering much of what he had accumulated. I felt very sorry for him.

"Well, I slipped off and married this man while my oldest son was still investigating him. We drove off to the mountains in my car for the honeymoon and he paid the bills. But on the way home he admitted he had just his Social Security income and less than $1,000 in the bank.

"I wouldn't have minded our financial disparity if he'd continued to be the gracious, courteous gentleman he was during our courtship. But he changed within a month. He no longer bothered about his appearance, gave me no more compliments, and seemed to like nothing more than staying in his room drinking beer and watching TV. When I ask how he could change like this, he just says all folks change after they're married. He also keeps reminding me we're legally married and I'm stuck with him. Yesterday he said, 'You wanted a husband and you've got one now, so quit nagging me.'

"The report my son got shows that he worked as a supply room and storeroom attendant in several different drug stores, whereas he told me he had been 'in pharmaceutical work.'

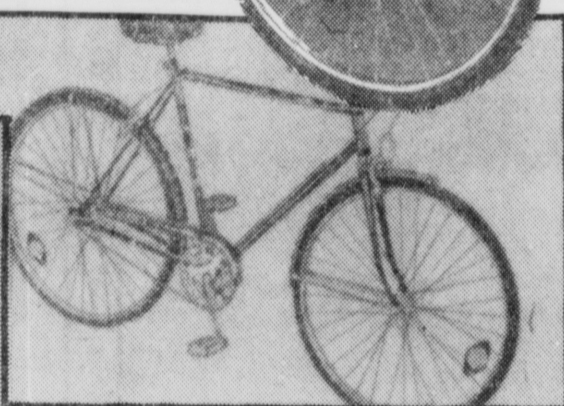

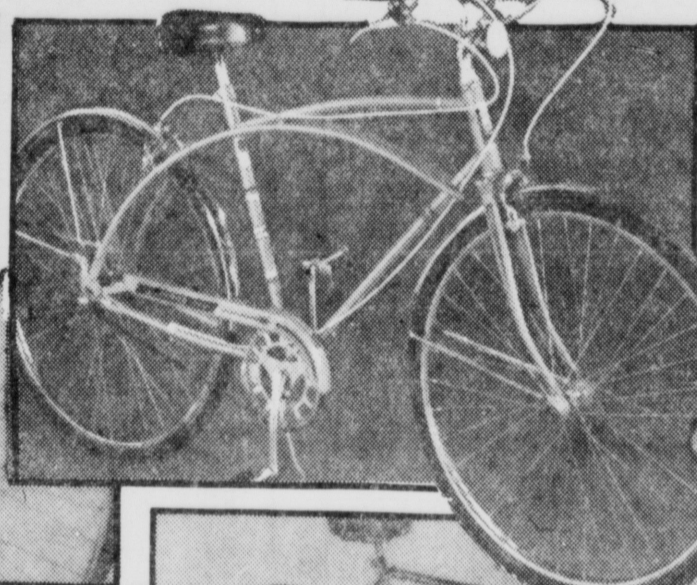

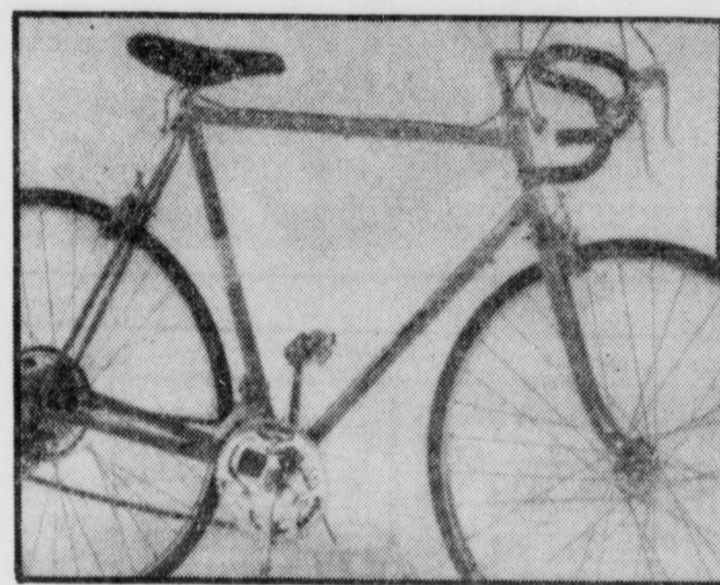

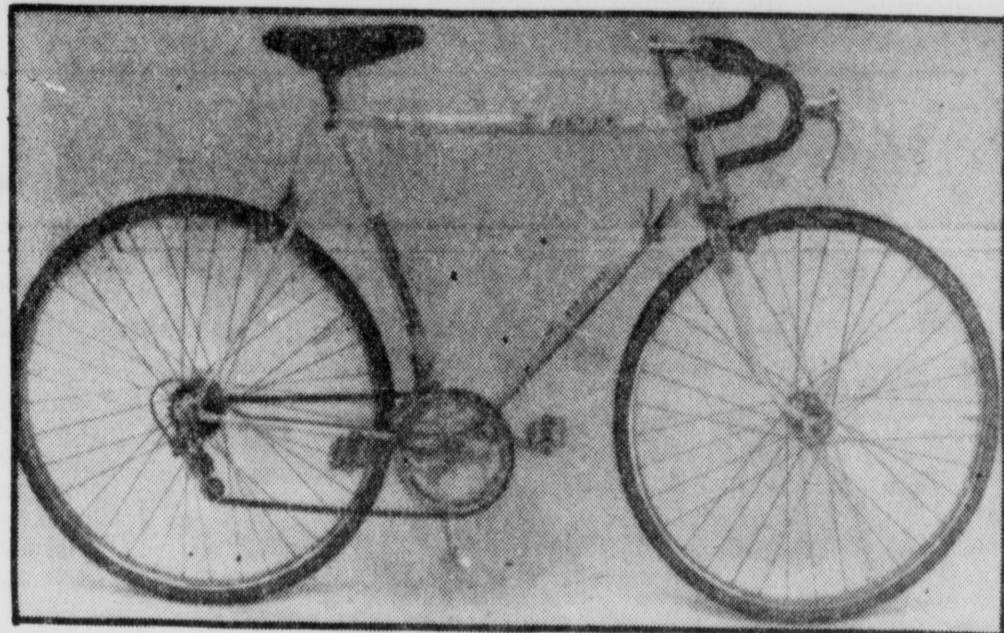

Worst of all, he doesn't even pretend to love me and says he could embarrass me publicly — and would take half of what I've got as this is a community property state. So please print this letter so more women won't fall for the first man they meet who flatters them, and mess up their later years as I've done."

We're glad to pass along this woman's warnings. But we find ourselves thinking that women who have reached their 60s have better judgment than was shown in this case. With experience we should learn that many people have split personalities. They can appear gracious, courteous, and charming in one situation, and mean, deceitful, and unattractive at other times. That's why those seeking marriage should be on the alert to learn as much as possible about the personality and character of any suitor before being led to the altar.

Life After 40:

Marriage
Risks Rise
With Age

By ROBERT PETERSON
The marital woods are full of hazards for the gullible of all ages. But the dangers increase when the years have passed and loneliness causes folks to cast caution to the winds in their eager quest for remarriage.
This column could quote from a dozen letters received in recent months on this theme, but the following describes compactly the trap into which some older women fall:

"Right now I must be saddest person on earth," writes a 62-year-old woman in Denver. "Six months ago I was the happiest woman anywhere, for after five years of widowhood I met a handsome stranger at the supermarket. I don't know how I ever fell for his line but it was sweet music indeed having a fine-looking 69-year-old widower say he'd fallen in love with me at first sight.

"My two children didn't like him, and my lawyer and minister were skeptical. When I mentioned the children's attitude, he said they were more interested in my estate than my happiness and that they'd never accept anyone in their father's place. This seemed reasonable at the time.

"He was apologetic about his old flivver beside my new Chevrolet, and frankly admitted that he'd been bankrupt once and lost the home he had owned. He dressed well and said he had 'some personal income,' but blamed his late wife for squandering much of what he had accumulated. I felt very sorry for him.

"Well, I slipped off and married this man while my oldest son was still investigating him. We drove off to the mountains in my car for the honey moon and he paid the bills. But on the way home he admitted he had just his Social Security income and less than $1,000 in the bank.

"I wouldn't have minded our financial disparity if he'd continued to be the gracious, courteous gentleman he was during our courtship. But he changed within a month. He no longer bothered about his appearance, gave me no more compliments, and seemed to like nothing more than staying in his room drinking beer and watching TV. When I ask how he could change like this, he just says all folks change after they're married. He also keeps reminding me we're legally married and I'm stuck with him. Yesterday he said, 'You wanted a husband and you've got one now, so quit nagging me.'

"The report my son got shows that he worked as a supply room and storeroom attendant in several different drug stores, whereas he told me he had been 'in pharmaceutical work.'

Worst of all, he doesn't even pretend to love me and says he could embarrass me publicly — and would take half of what I've got as this is a community property state. So please print this letter so more women won't fall for the first man they meet who flatters them, and mess up their later years as I've done."

We're glad to pass along this woman's warnings. But we find ourselves thinking that women who have reached their 60s have better judgment than was shown in this case. With experience we should learn that many people have split personalities. They can appear gracious, courteous, and charming in one situation, and mean, deceitful, and unattractive at other times. That's why those seeking marriage should be on the alert to learn as much as possible about the personality and character of any suitor before being led to the altar.

Normandy — A major summer sport of France is le piquenique. The picnic. All along the roads of Normandy, the French were having picnics. People who did not have cars, or did not want to get on the road, were having picnics in their front yards.

The sun has broken through the Channel overcast. And it was as fine a picnic day as you could wish.

In Paris, we rented a little Renault. It has a switch for the horn. We have a waaaah-waaaah country horn. A gentle toot-toot city horn.

We have four light switches. At night the French drive with a dim beam that we would call a parking light. You have to have eyes like a cat.

You do not use your horn at night. You flip the light switch onto the next highest beam.

On the highway, we use a high-light light. We switch down on passing.

Most of the time I am so busy with switches, I need a co-pilot.

The way you go about the piquenique is like this. You look for a place marked charcuterie.

A charcuterie is a kind of delicatessen. It is run by a man and lady who think it is a kind of bureau of romance.

"You are going to make the piquenique?" he cried. "Ah, tres joliel!"

"This is my daughter," I said coldly. "How about a couple of ham sandwiches and a Coca Cola?"

The charcuterie man staggered as though I had struck him.

"Ah, no, no," he whispered. "Not the sandweech. To make the piquenique is serious."

He sold me some head cheese. He sold me a jar of olives. He sold me roast pork. A tube of Dijon mustard. A little can of salt. He advised me to go across the street and get the ordinary wine. It had an affluence not possessed by ordinary ordinary wine.

I went across the street and bought the affluent ordinary. I went to the boulangerie and got a three-foot stick of French bread.

We took off for the country. "This looks like an excellent spot," I said. It was near an apple orchard and a little stream ran down the pasture. "I wonder why nobody is here?"

We unpacked the piquenique. And I can tell you why nobody was there.

There was the biggest convention of yellow jackets I have ever seen.

We grabbed little pieces of head cheese and stuffed them into the French bread. I poured myself some wine and another glass of Coca Cola. Then we started running up and down the road.

The yellow jackets did not mind at all. They came zooming after us. Diving on the sandweeches.

And after awhile, though it was hot, we got in the car and rolled up the windows and finished the piquenique.

Finally we threw out the rest of the piquenique to the yellow jackets. And we drove off, toot-tooting our town horn. One of the most successful piqueniques you ever saw. If you happen to be a yellow jacket, that is.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

I once created a "Jinni Bottle." I had an artist draw it and label it, "one wish." This comes under the Neptune fantasy element. I had the drawing of the bottle framed. Theoretically, one could remove the cork from the bottle, make a wish and have the Jinni pop out and get busy making the request or wish come true. I had a wish recently and thought I would make use of my creation. I looked for Jinni, in my office, among papers and drawings, among picture frames, everywhere it might possibly be. But no Jinni, drawing or otherwise. Jinni is gone. This is the way with Neptune: hidden matters, the twelfth house, the illusion, the quietly maddening deception, the frustration of the lost article. My Jinni is gone the way of Neptune. I hope it will reappear. I copyrighted the creation but apparently Jinni doesn't want to be owned.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What had been settled proves otherwise. Means you have some revising to do. Persons who apparently were ready to cooperate seem to have second thoughts. The past comes alive. Associates are reluctant to let go of it. Stand tall for principles and keep your eyes open.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relatives, including brothers, sisters, seem determined to place added responsibility on your shoulders. Key is to seek creative solution. New approach, originality, independence are essential. Display ability to deal with slings and arrows.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Trust hunch, especially where money is concerned. Young persons could be making unreasonable demands. Aquarius, Leo persons are in picture. Emphasis is on payments, collections, dispersal of funds. Base decisions on facts, not wishful thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be aware of property values. One who promises appraisals, sales may not be capable of delivery. Have alternatives at hand. Sagittarius, Gemini persons could be instrumental in plans. Be a self-starter. Review requirements and take initiative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What has been delayed should now be brought up to date. Check behind the scenes. Work within group, organization. Adjust to restrictions. Examine evidence. Agree to meeting, conference which can result in working title, procedure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friends who offer financial advice may be sincere, even delectable — but misinformation seems to dominate. Know it and protect assets. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Be careful of what you ask for — you might get it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You remove loquacious only by creative action. Means you probably will have to take unorthodox course. Accent is on prestige, standing in community. Those in authority are reluctant to upset standard procedure. Turn on charm; utilize powers of friendly persuasion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much that occurs carries an aura of mystery, illusion. It is difficult to pin people down where definite decisions are concerned. Key now is to take subtle approach. Clandestine meeting could be on agenda. Keep communication lines open for long-distance call.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money affecting partner, mate, is featured. You come to terms with facts of life. The whisper of sweet nothings no longer will suffice. Get facts, reasons — find out the why of occurrences. Message will become increasingly clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Publicly, added recognition could be due. Aries, Libra persons are in picture. One who has authority to do so — may offer money incentive. Be positive about legal aspects. Check with knowledgeable individual. Steer clear of nebulous schemes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Confinement of temporary nature is indicated. Perhaps you will be visiting one who is hospitalized. Key now is to emphasize the positive, to chase gloom. You could be called upon to deliver talk or to represent organization at a convention.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar aspects are such that you tend to insist on your own way. Member of opposite sex could rebel. Key now is to be sensitive to emotional needs of loved ones. Otherwise, you might be in for a rude awakening.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural entertainer, possess sense of drama, have unusual voice, are attractive to opposite sex, are drawn to art and have an instinct for color and showmanship. September could be your most important month of 1974. Taurus, Libra individuals play significant roles in your life. You are warm, affectionate and impulsive. This is a year which sees you changing your lifestyle. If single, you marry. If married, there could be an addition to your family. You could also go into business for yourself.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
By SIDNEY OMARR
Forecast For Thursday

I once created a "Jinni Bottle," had an artist draw it and label it, "one wish." This comes under the Neptune fantasy element. I had the drawing of the bottle framed. Theoretically, one could remove the cork from the bottle, make a wish and have the Jinni pop out and get busy making the request or wish come true. I had a wish recently and thought I would make use of my creation. I looked for Jinni, in my office, among papers and drawings, among picture frames, everywhere it might possibly be. But no Jinni, drawing or otherwise. Jinni is gone. This is the way with Neptune; hidden matters, the twelfth house, the illusion, the quietly maddening deception, the frustration of the lost article. My Jinni is gone the way of Neptune. I hope it will reappear. I copyrighted the creation but apparently Jinni doesn't want to be owned.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What had been scolded proves otherwise. Means you have some revising to do. Persons who apparently were ready to co-operate seem to have second thoughts. The past comes alive. Associates are reluctant to let go of it. Stand tall for principles and keep your eyes open.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relatives, including brothers, sisters, seem determined to place added responsibility on your shoulders. Key is to seek creative solution. New approach, originality, independence are essential. Display ability to deal with slings and arrows.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Trust hunch, especially where money is concerned. Young person could be making unreasonable demands. Aquarius. Leo persons are in picture. Emphasis is on payments, collections, dispersal of funds. Base decisions on facts, not wishful thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be aware of property values. One who promises appraisals, sales may not be capable of delivery. Have alternatives in mind. Sagittarius. Gemini persons could be instrumental in plans. Be a self-starter. Renew requirements and initiatives.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What has been delayed should now be brought up to date. Check behind the scenes. Work within group, organization, adjust to restrictions. Examine evidence. Agree to meeting, conference which can result in working title, procedure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friends who offer financial advice may be sincere, even devious — but misinformation seems to dominate. Know it and protect assets. Gemini. Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Be careful of what you ask for — you might get it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You remove loquacity only by creative action. Means you probably will have to take unorthodox course. Accent is on prestige, standing in community. Those in authority are reluctant to upset standard procedure. Turn on charm; utilize powers of friendly persuasion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much that occurs carries an aura of mystery, illusion. It is difficult to pin people down where definite decisions are concerned. Key now is to take subtle approach. Clandestine meeting could be on agenda. Keep communication lines open for long-distance call.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money affecting partner, male is featured. You come to terms with facts of life. The whisper of sweet nothings no longer will suffice. Get facts, reasons — find out the why of occurrences. Message will become increasingly clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Publicity, added recognition could be due. Aries. Libra persons are in picture. One who has authority to do so — may offer money incentive. Be positive about legal aspects. Check with knowledgeable individual. Steer clear of nebulous schemes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Confinement of temporary nature is indicated. Perhaps you will be visiting one who is hospitalized. Key now is to emphasize the positive, to chase gloom. You could be called upon to deliver talk or to represent organization at a convention.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar aspects are such that you tend to insist on your own way. Member of opposite sex could rebel. Key now is to be sensitive to emotional needs of loved ones. Otherwise, you might be in for a rude awakening.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural entertainer, possess sense of drama, have unusual voice, are attractive to opposite sex, are drawn to art and have an instinct for color and showmanship. September could be your most important month of 1974. Taurus, Libra individuals play significant roles in your life. You are warm, affectionate and impulsive. Kearney Council Rejects Vote On Fluoridation

Kearney (AP) — The Kearney City Council Tuesday turned down a resolution to place the water fluoridation question on the November ballot by council action.

Councilman John Payne said Kearney's water supply already contains 63 parts per million of fluoride and noted that state law requires only 70 parts per million. The change, he observed, is "not as important as some people think."

The issue may yet appear on the ballot. Dr. Allen Banik reported that some 800 signatures have been obtained on an initiative petition. At least 1,600 validated signatures would be required to place the issue on the ballot.

Special Election In Scottsbluff

Scottsbluff (AP) — An initiative petition filed here may result in a special election before the November general election.

An initiative petition filed with the city clerk to force an election on mandatory fluoridation of the city water supply by Jan. 1, as dictated by the state, apparently contains enough signatures to force the election.

According to state law, the election must be held within 50 days of receipt of the petition, and that deadline would put the election in the first week of October.

Rudy Senft Rites Pending

Table Rock — Funeral services are pending at Wherry Mortuary in Tecumseh for Rudy Senft, 60, of Table Rock, who died Tuesday.

Mr. Senft had been editor of the Table Rock Argus since 1940.

Survivors include his wife, Martha; son, John, Lincoln; daughter, Mrs. Jim (June) Wright, Neola, Iowa, and five grandchildren.

Lord Snowdon To Visit Omaha

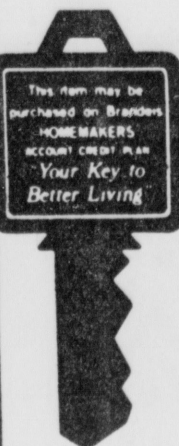

Omaha (AP) — Lord Snowdon, husband of England's Princess Margaret and brother-in-law of Queen Elizabeth II, will be in Omaha Oct. 15 to attend the opening of an art exhibition of his photographs at the Joslyn Art Museum.

The exhibit, titled "Assignments," offers examples of Snowdon's efforts over the past two decades.

ASCS Official To Visit Farms

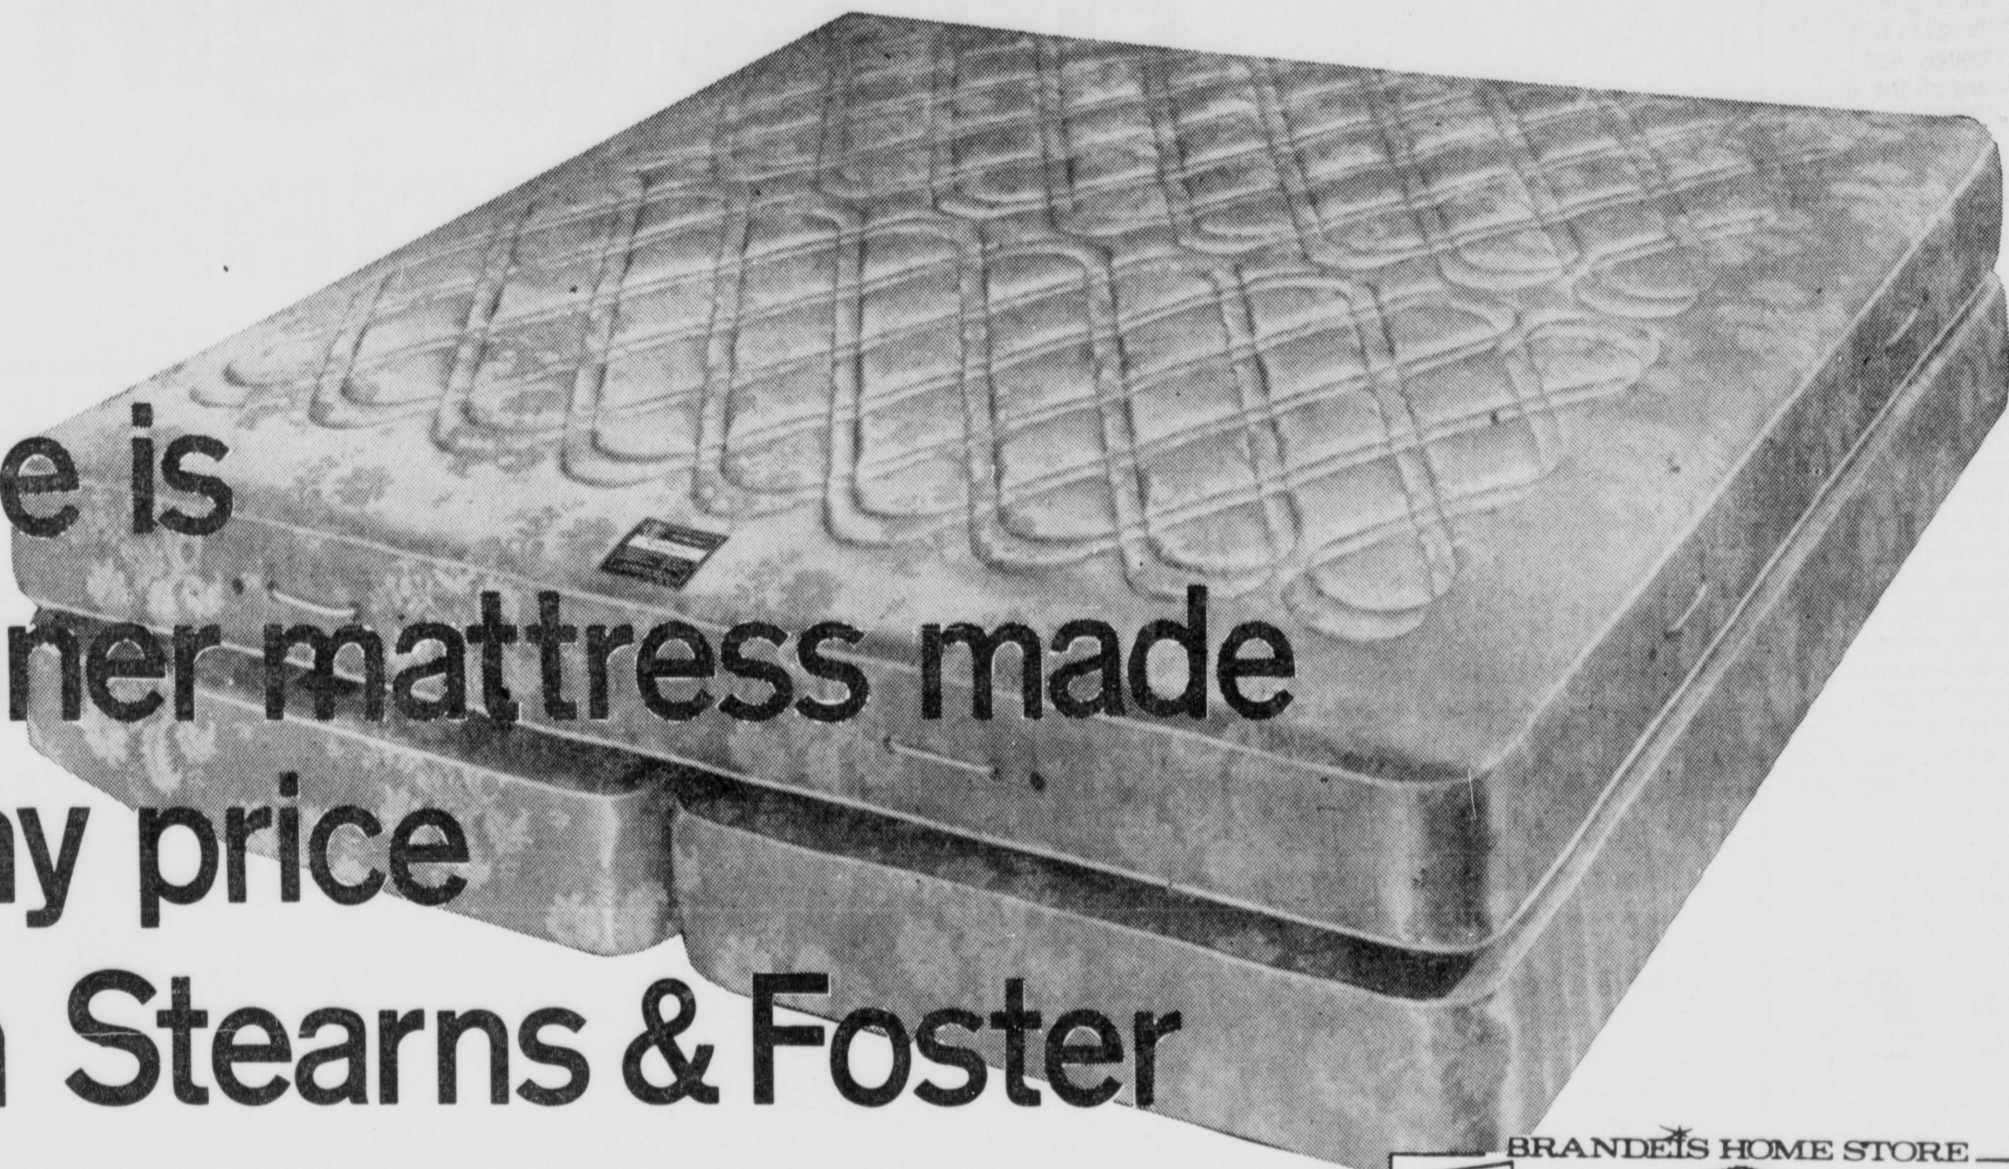

Glenn E. Weir, associate administrator of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, will be touring Nebraska's drought stricken farms Thursday and Friday, Rep. Charles Thone announced Wednesday.

On Thursday, Weir will visit farms in Washington and Dodge Counties. Friday he will be accompanied by Thone on a tour of farms in the Nebraska City area.

'The Kentucky Trace'

"The Kentucky Trace" (Knopf) is the kind of book that gives reviewers — well, anyway, this reviewer — headaches.

You hate to give it a hostile critique, because it was good enough to keep you fairly interested most of the way through. And there are so many worthless novels coming off the presses that you hesitate to include it with the worst of the lot.

Yet, on the other hand, when you hold it up against those all-too-occasional novels which, for one reason or another, reconfirm your faith in the art of writing, it pales by comparison.

So what do you do?

You talk about the author — Harriette Simpson Arnow — whose previous novels such as "The Dollmaker," and two social history books ("Seedtime On The Cumberland," and "The Flowering Of The Cumberland") brought their author some notoriety.

And you give some attention to the plot of the book in question.

You inform the potential reader that the time period he or she will be reading about is the era of the American Revolutionary War. The place — the Kentucky mountain country.

It is not a story of high adventure, you say. No dramatic battle scenes; no heroes made or broken.

Yet, every book needs a protagonist; a person who can act and/or be acted upon. An individual who will serve, in effect, as the vehicle whereby the author may make his or her perceptions known.

In this case, the perceptions are those held by Ms.

Arnow with regard to the effect the Revolutionary period had on common man — "the people" to use a hackneyed phrase.

The author's protagonist — one 27-year-old Leslie Collins — feels the tug of opposing loyalties engendered by the phenomenon of the American Revolution. Brought up in an English, very Anglican home, he has betrayed his heritage; given aid and comfort to the insurgents.

Yet, Loyalists are all about him — even within his own family. And he can bring himself to feel no real malice toward the "enemy."

Collins' gentleness of character is further manifested in virtually all of his behavior and thoughts. As he reflects on the inevitable westward expansion of the population struggling to make itself a nation, he muses about the manifold destruction it will bring in its wake: "The world was a fine place — except for the people in it, including himself."

The auxiliary characters created by the author provide the background against which character of the protagonist is defined. They are a motley bunch — a young Indian brave, two black servants, a backwoodsman.

On the whole, the story-line serves primarily as a means by which the characterization of Collins is carried out. And, as such it is of secondary importance.

The content of the book thus outlined, about all there is left to say is that the author's craftsmanship is adequate. At times, the narrative drags too slowly — you find yourself wondering when they're ever going to get that gunpowder made.

It is also probably worth mentioning that the story is too loosely strung together — too diffuse — to be called really compelling. There are many threads woven into the fabric, much "this and that" to muddle through as you try to search out the heart of the book.

"The Kentucky Trace" will win few, if any, awards. Yet, for those who are looking for some "light" reading — a good bedtime book that requires no mental gymnastics on the part of the reader — it just might fit the bill.

It's not what you could call a total waste of time. Included on the national best-seller list this week are the following books:

1. Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy, Le Carre
2. Watership Down, Adams
3. The Dogs Of War, Forsyth

Remember, They're His Kids Too

dear

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband, Jess, is getting married again. Jess and I have three children — a girl, eight, and two boys, 16 and 17.

The little dummy who Jess is marrying evidently has never heard that when a person has already had one big wedding (and Jess has), the second wedding should be small and simple. At least that's the way it is in Louisville, Kentucky.

Anyway, Jess wants to use my kids in a big church wedding. He's asked my daughter to be the flower girl, and the boys to be ushers. He never mentioned inviting me, which is just as well, because if I get invited I will not come.

Three questions: Does Jess have the right to use my kids at his wedding? Should he even be having a wedding like this? Should I send a gift?

COURIER-JOURNAL FAN

DEAR FAN: Of course Jess has the right to "use" your kids at his wedding. They're his kids, too. A bride who has been married before usually has a quiet, simple wedding, regardless of how many times the groom has been up to bat, so if this is her first, she's entitled. And if your sincere good wishes go along with a gift, send one. Otherwise, don't.

DEAR ABBY: Our 17-year-old daughter wears practically nothing but jeans. She spends hours on her hair, nails and makeup before going on a date, then she puts on jeans! (She has a closetful of lovely dresses.)

I keep telling her that I think boys like to see girls in dresses at least part of the time. She has a beautiful figure and looks nice in anything she wears.

She agrees to listen to you, and

OLD-FASHIONED MOTHER

DEAR OLD: It all depends on the occasion, and I'm sorry to say what the OTHER girls are wearing. More important, than looking "nice" is looking "like the others" in her crowd, so don't pressure her, Mother. Let her wear what she feels most comfortable in.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen this in your column, but I'm sure, I'm not the only woman with this problem.

For 23 years I've been married to an extremely handsome professional man. He is very well-built and wears his clothes like a fashion model. When he enters a room, everyone wants to know who he is. He is loaded with self-confidence (who wouldn't be?) and exudes charm, wit and personality.

My problem is the obvious amazement and disbelief I encounter when I am introduced as his wife. Some do a double take; others say: "REALLY?" They do everything but come right out and ask: "What on earth did he see in YOU?"

Although we are the same age, I look older. I'm blind as a bat without my glasses and can't wear contacts. I've fought weight all my life, due to a thyroid condition. Let's just say, a beauty I'm not. But I do have feelings. I've had people insinuate that ours must have been a shotgun wedding. (It wasn't.) Or that I must have had money. (I didn't.) But worst of all are the women who try to butter me up to get next to my husband.

Please put this in your column. I'd like to clip it out and hand it to the next woman who tells me what a "terrific" husband I have, and lets me know it's a miracle that I got him.

NOW Chapter Commends Chambers

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has been commended by the board of the Lincoln Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) as the only gubernatorial candidate who has come out in support of women's issues, according to a news release.

"We do not endorse political candidates," said DeLoris Clouse, Lincoln NOW president,

"but we would like to see all candidates take a stand and pursue with vigor the issues affecting women's lives in employment, credit, insurance, education, reproduction, child care and support, marriage and divorce laws and the Equal Rights Amendment."

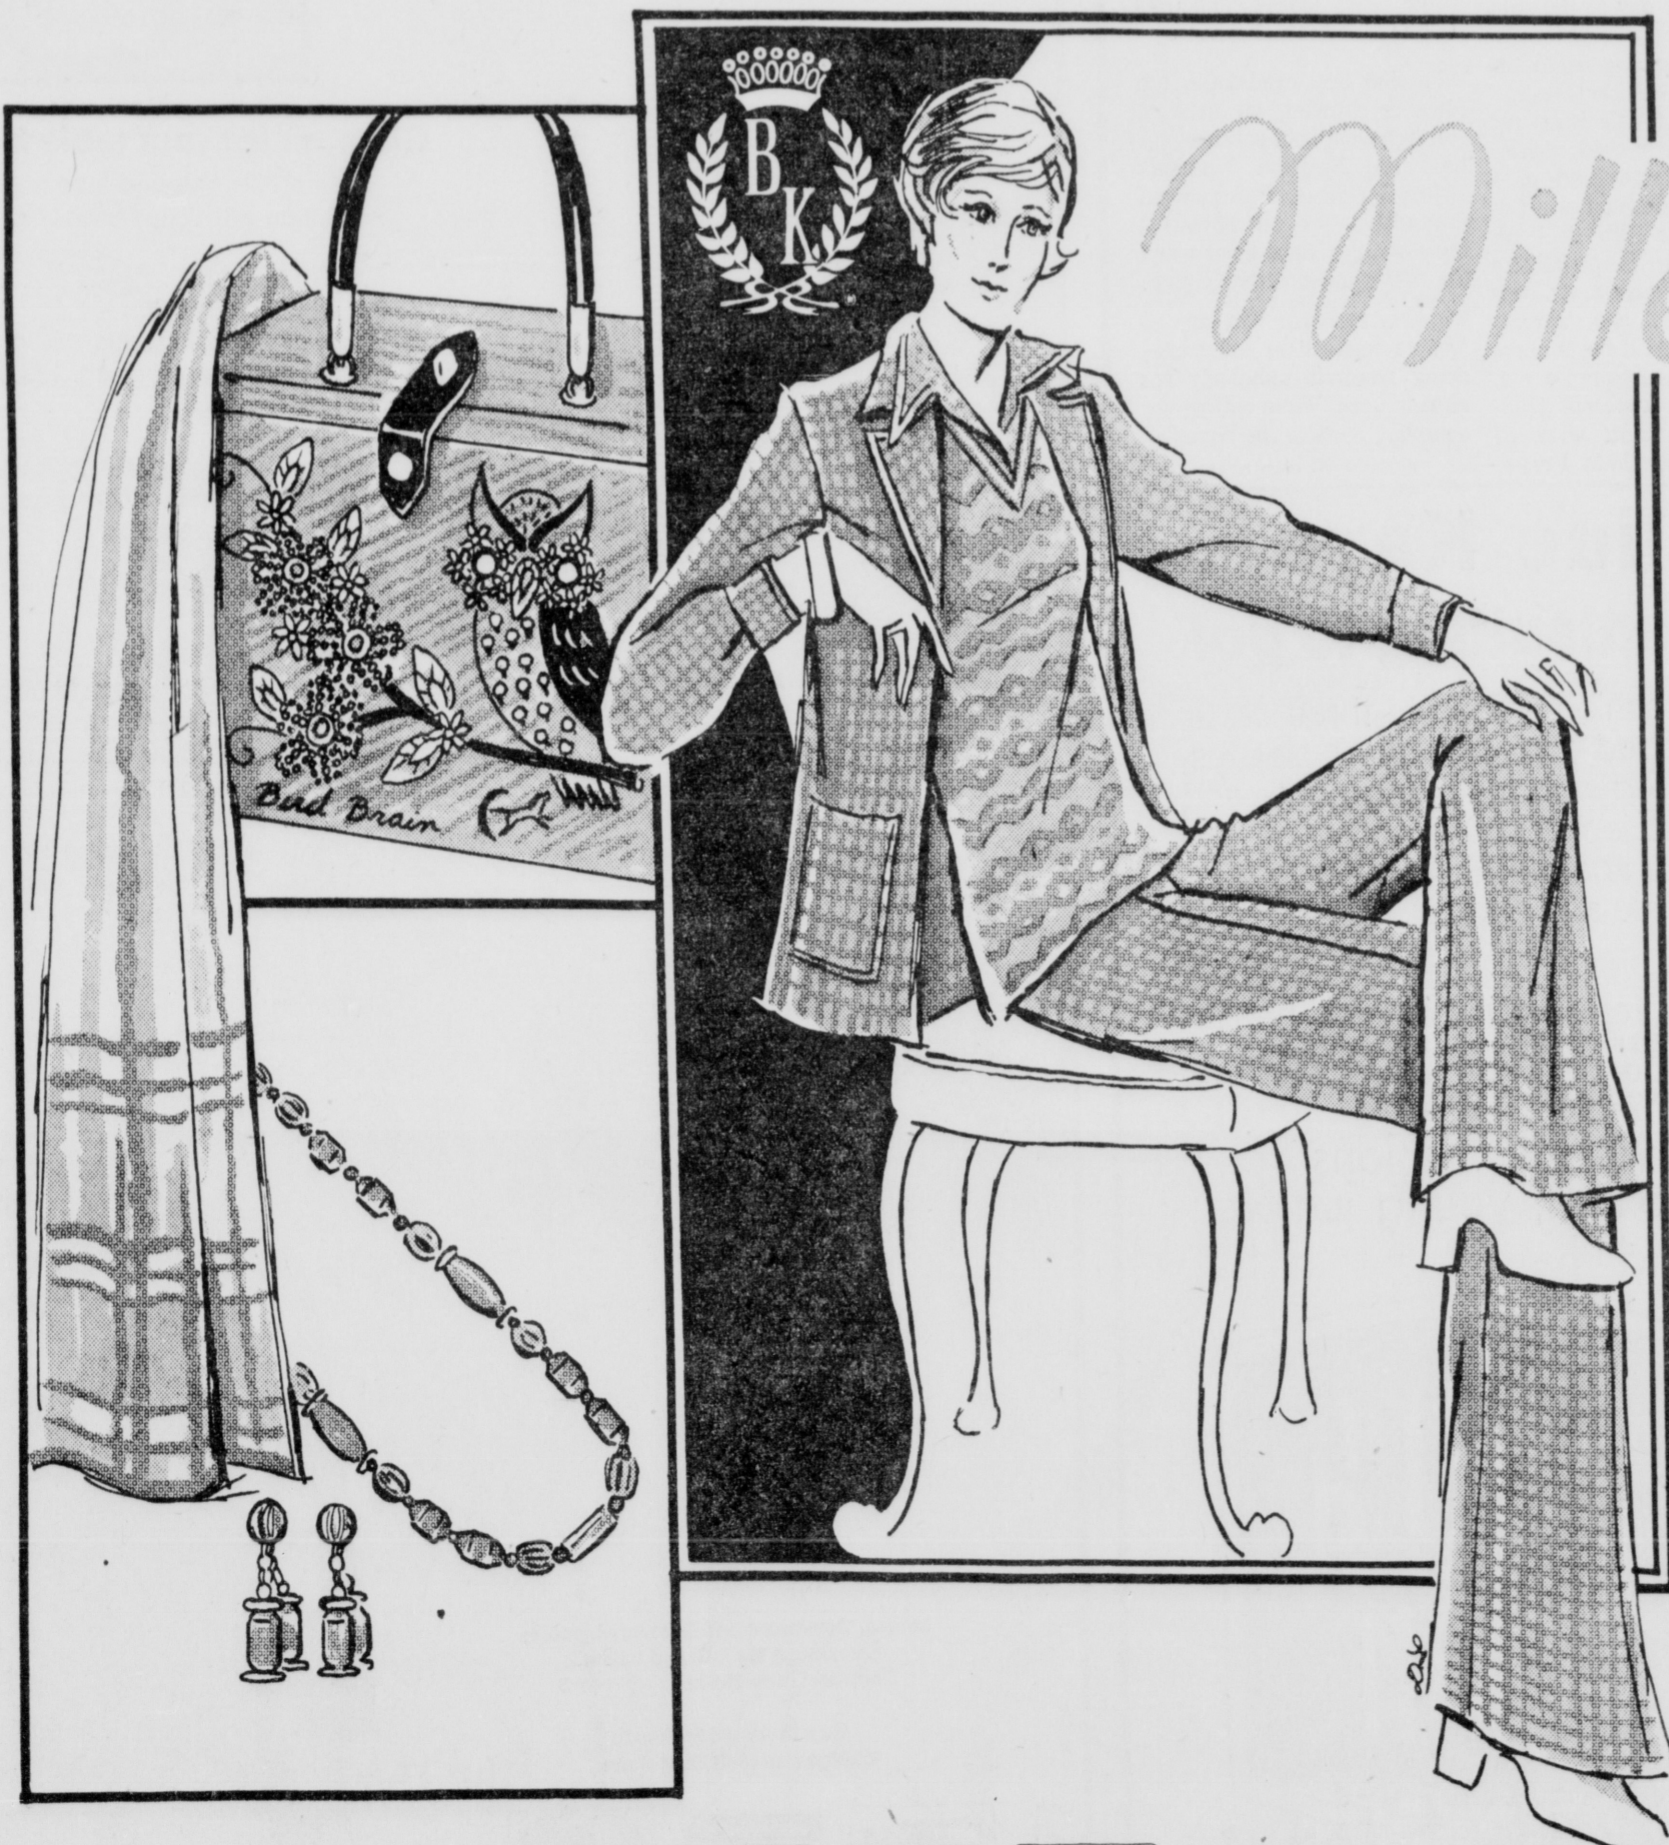

Board members criticized the other gubernatorial candidates, Gov. J. James Exon and State Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, for having "virtually ignored 53% of the state's population — women — during their campaigns," the release said.

"Exon and Marvel are so preoccupied with male-interest issues — taxes, highways and billboards," added Ms. Clouse, "that they have failed to commit themselves toward resolving discrimination against women."

'The Kentucky Trace'

"The Kentucky Trace" (Knopf) is the kind of book that gives reviewers — well, anyway, this reviewer — headaches.

You hate to give it a hostile critique, because it was good enough to keep you fairly interested most of the way through. And there are so many worthless novels coming off the presses that you hesitate to include it with the worst of the lot.

Yet, on the other hand, when you hold it up against those all-too-occasional novels which, for one reason or another, reconfirm your faith in the art of writing, it pales by comparison.

So what do you do?

You talk about the author — Harriette Simpson Arnow — whose previous novels such as "The Dollmaker," and two social history books ("Seedtime On The Cumberland," and "The Flowering Of The Cumberland") brought their author some notoriety.

And you give some attention to the plot of the book in question.

You inform the potential reader that the time period he or she will be reading about is the era of the American Revolutionary War. The place — the Kentucky mountain country.

It is not a story of high adventure, you say. No dramatic battle scenes; no heroes made or broken.

Yet, every book needs a protagonist; a person who can act and/or be acted upon. An individual who will serve, in effect, as the vehicle whereby the author may make his or her perceptions known.

In this case, the perceptions are those held by Ms.

Arnow with regard to the effect the Revolutionary period had on common man — "the people" to use a hackneyed phrase.

The author's protagonist — one 27-year-old Leslie Collins — feels the tug of opposing loyalties engendered by the phenomenon of the American Revolution. Brought up in an English, very Anglican home, he has betrayed his heritage; given aid and comfort to the insurgents.

Yet, Loyalists are all about him — even within his own family. And he can bring himself to feel no real malice toward the "enemy."

Collins' gentleness of character is further manifested in virtually all of his behavior and thoughts. As he reflects on the inevitable westward expansion of the population struggling to make itself a nation, he muses about the manifold destruction it will bring in its wake: "The world was a fine place — except for the people in it, including himself."

The auxiliary characters created by the author provide the background against which character of the protagonist is defined. They are a motley bunch — a young Indian brave, two black servants, a backwoodsman.

On the whole, the story-line serves primarily as a means by which the characterization of Collins is carried out. And, as such it is of secondary importance.

The content of the book thus outlined, about all there is left to say is that the author's craftsmanship is adequate. At times, the narrative drags too slowly — you find yourself wondering when they're ever going to get that gunpowder made.

It is also probably worth mentioning that the story is too loosely strung together — too diffuse — to be called really compelling. There are many threads woven into the fabric, much "this and that" to muddle through as you try to search out the heart of the book.

"The Kentucky Trace" will win few, if any, awards. Yet, for those who are looking for some "light" reading — a good bedtime book that requires no mental gymnastics on the part of the reader — it just might fit the bill.

It's not what you could call a total waste of time. Included on the national best-seller list this week are the following books:

1. Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy, Le Carre
2. Watership Down, Adams
3. The Dogs Of War, Forsyth
4. Jaws, Benchley

2. The Gulag Archipelago, Solzhenitsyn
3. Alive, Read
4. The Memory Book, Lorayne and Lucas
5. You Can Profit From A Monetary Crisis, Browne

Remember, They're His Kids Too

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband, Jess, is getting married again. Jess and I have three children — a girl, eight, and two boys, 16 and 17.

The little dummy who Jess is marrying evidently has never heard that when a person has already had one big wedding (and Jess has), the second wedding should be small and simple. At least that's the way it is in Louisville, Kentucky.

Anyway, Jess wants to use my kids in a big church wedding. He's asked my daughter to be the flower girl, and the boys to be ushers. He never mentioned inviting me, which is just as well, because if I get invited I will not come.

Three questions: Does Jess have the right to use my kids at his wedding? Should he even be having a wedding like this? Should I send a gift?

Some large industries finally are taking a look at the impact of frequent transfers on family life—and they are finding out family members want a voice in shaping their futures.

Communication A Must

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Open channels of communication are a must, whether in the immediate family or the corporate family, said Dr. Ronald Daly, family life specialist for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Human Development and the Family.

And communication rarely is more important than at the time of a move, he told members of the Lincoln Personnel Management Association Tuesday evening.

Large corporations, especially those that require frequent transfers for their employees and junior executives, have an obligation to work not only with their employees but also the families in making those moves less of a stress on home life, Daly said.

In his role as consultant for a large Midwestern corporation, Daly has developed a pilot program for a five-state area aimed at employee and executive relocation and its effects on family life.

About those transfers and their impact on the family, he said, "The husband has it the easiest . . . he moves from one milieu to an identical one."

It is not that easy for the wife and the children, he added. The children must change schools and leave their friends behind; the woman must be "uprooted from her activities" and, possibly, professional positions. "She goes from a status down to zilch" when her husband is transferred to another city.

From initial group discussions with six families frequently on the move because of corporate transfers, Daly found that:

— "The families want a greater voice in career decision-making."

— "The timing of the move is important."

— "The families want competent, knowledgeable people to provide information about the community they are moving to." Input on schools, tax structure, shopping, bus routes, medical services and "up-to-date information about where to locate in the community," would lessen the strain, he said.

Daly recommended that large corporations provide a "relocation service" for their transferred employees. Because one in five families moves annually, the school counselor should be able to "help new children integrate into the schools. . .

Maybe industry should provide the training and the people to do the training because the universities don't," he added.

— Families also are concerned about the financial aspect of the move. "Business can't ever meet all their needs financially but it should reevaluate the financial set-up" of transfers, he said.

Corporations' concern about the impact of frequent transfers has surfaced just recently "because we are more affluent. Perhaps more executives now are looking at their past experiences," Daly said. "But it's important to look at it now . . . to take the pressure off families when they move so many times."

He said it is important that families use their available resources to deal more effectively with not only moving, but all "crisis situations."

Problem-solving can be facilitated by the establishment of:

— Open channels of communication where everyone has a say, where everyone's "importance" is recognized.

— The ability to deal effectively with conflict.

— Effective leadership which "changes as situations change," with every family member given responsibility.

— Consensus as to the goals of the family. Again, every family member should have a say, Daly said. "To agree on goals (the family) must have some decision on what those goals are."

"Thus, there is not much difference between effective management of a family and of a company," he said.

Fund Aids Candidates

By Karen Peterson

Female political candidates are finding out that money talks. But when many of them ask for it, all they hear is the sound of one hand clapping. Most of them are not taken seriously.

This complaint was voiced recently, in news stories, and it was heard. The result: Soon, the one hand clapping may be clutching dollar bills. For there is a new group in Washington, D.C., playing Lady Bountiful, trying to make women candidates more visible and viable. The Women's Campaign Fund, supported by about 100 Republicans and Democrats, is trying to scrape together enough money to help a handful of "progressive" women seeking state-wide and national office in November.

The WCF says the money is going to come from a new source: women themselves. As a whole, women haven't been anxious to shell out for politics, feeling that it's all a dirty business and "unfeminine." But the Women's Campaign Fund believes there's a whole new group of consciousness-raised women just waiting to be fleeced for a desperate cause — funding female candidates.

Says one of the founders of the group, "We are going for the women who buy Ms. magazine, for the ones who forced 'Cosmopolitan' to bring its content into the 20th century . . . These are the women whose volunteer efforts were the chewing gum and Scotch tape holding together the old civil rights movement, the anti-war groups . . . and the campaigns of typical male lawyers. They are an untapped resource."

But a snafu has developed. As T. S. Eliot says, some place between the idea and the reality falls the shadow. The WCF's shadow wears a dollar sign on her t-shirt. The fund has discovered it takes money to make money.

The returns from the first direct mailing are still dribbling in, and are about to nudge the $27,000 mark. But the WCF had to pay off its initial $15,000 seed-money loan from New York liberal philanthropist Stewart Mott. That doesn't leave enough money for a second $12,000 mailing, plus dollars to scatter among appointed candidates.

Not frightened by a skinny piggy bank, the WCF just conned its Washington, D.C., friends into shelling out $10 each at a rain-soaked fund-raiser. Clucking over their $3,000 cleared, the feminists are now trying to figure out how to cover the costs of a second mailing — and at the same time, give money to enough candidates to make the Lady Bountiful business worth the effort. They want to give from $300 to $750 apiece.

So far they have notched eight women as fund recipients, including U.S. Congressional incumbents Rep. Pat Schroeder (D., Colo.) and Rep. Margaret Heckler (R., Mass.).

These two women are typical of the candidates the fund would like to support. Executive Director Maureen S. Aspin explains the criteria the WCF has established: "We will not support a woman candidate just because she is a woman. She must be more progressive than her male opponent on the issues affecting our quality of life and our national human needs. Second, she must have a realistic chance of winning. People don't want to throw money down a well. And last, she must need financial help. We'll only have just so much to go around."

Ms. Aspin is the only paid, full-time member of the fund. She operates out of her home, to cut down on expenses. It's a location shared by her husband, Les Aspin, the Democratic congressman from Wisconsin.

To keep at least the current number of 16 females members in the House of Representatives, the WCF has recently pledged to help three new seekers in their struggles, two of whom have already won their primaries — Republican Millicent Fenwick, who won on a recount in New Jersey's Fifth Congressional district, and Nina Miglionico, who won 63 percent of the Democratic vote in the Sixth District of Alabama, according to National Women's Political Caucus records.

Martha Keys, a Republican trying to nail down Kansas' Second Congressional District, hasn't had her day at the polls yet.

Other pledges are going to candidates for state-wide offices.

Mind you, the WCF is not run by naive, bright-eyed "girls" enrolled in some kind of a political kindergarten. Co-chairwomen are Elise du Pont, wife of the Republican Congressman Pierre S. du Pont IV of Delaware, and Arvonne Fraser, president of the feminist Women's Action Equity League, owner of a professional fund-raising firm, and wife of Congressman Donald M. Fraser, Democrat from Minnesota.

Susan King is a member of the WCF executive committee. Currently, she works for the privately funded Center for Public Financing of Elections.

She says, "We can't really establish a firm set of beliefs each woman we endorse must share. A 'liberal' in the South might be quite different from a 'liberal' in the North, and if she weren't, what chance would she have of being elected?"

"Take Congresswoman Ella T. Grasso (D.) who is running for Governor of Connecticut," continues Ms. King. "She is our best chance for a female governor . . . she is a desirable, attractive candidate, and we would support her. But by the way, we understand the Republican-dominated legislature has passed a bill outlawing any out-of-state financial support. They must think she'd be too desirable."

The women listed on the WCF stationery lend moral support. Names range from NOW's past president, Wilma Scott Heide, through the League of Women Voters' Lucy Benson, to actress Joanne Woodward Newman.

To find best candidates, the fund is drawing on existing research from both political parties, the National Women's Political Caucus, the National Committee for an Effective Congress, the Ripon Society and the Democratic Study Group.

Ms. King explains: "We can't afford to waste time and money doing research somebody has already done. We're cutting our operating costs to the bone."

But the Women's Campaign Fund believes there's a whole new group of consciousness-raised women just waiting to be fleeced for a desperate cause — funding female candidates.

Says one of the founders of the group, "We are going for the women who buy Ms. magazine, for the ones who forced "Cosmopolitan" to bring its content into the 20th century . . . These are the women whose volunteer efforts were the chewing gum and Scotch tape holding together the old civil rights movement, the anti-war groups . . . and the campaigns of typical male lawyers. They are an untapped resource."

But a snafu has developed. As T. S. Eliot says, some place between the idea and the reality falls the shadow. The WCF's shadow wears a dollar sign on her t-shirt. The fund has discovered it takes money to make money.

The returns from the first direct mailing are still dribbling in, and are about to nudge the $27,000 mark. But the WCF had to pay off its initial $15,000 seed-money loan from New York liberal philanthropist Stewart Mott. That doesn't leave enough money for a second $12,000 mailing, plus dollars to scatter among appointed candidates.

Not frightened by a skinny piggy bank, the WCF just conned its Washington, D.C., friends into shelling out $10 each at a rain-soaked fund-raiser. Clucking over their $3,000 cleared, the feminists are now trying to figure out how to cover the costs of a second mailing — and at the same time, give money to enough candidates to make the Lady Bountiful business worth the effort. They want to give from $300 to $750 apiece.

So far they have notched eight women as fund recipients, including U.S. Congressional incumbents Rep. Pat Schroeder (D., Colo.) and Rep. Margaret Heckler (R., Mass.).

These two women are typical of the candidates the fund would like to support. Executive Director Maureen S. Aspin explains the criteria the WCF has established: "We will not support a woman candidate just because she is a woman. She must be more progressive than her male opponent on the issues affecting our quality of life and our national human needs. Second, she must have a realistic chance of winning. People don't want to throw money down a well. And last, she must need financial help. We'll only have just so much to go around."

Ms. Aspin is the only paid, full-time member of the fund. She operates out of her home, to cut down on expenses. It's a location shared by her husband, Les Aspin, the Democratic congressman from Wisconsin.

To keep at least the current number of 16 females members in the House of Representatives, the WCF has recently pledged to help three new seekers in their struggles, two of whom have already won their primaries — Republican Millicent Fenwick, who won on a recount in New Jersey's Fifth Congressional district, and Nina Mighonico, who won 63 percent of the Democratic vote in the Sixth District of Alabama, according to National Women's Political Caucus records.

Martha Keys, a Republican trying to nail down Kansas' Second Congressional District, hasn't had her day at the polls yet.

Other pledges are going to candidates for state-wide offices.

Mind you, the WCF is not run by naive, bright-eyed "girls" enrolled in some kind of a political kindergarten. Co-chairwomen are Elise du Pont, wife of the Republican Congressman Pierre S. du Pont IV of Delaware, and Arvonne Fraser, president of the feminist Women's Action Equity League, owner of a professional fund-raising firm, and wife of Congressman Donald M. Fraser,

After South jumped to three notrump, East, who had been playing possum, doubled. He wanted to insure a club lead from West — which the double called for — and he hoped in that way to beat the contract.
South promptly redoubled. He realized that East was commanding a club lead, but since South had the ace he did not fear the lead — and besides, he was also confident of making at least nine tricks.
West was understandably unhappy, but dutifully led a club. Dummy ducked and East, thinking the ten might be a singleton, overtook it with the jack.
Declarer ducked and East continued with the king. South won and led a diamond to the king, losing to the ace. East returned a club to the queen, South discarding a spade, and declarer cashed four diamonds, discarding a club and a heart from dummy.
In the meantime, East had to make three discards and threw two hearts and a spade. Declarer then led a spade to the king and a spade back. When East's queen appeared, South made three notrump redoubled for 450 points. Actually, he could have scored 200 more by keeping his fourth spade.
East's double was not well thought out. True, he could not expect a club lead unless he doubled, yet he should have respected South's leap to three notrump which suggested a possible slam. With South thinking in terms of twelve tricks, it was hardly possible that a club lead would stop him from making nine.

Your Checking Account Can Help You Out

Your checking account holds a wealth of benefits — if you know how to work it.
Banks are continually creating services that make checking accounts much more than simple bill-paying devices, reminds the American Bankers Association (ABA).
Many banks, for example, let you write a check over and above your balance — and it doesn't bounce. This is called overdraft checking, and it's handy to have. You make an arrangement with your bank in advance to determine how much credit you can put on your account (usually up to $5,000). The actual amount depends on your needs and your ability to pay back. When you write a check for more than your balance, the bank automatically transfers money from your credit line to your checking account.
The extended credit doesn't cost anything until you use it. Then you pay only on the exact amount you've borrowed and the bank interest rate is usually lower than a credit card rate.
Automatic savings is another helpful checking account innovation. Many banks will automatically take a predetermined amount from your checking account and deposit it into your savings account every month. It's a free service that forces you to save regularly, plus saves you the trouble of going to the bank to make the transaction yourself.

If you have any regular payments to make, says the ABA, you should take advantage of the bank automatic payment plan. With this, the bank will deduct from your checking account the money to pay your home mortgage loan, personal loan or safe deposit rental. This no-charge service means that you can forget about payment dates and escape the bother and expense of writing checks every month.
There's still another trend that makes money-handling easier. Some employers are making arrangements with banks to deposit your entire paycheck automatically into your checking account (if you consent). This cuts out a trip to the bank each payday — and takes away a certain temptation to spend in hand.

One-statement banking is a free bonus for checking account holders. Each month you receive a statement itemizing all of your checking transactions as usual. However, it also carries detailed information about the status of your savings account; the balance of your personal or mortgage loans; how much overdraft credit you've used, and how much credit is still available on your bank credit card.

Dyas Plans Walk Through District

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

With his sturdy hiking boots at his side, Democratic congressional nominee Hess Dyas Wednesday announced plans for a month-long, 730-mile walk through the First District beginning Aug. 25.

During a 30-day period, Dyas will walk from Bloomfield in northeast Nebraska's Knox County to Falls City in the southeastern corner of the state.

The walk will include 68 communities and all 27 First District counties.

"I expect that this walk will give me the opportunity, the forum, to address thousands of Nebraskans, personally, on the important issues confronting us," Dyas told a Lincoln press conference.

First Of Kind Here

The campaign walk, first of its kind in Nebraska, follows a series of similar successful campaign journeys undertaken in other states.

The most recent and nearest effort highlighted Sen. Richard Clark's successful 1972 senatorial campaign in neighboring Iowa.

Dyas, 37, will sleep in Democratic homes during his trek and attempt to schedule meals in communities along the way.

The marathon walk has been a major link in his campaign strategy since he decided to challenge Republican Rep. Charles Thone last winter.

Dyas has been getting into walking shape with occasional hikes in his boots. The latest effort took him 12 miles in 3½ hours.

On Road At 6 a.m.

During the district walk, he expects to begin a 14-to-18 hour day on the road at about 6 a.m.

"Obviously, person-to-person contact has been an important part of this campaign to make me and my positions on issues better known to the voters," Dyas said.

"I see this walk as an opportunity to tie together, through this month of continual walking, my efforts to get to know personally the people of this district."

Dyas said he wants to hear other people's views on inflation, honesty in government, farm policy and prices, health, rural development and other issues.

In All 27 Counties

Already, he said, he has campaigned in all 27 counties and either he or his wife, Carol, or both, have canvassed the business district of nearly every community in the district.

Dyas said he has attended 36 neighborhood coffee receptions and knocked on the doors of more than 1,200 homes.

Bellevue Sets 1% Sales Tax

Bellevue (AP) — A one per cent city sales tax will become effective in Bellevue the first of the year.

With the additional one cent, the tax will be 3.5 cents on a dollar.

Based on 1973 retail sales in Bellevue, the city can expect to receive about $590,000 in revenue annually.

Goodwill Request For Emergency Aid OKd

The Lincoln Community Services (LCS) executive committee Wednesday approved a request by Goodwill Industries for $12,893 in additional funds to meet a budget deficit.

The vote was unanimous to grant the emergency request for United Fund money, contingent upon verification of the amount required.

Goodwill requested the appropriation to pay for additional wages and Social Security taxes necessary because of the increase in the federal minimum wage.

LCS at an earlier review of Goodwill's budget asked the agency to exclude additional wages from its original request, because the new minimum wage law hadn't yet been approved by Congress.

Close Monitoring

Executive committee chairman Jim Nissen said LCS had a moral commitment to approve the grant. In doing so, committee members agreed LCS should monitor closely Goodwill's financial position and management, and continue to work with the agency.

LCS Executive Director John Goessman said, "Lincoln needs a top-notch agency to serve physically disabled persons." He said Goodwill can be that agency with improved management and remedied financial problems.

Goodwill Executive Director John P. Gedwillo appeared before the committee, saying that the agency expects a year-end deficit of $16,483 in operations. He noted that cash in the bank is insufficient to pay current bills.

Further, Gedwillo said $2,900 in capital improvements required by federal safety laws remain unpaid.

Liabe For Loan

Goodwill also is liable for a six-month, $10,000 bank loan, which it appears the agency will be unable to pay, Gedwillo said. Should that occur, he added, the bank has agreed to loan Goodwill an additional $10,000 to $12,000.

In the meantime, Goodwill expects increased income through its vocational rehabilitation program, he said, allowing payment of the loans. Store sales, too, are up 10-12%, he said.

In justifying the request from LCS, Gedwillo said Goodwill has made some personnel cuts and has not filled any positions vacated.

In other business, the executive committee endorsed LCS Planning Division recommendations to the LCS board regarding continued funding of the Catholic Social Service Bureau.

The board will meet at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lincoln Center Building, 215 S. 15th, to consider the proposal that Catholic Social Service receive no more than $25,000 in community funds through Dec. 31, 1975.

Thereafter, according to contingencies recommended for further funding, the bureau:

— Should relocate from Roca to a central-city site, or establish a Lincoln branch, to improve access.

— Modify its reporting format to LCS and describe in its budget which of its activities are church-related and non-supportable with community funds.

— And work with LCS to develop evaluation methods similar to those of other United Fund-supported agencies.

Glenn W. Smith presented committee members with a proposal for LCS to assist United Fund-supported agencies with management services.

The staff would help agencies which are typically small and which lack highly trained administrators and managers for business matters. Smith said the staff aid would free the agencies to provide maximum services.

The LCS executive committee endorsed Smith's proposal.

Goodwill Request For Emergency Aid OK'd

The Lincoln Community Services (LCS) executive committee Wednesday approved a request by Goodwill Industries for $12,893 in additional funds to meet a budget deficit.

The vote was unanimous to grant the emergency request for United Fund money, contingent upon verification of the amount required.

Goodwill requested the appropriation to pay for additional wages and Social Security taxes necessary because of the increase in the federal minimum wage.

LCS at an earlier review of Goodwill's budget asked the agency to exclude additional wages from its original request, because the new minimum wage law hadn't yet been approved by Congress.

Close Monitoring

Executive committee chairman Jim Nissen said LCS had a moral commitment to approve the grant. In doing so, committee members agreed LCS should monitor closely Goodwill's financial position and management, and continue to work with the agency.

LCS Executive Director John Goessman said, "Lincoln needs a top-notch agency to serve physically disabled persons." He said Goodwill can be that agency with improved management and remedied financial problems.

Goodwill Executive Director John P. Gedwillo appeared before the committee, saying that the agency expects a year-end deficit of $16,483 in operations. He noted that cash in the bank is insufficient to pay current bills.

Further, Gedwillo said $2,900 in capital improvements required by federal safety laws remain unpaid.

Liability For Loan

Goodwill also is liable for a six-month, $10,000 bank loan, which it appears the agency will be unable to pay, Gedwillo said. Should that occur, he added, the bank has agreed to loan Goodwill an additional $10,000 to $12,000.

In the meantime, Goodwill expects increased income through its vocational rehabilitation program, he said, allowing payment of the loans. Store sales, too, are up 10-12%, he said.

In justifying the request from LCS, Gedwillo said Goodwill has made some personnel cuts and has not filled any positions vacated.

In other business, the executive committee endorsed LCS Planning Division recommendations to the LCS board regarding continued funding of the Catholic Social Service Bureau.

The board will meet at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lincoln Center Building, 215 S. 15th, to consider the proposal that Catholic Social Service receive no more than $25,000 in community funds through Dec. 31, 1975.

Thereafter, according to contingencies recommended for further funding, the bureau:

— Should relocate from Roca to a central-city site, or establish a Lincoln branch, to improve access.

— Modify its reporting format to LCS and describe in its budget which of its activities are church-related and non-supportable with community funds.

— And work with LCS to develop evaluation methods similar to those of other United Fund-supported agencies.

Glenn W. Smith presented committee members with a proposal for LCS to assist United Fund-supported agencies with management services.

The staff would help agencies which are typically small and which lack highly trained administrators and managers for business matters. Smith said the staff aid would free the agencies to provide maximum services.

The LCS executive committee endorsed Smith's proposal.

2 Wounded Knee Defendants Innocent

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom ruled Wednesday that both defendants are innocent of charges in the first Lincoln trial stemming from the 1973 occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D.

Gregorio Jaramillo, 22, of Denver, Colo., and Michael Eugene Sturdevant, 30, of Neopit, Wis., were indicted for interfering with federal law officers while attempting to enter the village occupied by American Indian Movement (AIM) forces on March 9, 1973.

Based on the evidence, Urbom wrote in his nine-page opinion after the bench trial, "the defendants must be acquitted."

He concluded that "there is a reasonable doubt as to whether the law enforcement officers were lawfully engaged in the lawful performance of their official duties" when they arrested Jaramillo and Sturdevant just outside the Wounded Knee area.

Prosecution 'Failed'

"Lest anyone be misled," Urbom emphasized, he did not find that actions by FBI agents or U.S. marshals were unlawful. But he held that the prosecution "failed to carry that burden" proving the legality of the officers' actions.

Urbom wrote that he doesn't disagree with the wisdom of procedures law enforcement officers used during the 71-day occupation.

However, "The fact remains that Congress has authoritatively declared that no part of the Army or the Air Force shall be used to execute the laws, except as expressly authorized by Congress or the Constitution."

He said Congress "has provided that the President could use military personnel in quelling civil disorders (during peacetime), but the President did not do so with respect to Wounded Knee."

If "any part of the Army or the Air Force" was used to uphold he laws at Wounded Knee and "perverted the activities" of the U.S. marshals and FBI agents, they "cannot be said to have been lawfully engaged" in the 'lawful performance' of their official duties," Urbom wrote.

Equipment Cited

He said, "use of substantial amounts of material and equipment furnished by the Army is beyond dispute."

Items used during the siege on the Pine Ridge reservation before March 9, 1973, include in part "1,100 Star parachute flares, 100,000 rounds of M-16 ammunition, 100 protective vests, 20 sniper rifles and 15 unarmored personnel carriers," he wrote.

He cited further military intervention, including aerial reconnaissance flights over the area and the presence of military officers and personnel.

Urbom also referred to a decision in St. Paul, Minn., last Friday by U.S. District Judge Fred J. Nichol, acquitting AIM leaders Dennis Banks and Russell Means of charges identical to those brought against Jaramillo and Sturdevant.

Nichol "had almost exactly the same evidence before him that I have before me," Urbom wrote.

He said while he disagrees with Nichol's decision that acquittal "should be granted as a matter of law, rather than as a matter of fact... I freely acknowledge that his decision has been a factor in my consideration of the present case."

Necessary Conditions

"To find either defendant guilty," Urbom said, the government had to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that: — At the time of their arrests, a civil disorder existed and that it interfered with a federally protected function, the post office.

— During the disorder, law enforcement officers were legally engaged in performing official duties.

— Jaramillo and Sturdevant tried to or did interfere with law officers "willfully and knowingly."

Urbom found that there was "a civil disorder throughout the entire period" ending May 8, 1973, and that the post office was interfered with because of the occupation.

He said, "There is no need to discuss or decide" whether Jaramillo or Sturdevant committed to tried to commit any act for which they were accused, or whether it "was done knowingly and willfully."

Rather, he said he discussed "the issues relating to civil disorders, because of the possible significance of those issues in other cases yet to be tried."

A spokesman for Urbom said earlier that of the more than 100 indictments in connection with the siege, 56 are based on the same federal anti-riot law applying to the charges against Jaramillo and Sturdevant.

Cincinnati Beats Pirates In Tenth

United Press International

Cesar Geronimo doubled home Dave Concepcion with one out in the 10th inning Wednesday night to give the Cincinnati Reds a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh and the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

Concepcion led off the 10th with a single off Pirate relief pitcher Bruce Kison and went to second when Willie Stargell bobbled the ball. The Reds' shortstop held second as George Foster grounded out. Ramon Hernandez then replaced Kison and was greeted by Geronimo's game-winning double, which gave Reds' relief pitcher Clay Carroll his eighth win against three losses.

The Reds took a two-run lead in the third inning when Junior Kennedy walked, took second on a sacrifice and moved to third on an infield out by Pete Rose. After Joe Morgan walked, Kennedy came home when Manny Sanguillen threw wildly to second attempting to cut down Morgan, who stole the first of his three bases for the night. Morgan then scored on Bench's double to left-center.

In other games, New York edged Los Angeles 3-2, Atlanta downed Montreal 6-1, St. Louis tripped San Diego 5-1, Chicago stopped Houston 6-5 and San Francisco beat Philadelphia 6-4.

Rusty Staub's RBI single climaxed a two-run ninth inning rally and enabled New York to nip the Dodgers, giving the Mets a sweep of the three-game series.

Ken Boswell drew a walk to lead off the ninth for the Mets against loser Mike Marshall, 11-8. Boswell took second on a sacrifice and scored when pinch hitter Ron Hodges' long fly to center field was dropped by the Dodgers' Tom Paciorek. Felix Millan then singled to put runners on first and third and Staub ended the game with another single, his third of the game, over Paciorek's head in center field.

Henry Aaron slugged the 729th home run of his career and Dusty Baker hit his 15th of the season to power the Braves to a win over the Expos. It was the sixth win in a row for Atlanta.

Reggie Smith's three-run homer capped a five-run rally in the fifth inning and Alan Foster pitched a six-hitter to give the Cardinals a victory over the Padres.

The Cubs scored four runs in the first inning and then held on with late inning relief help from Oscar Zamora and Jim Todd's first major league save to defeat the Astros and end an eight-game losing streak.

Bobby Bonds connected for a two-run homer in the ninth inning to lead the Giants to a victory over the Phillies.

Tony Solaita belted a three-run homer to highlight a six-run first inning Wednesday night that sparked the Kansas City Royals to a 9-1 win over the Detroit Tigers behind the five-hit pitching of Steve Busby.

It was Busby's 18th win of the year, tying him for the American League lead with Wilbur Wood and Luis Tiant.

The Royals also got a solo home run in the eighth by designated hitter Orlando Cepeda, his first since returning to the major leagues last month after a stint in the Mexican League.

In other early-finishing games, Minnesota trimmed Cleveland 1-0, Chicago edged Baltimore 5-4 and Milwaukee nipped Texas, 6-5.

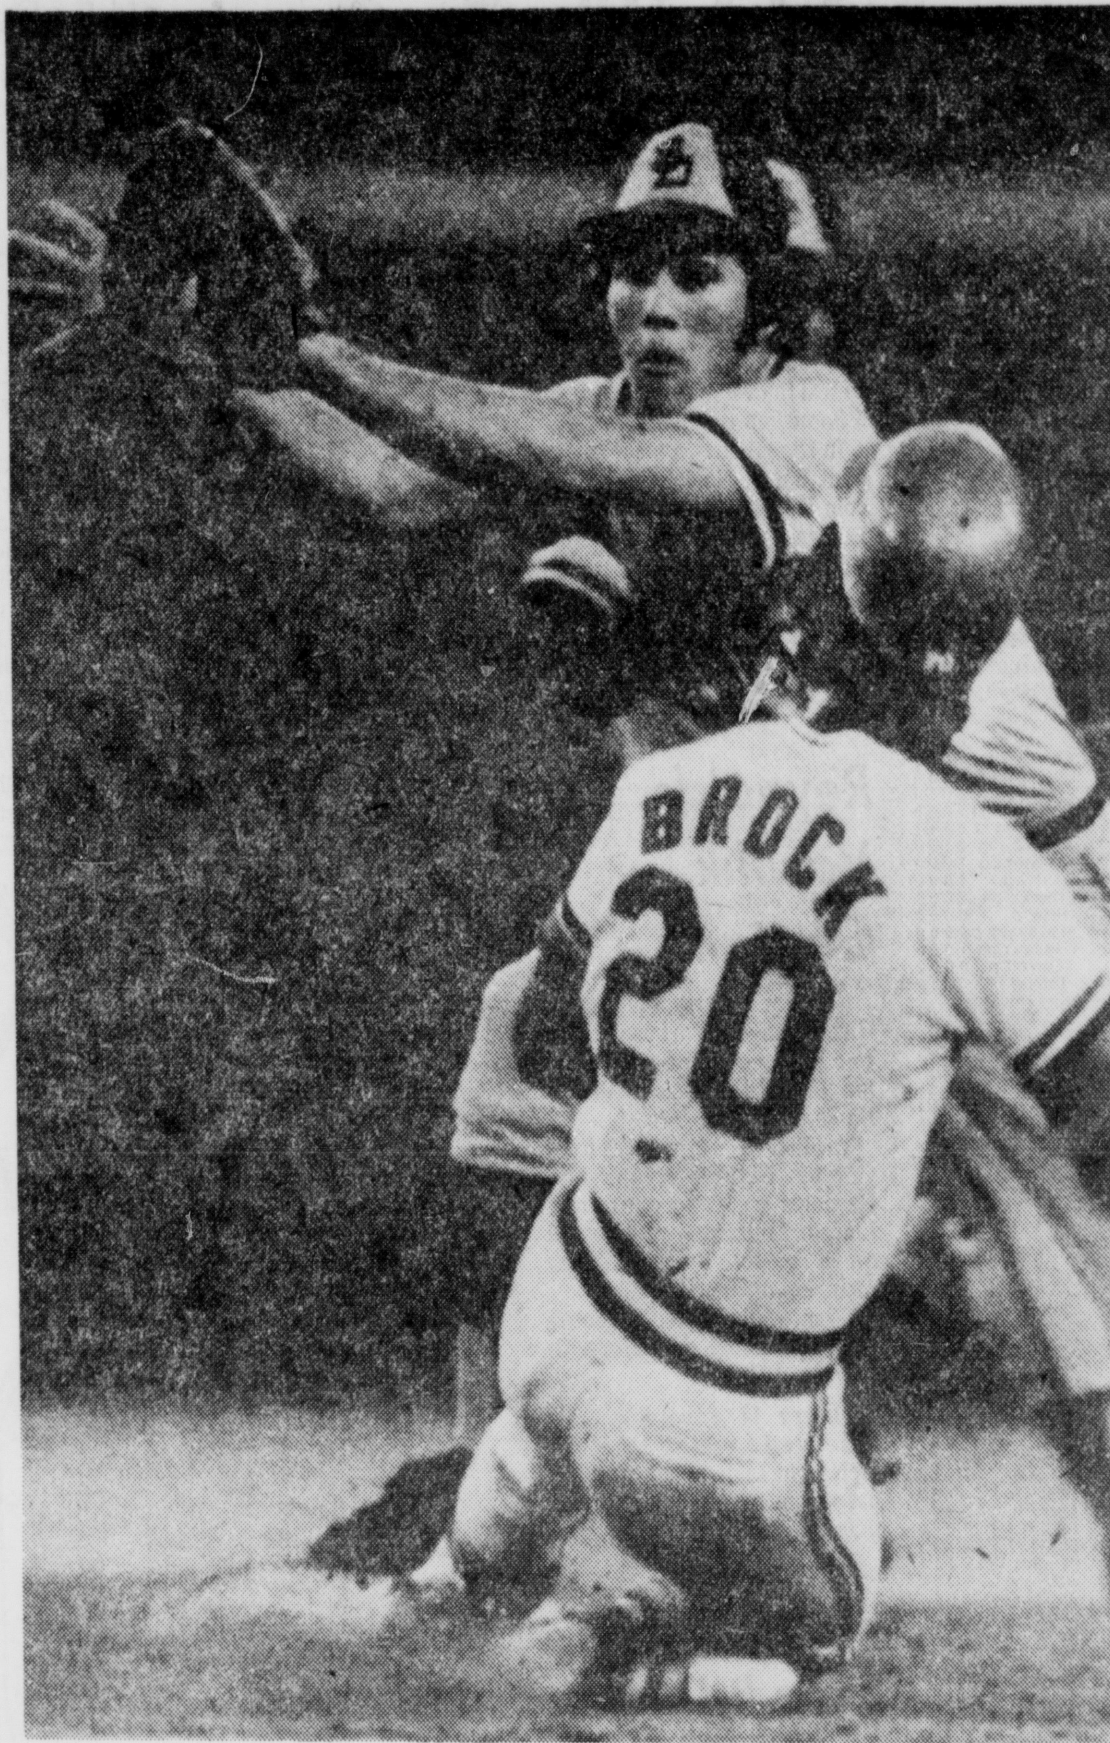

Glenn Borgmann's seventh sacrifice fly of the season scored Bobby Darwin from third base with the winning run in the seventh inning and Joe Decker allowed four hits in eight innings to lead the Twins to a victory over the Indians.

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a single but Brian Downing's two-out eighth inning single knocked in the winning run as the White Sox edged the Orioles.

Pinch-hitter Tim Johnson broke up a tie ballgame with a run-scoring single in the eighth and the Milwaukee Brewers went on to beat the Rangers and sweep their three-game series.

Johnson's hit came off loser Ferguson Jenkins, 16-11 and enabled relief pitcher Tom Murphy to pick up his fifth win of the year against four defeats.

In West Coast games, New York was at Oakland and Boston at California.

Literally hundreds of times now, shortstops and second basemen have had to face this critical moment against St. Louis Cardinal Lou Brock, but San Diego Padre Dave Hilton pulled in the throw from catcher Fred Kendall as Brock's bid for a stolen base falls short.

Hahn Remembers Fantasy Games

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Kearney — The scene is a flashback. Six years ago. It's a dirt basketball court in the back of a frame farmhouse between Aurora and Hampton.

A sixth-grader with high basketball aspirations, but without friends to play with, faces an unlikely defensive problem.

A 50-gallon oil barrel looms in front of him on the free throw line, which has been carefully measured and etched out in the dirt with a stick.

The youngster, making believe he's Jerry West, dribbles toward the oil barrel. In his mind, only seconds remain in the game.

All pressure is on him. He's got to put a move on Bill Russell (the oil barrel) and put the ball in the basket for his imaginary Los Angeles Lakers teammates to win.

Sure enough, Dave Hahn dribbles left and makes a quick cutback to his right. He releases a lightning-quick ump shot. The ball ripples the net. The 50-gallon barrel has lost again.

"Sometimes, when I would miss that jump shot and realize how many people I was letting down (himself), I would pretend I had been fouled and had to make two free throws to pull the game out," recalls Hahn.

Growing up on a farm created some special problems, according to Hahn, who has been training for the South team the past week in preparation for Friday night's Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star Basketball Game at air-conditioned Pershing Auditorium.

Dave Hahn

"The farm was fun, but when five or six kids are getting together to play basketball in town, you're stuck against yourself or imaginary people," says Hahn, a starting forward for the South all-stars.

Necessity forced Hahn to develop basketball talent almost strictly on his own. "Television helped a lot though," he claims. "I watched every game there was on television and tried to imitate my favorites like Jerry West, Gail Goodrich and Elgin Baylor."

Hahn developed his own high jumping talents, too. Each spring and summer, he would get a pole to go with the one supporting the basket and nail a lighter pole across them at various heights.

By the time he was a junior, he became state Class B high jump champion at 6-4. He earned Class B all-state basketball acclaim last March.

Bill Holliday, his high school basketball coach, believes Hahn is revered in Aurora almost as much as former prep Athlete of the Year Tom Kropp.

"I don't know how many pickup games I've seen around Aurora where I've heard a little kid say he wants to be Dave Hahn," offered Holliday.

Hahn's popularity among Aurora youngsters is understandable. "He goes out of his way to help any kid he can in any way," according to Holliday.

"I do like talking with kids and helping them out, says Hahn. "I know how I had to keep myself occupied on the farm and how much older kids would help me out."

"If you keep to yourself and shrug off young kids who look up to you, they might become discouraged and end up getting in trouble," reasons Hahn. "It's no trouble to give them a little bit of your own time. Besides, they're fun to play with."

It's that type of attitude which has made the Kearney State College-bound Hahn a popular athlete in the South all-star camp.

He gives 100 per cent with a purpose firmly in mind. And it's a team purpose, not an individual one.

Big 8 Requests Suit Dismissal

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The Big Eight athletic conference asked a federal court here Wednesday to dismiss a suit filed against it and the National Collegiate Athletic Association in July over the disciplinary sanctions applied to the University of Oklahoma.

The suit was filed by a new organization called Oklahoma Television Sports, Inc. The firm claimed the Big Eight and NCAA violated antitrust laws in imposing the sanctions.

The Big Eight, in a brief filed with the court, argued it should not be a party to the suit because only the NCAA promulgates rules and policies regarding the telecasting of collegiate sporting events.

Last year, the Big Eight placed OU on a two-year probation for recruiting violations. The Sooners football team was prohibited from participating in post-season bowl games in 1974 and 1975 and cannot appear on a telecast during the 1974 and 1975 seasons.

In the lawsuit filed in July, the firm said it tried to negotiate with OU for the rights to do live telecasts of football games, but that the school refused to negotiate because of the sanctions.

The firm claimed that deprived them of potential monetary gain.

But the Big Eight insisted the firm has not been injured by the sanctions and therefore has no right to file the lawsuit under the antitrust laws.

The conference said the firm was not even in existence at the time they made the offer to OU. The offer was made on June 14, 1974, but the firm's articles of incorporation were not filed with the secretary of state until July 10, the Big Eight said.

The brief said that filing came only five days before the suit was filed.

Shrine Camp Unlike Dreary Stories

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

In years past, the regimentation of the Shrine Bowl football camps has filled the air with multitudes of dreary tales, when retold, each more horrendous than before.

This year, the South's head coach Milt Tenopir announced at the opening night meeting, Aug. 3, this year would be different.

The results are apparently pleasing, according to South I-back power-speedster Monte Anthony, spring graduate of Bellevue High School.

"We are really enjoying ourselves," Anthony said of the relaxed camp attitude. "I've talked to some of the others who have played in the Shrine Bowl, and I wasn't looking forward to what they were talking about."

This camp according to the 6-2, 210 back, is by far the most lenient he's heard of. "The best part about it," he said, "is that everyone gets along so great." "The coaches are really great, they try to work with everyone individually and it really helps the attitudes."

Anthony doesn't think the relaxed camp will have any adverse effect on conditioning for the game. "We're all in pretty good condition," Anthony said. "We'll be ready for the game, both physically and mentally."

And if some of Anthony's other predictions are true, anyone planning to attend the Saturday clash should prepare for an onslaught of speed.

After a Tuesday morning workout on Memorial Stadium's Astro-turf Anthony was sure that "it's going to be a pretty quick game. The breakaway plays are going to go on this stuff, (the artificial turf). And we're going to hit 'em with power and speed on offense," he added.

We have enough inside power because we have stronger, heavier backs," Anthony offered. "And we have just enough speed to get 'em on the outside if we have to."

Tenopir agreed on that aspect with Anthony, "we have adequate speed," he said. "But not near what the North has. With the I-back offense, we have to have success on our power, or we'll be in for a long afternoon."

Anthony, who suffered a shoulder injury Monday in practice said he would definitely be ready for the Saturday matchup. "I loosened it up a little in practice Tuesday," the consensus all-star reported. "And I'll be back in pads and ready to go Saturday."

Anderson Luck Found In—Model Owls?

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Some persons use rabbit's feet for good luck, but Wayne Anderson uses something stranger — model owls.

"About three years at Ak-Sar-Ben I hadn't had a winner in a long time," said the popular jockey after riding three winners on Wednesday's card at the State Fairgrounds. "My wife bought me an owl and then I won two races that day. Another time I went two weekends at Grand Island (Fonner Park) without a winner . . . that's six days without a win and my wife got me three owls. I won three races."

Whether it was the owls he keeps in his locker in the jockeys' room or his ability or that of the horses he was on, but Anderson brought in two longshots and one second-choice.

"I've got maybe 15 to 20 owls . . . everytime I go a little cold, someone sends me an owl," he grinned. "I've got to collecting them now."

Anderson's first win was on David Altemeier's Hecoma, a 2-year-old gelding who was making his first lifetime start, in a four-furlong chase.

Anderson defeated the 4-5 favorite, L. J. Ensminger's Guinea's Star by a nose to return a whopping $99.00, $22.40 and $7.40. That was the longest-priced horse to win at the Fairgrounds this season.

"I didn't know that horse at all. . . I rode him yesterday in a morning workout," Anderson said. "I liked everything I was on today."

He came right back in the fourth race winning by a nose again on Ed Luther's Early Sunset, who downed the 3-5 favorite Courtney Quinn, et al's Miss Stinger in a 6-furlong jaunt.

Early Sunset, the second-favorite of the crowd of 5,229, returned $9.00, $2.80 and $2.20.

He scored on another longshot in the sixth race. He won in another three-horse photo on Lowell Hunsche's I Can Fly, who nipped Jerry Kirby's Chic Tips and Rod Heubner and Oscar Mueller's Slookum.

I can Fly paid $24.60, $9.80 and $6.00 as an 11-1 outsider. Anderson, who has been nicknamed "Avis" for his constant seconds in the Nebraska outstate circuit jockey standings also rode two seconds.

He finished in the runnerup spot aboard John Pensick's Wind Jet in the second race and Russell Hanson's Mr. Jays Tote in the fifth race.

Lincoln To Host KC-Omaha, Kentucky Interleague Clash

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings will play their first city pre-season basketball games Sept. 29 in Pershing Auditorium, club officials announced Wednesday at a press conference in Lincoln.

The game will be unique in that it will be against the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association and fans will get an opportunity to see the rules of that league and the National Basketball Association used one half each.

The first half will feature the ABA red, white and blue ball, the 25-foot 3-point field goal and the 30-second clock. The second half will be played under the more familiar NBA rules with the 24-second clock and the conventional tan ball.

"The three-point rule is one I wish we had in the NBA," remarked Dave Axelsson, advertising and sales director of the Kings, who represented his father, Joe Axelsson, Kings' president and general manager. "It makes the finish exciting in close games."

The Kentucky Colonels are one of the stronger, more established ABA teams, featuring 7-2 Artis Gilmore, who grabbed 1,538 rebounds and scored 1,568 points last season.

He'll be matched against the Kings' Sam Lacey, who topped 1,000 in both rebounds and points in 1973-74.

Other Colonels' stars include former University of Kentucky players Dan Issel, last year's leading scorer with 2,118 points, and guard Louie Dampier, a consistent three-point threat.

The Kings will play 12 regular season games in Omaha's Civic Auditorium this winter and a pre-season game against the Atlanta Hawks there on Oct. 10.

Axelsson reported the Kings' superstar, Nate Archibald is completely recovered from a ruptured Achilles tendon injury which sidelined him for virtually the whole season a year ago. He got into only 35 games and scored 617 points, but was sub-par physically most of the time.

Archibald is running six miles every other day and has his weight down to 157 pounds, which is slender for the 6-1 guard.

Tickets for the game at Pershing won't go on sale until shortly after Labor Day, according to Ike Hoig, manager of Pershing Auditorium. Starting time for the game will be 7:35 p.m.

Other Kings' pre-season games:

Oct. 2, 4, and 5 — Golden State Warriors in Hawaii; Oct. 8 — Utah Stars, site to be announced; Oct. 9 — Atlanta in Huntington, W. Va.; Oct. 10 — Hawks in Des Moines, Ia.

Cincinnati Beats Pirates In Tenth

United Press International

Cesar Geronimo doubled home Dave Concepcion with one out in the 10th inning Wednesday night to give the Cincinnati Reds a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh and move the Reds within 4 1-2 games of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

Concepcion led off the 10th with a single off Pirate relief pitcher Bruce Kison and went to second when Willie Stargell bobbled the ball. The Reds' shortstop held second as George Foster grounded out. Ramon Hernandez then replaced Kison and was greeted by Geronimo's game-winning double, which gave Reds' relief pitcher Clay Carroll his eighth win against three losses.

The Reds took a two-run lead in the third inning when Junior Kennedy walked, took second on a sacrifice and moved to third on an infield out by Pete Rose. After Joe Morgan walked, Kennedy came home when Manny Sanguillen threw wildly to second attempting to cut down Morgan, who stole the first of his three bases for the night. Morgan then scored on Bench's double to left-center.

In other games, New York edged Los Angeles 3-2, Atlanta downed Montreal 6-1. St. Louis tripped San Diego 5-1, Chicago stopped Houston 6-5 and San Francisco beat Philadelphia 6-4.

Rusty Staub's RBI single climaxed a two-run ninth inning rally and enabled New York to nip the Dodgers, giving the Mets a sweep of the three-game series.

Ken Boswell drew a walk to lead off the ninth for the Mets against loser Mike Marshall, 11-8. Boswell took second on a sacrifice and scored when pinch hitter Ron Hodges' long fly to center field was dropped by the Dodgers' Tom Paciorek. Felix Millan then singled to put runners on first and third and Staub ended the game with another single, his third of the game, over Paciorek's head in center field.

Henry Aaron slugged the 729th home run of his career and Dusty Baker hit his 15th of the season to power the Braves to a win over the Expos. It was the sixth win in a row for Atlanta.

Reggie Smith's three-run homer capped a five-run rally in the fifth inning and Alan Foster pitched a six-hitter to give the Cardinals a victory over the Padres.

The Cubs scored four runs in the first inning and then held on with late inning relief help from Oscar Zamora and Jim Todd's first major league save to defeat the Astros and end an eight-game losing streak.

Bobby Bonds connected for a two-run homer in the ninth inning to lead the Giants to a victory over the Phillies.

Tony Solaita belted a three-run homer to highlight a six-run first inning Wednesday night that sparked the Kansas City Royals to a 9-1 win over the Detroit Tigers behind the five-hit pitching of Steve Busby.

It was Busby's 18th win of the year, tying him for the American League lead with Wilbur Wood and Luis Tiant.

The Royals also got a solo home run in the eighth by designated hitter Orlando Cepeda, his first since returning to the major leagues last month after a stint in the Mexican League.

In other early-finishing games, Minnesota trimmed Cleveland 1-0, Chicago edged Baltimore 5-4 and Milwaukee nipped Texas, 6-5.

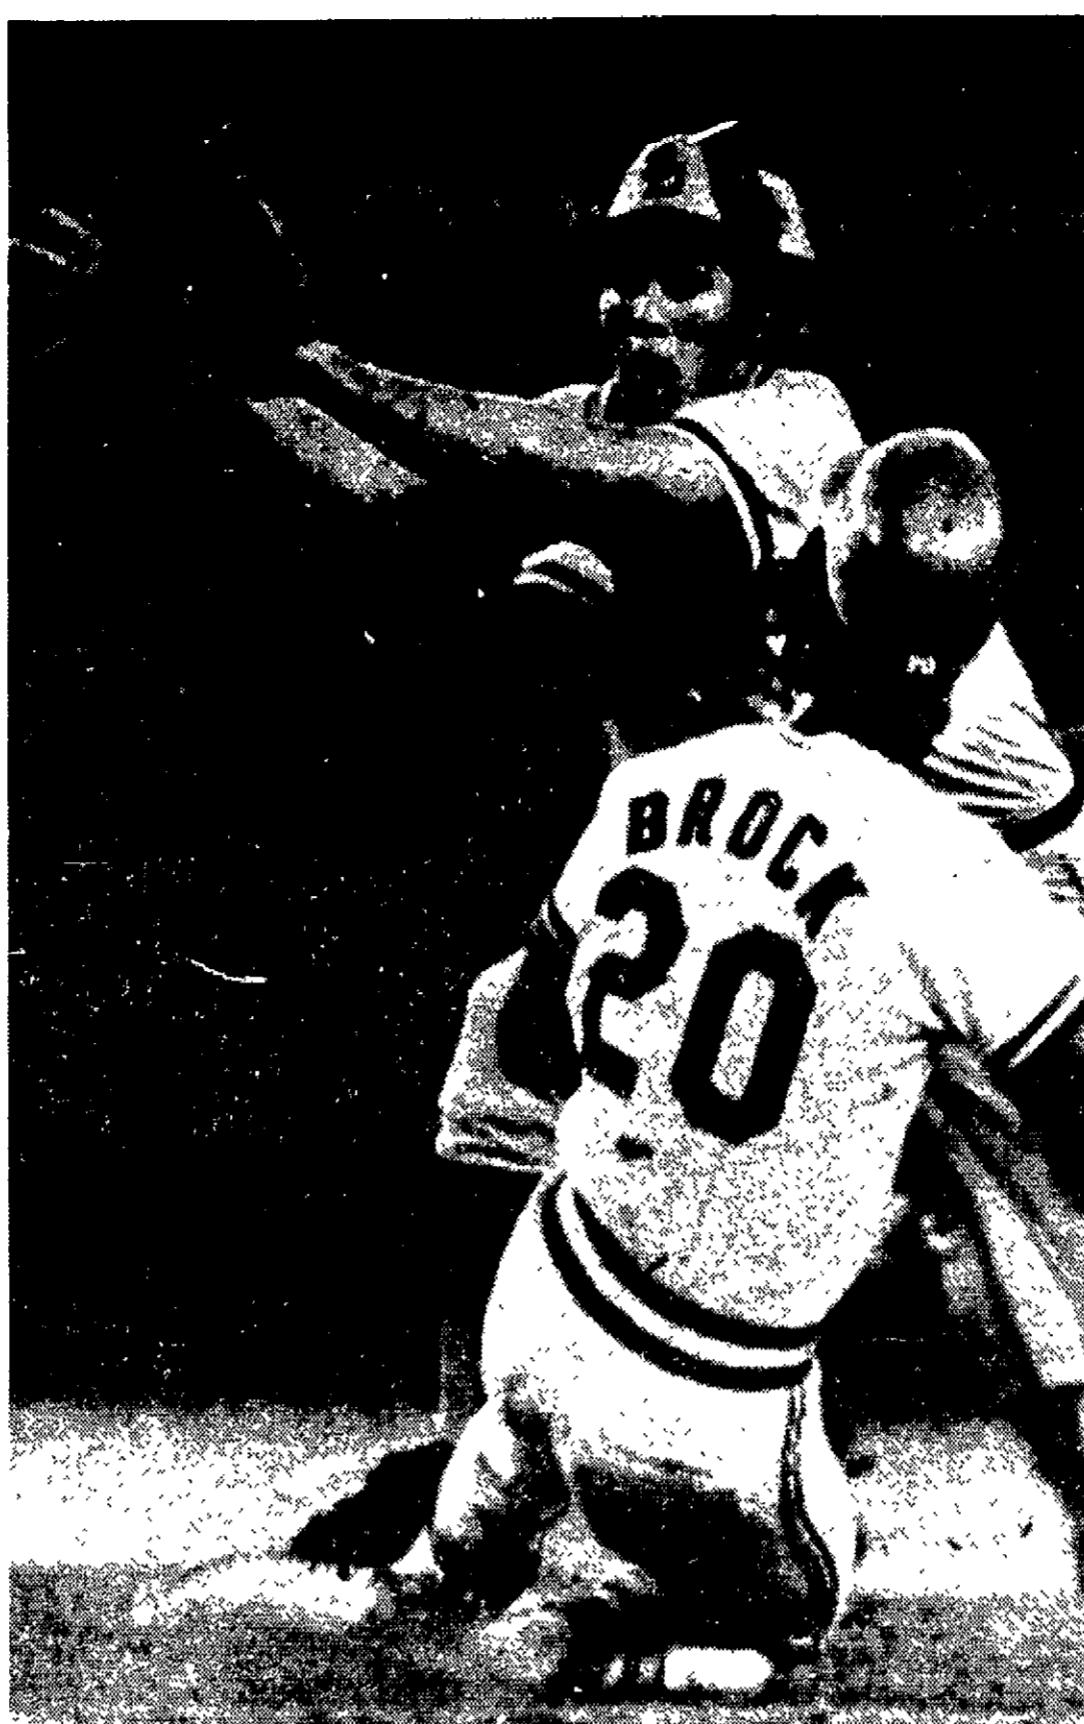

Glenn Borgmann's seventh sacrifice fly of the season scored Bobby Darwin from third base with the winning run in the seventh inning and Joe Decker allowed four hits in eight innings to lead the Twins to a victory over the Indians.

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a single but Brian Downing's two-out eighth inning single knocked in the winning run as the White Sox edged the Orioles.

Pinch-hitter Tim Johnson broke up a tie ballgame with a run-scoring single in the eighth and the Milwaukee Brewers went on to beat the Rangers and sweep their three-game series.

Johnson's hit came off loser Ferguson Jenkins, 16-11 and enabled relief pitcher Tom Murphy to pick up his fifth win of the year against four defeats.

In West Coast games, New York was at Oakland and Boston at California.

Literally hundreds of times now, shortstops and second basemen have had to face this critical moment against St. Louis Cardinal Lou Brock, but San Diego Padre Dave Hilton pulled in the throw from catcher Fred Kendall as Brock's bid for a stolen base falls short.

Hahn Remembers Fantasy Games

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Kearney — The scene is a flashback Six years ago. It's a dirt basketball court in the back of a frame farmhouse between Aurora and Hampton.

A sixth-grader with high basketball aspirations, but without friends to play with, faces an unlikely defensive problem.

A 50-gallon oil barrel looms in front of him on the free throw line, which has been carefully measured and etched out in the dirt with a stick.

The youngster, making believe he's Jerry West, dribbles toward the oil barrel. In his mind, only seconds remain in the game.

All pressure is on him. He's got to put a move on Bill Russell (the oil barrel) and put the ball in the basket for his imaginary Los Angeles Laker teammates to win.

Sure enough, Dave Hahn dribbles left and makes a quick cutback to his right. He releases a lightning-quick ump shot. The ball ripples the net. The 50-gallon barrel has lost again.

"Sometimes, when I would miss that jump shot and realize how many people I was letting down (himself), I would pretend I had been fouled and had to make two free throws to pull the game out," recalls Hahn.

Growing up on a farm created some special problems, according to Hahn, who has been training for the South team the past week in preparation for Friday night's Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star Basketball Game at air-conditioned Pershing Auditorium.

Dave Hahn

"The farm was fun, but when five or six kids are getting together to play basketball in town, you're stuck against yourself or imaginary people," says Hahn, a starting forward for the South all-stars.

Necessity forced Hahn to develop basketball talent almost strictly on his own. "Television helped a lot though," he claims. "I watched every game there was on television and tried to imitate my favorites like Jerry West, Gail Goodrich and Elgin Baylor."

Hahn developed his own high jumping talents, too. Each spring and summer, he would get a pole to go with the one supporting the basket and nail a lighter pole across them at various heights.

By the time he was a junior, he became state Class B high jump champion at 6-4. He earned Class B all-state basketball acclaim last March.

Bill Holliday, his high school basketball coach, believes Hahn is revered in Aurora almost as much as former prep Athlete of the Year Tom Kropp.

"I don't know how many pickup games I've seen around Aurora where I've heard a little kid say he wants to be Dave Hahn," offered Holliday.

Hahn's popularity among Aurora youngsters is understandable. "He goes out of his way to help any kid he can in any way," according to Holliday.

"I do like talking with kids and helping them out, says Hahn. "I know how I had to keep myself occupied on the farm and how much older kids would help me out.

"If you keep to yourself and shrug off young kids who look up to you, they might become discouraged and end up getting in trouble," reasons Hahn. "It's no trouble to give them a little bit of your own time. Besides, they're fun to play with."

It's that type of attitude which has made the Kearney State College-bound Hahn a popular athlete in the South all-star camp.

He gives 100 per cent with a purpose firmly in mind. And it's a team purpose, not an individual one.

Big 8 Requests Suit Dismissal

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The Big Eight athletic conference asked a federal court here Wednesday to dismiss a suit filed against it and the National Collegiate Athletic Association in July over the disciplinary sanctions applied to the University of Oklahoma.

The suit was filed by a new organization called Oklahoma Television Sports, Inc. The firm claimed the Big Eight and NCAA violated antitrust laws in imposing the sanctions.

The Big Eight, in a brief filed with the court, argued it should not be a party to the suit because only the NCAA promulgates rules and policies regarding the telecasting of collegiate sporting events.

Last year, the Big Eight placed OU on a two-year probation for recruiting violations. The Sooners football team was prohibited from participating in post-season bowl games in 1974 and 1975 and cannot appear on a telecast during the 1974 and 1975 seasons.

In the lawsuit filed in July, the firm said it tried to negotiate with OU for the rights to do live telecasts of football games, but that the school refused to negotiate because of the sanctions.

The firm claimed that deprived them of potential monetary gain. But the Big Eight claimed the firm has not been injured by the sanctions and therefore has no right to file the lawsuit under the antitrust laws.

The conference said the firm was not even in existence at the time they made the offer to OU. The offer was made on June 14, 1974, but the firm's articles of incorporation were not filed with the secretary of state until June 10, the Big Eight said.

The brief said that filing came only five days before the suit was filed.

Shrine Camp Unlike Dreary Stories

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

In years past, the regimentation of the Shrine Bowl football camps has filled the air with multitudes of dreary tales, when retold, each more horrendous than before.

This year, the South's head coach Milt Tenopir announced at the opening night meeting, Aug. 3, this year would be different. The results are apparently pleasing, according to South I-back power-speedster Monte Anthony, spring graduate of Bellevue High School.

"We are really enjoying ourselves," Anthony said of the relaxed camp attitude. "I've talked to some of the others who have played in the Shrine Bowl, and I wasn't looking forward to what they were talking about."

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Along about mid-August, the true outdoorsman, the guy or gal who lives fishing and hunting and camping and boating all year round, undergoes a mystical transformation.

It's a changing of the seasons for this fanatic. Kind of like the changing of summer to fall or winter to spring. Hunting begins to creep into the back of the mind. Sort of like a down-and-out pattern.

At first it comes on slow. Fishing generally helps by tapering off in the hot weeks of August. Then the deep pass route. Hunting fever hits like scoring on the long bomb.

Fishing doesn't count any more, even though one of the best times of the year is ahead — from late September into early November.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission also is thinking about hunting this time of year. The seven-man board of commissioners gathers in Lincoln Friday to establish hunting seasons and bag/possession limits for the state's fall and winter months.

Rabbit and squirrel seasons always follow a Sept. 1 start. Few hunters take advantage of this super warmup for the upland bird, waterfowl and big game seasons which follow. Rabbits also are excellent target practice for bow-hunters.

Roadside Bill Tested

While the seasons slowly unravel, another major test will be awaiting hunters this fall. It is the initial step for Nebraska's road hunting bill passed a year ago.

The bill will permit hunting from roadsides with the landowner's permission. As always, the key word in hunting is permission. Too many hunters don't bother to get it.

Asking permission to hunt someone's land is often as simple as knocking on a farm house door. It can and does save a lot of justifiable complaints filed by farm families. I have seldom been turned down to hunting when asking permission. And now is a good time to start asking.

The road hunting bill is a controversial one. Being a native Iowan, I know how such a law should work, because Nebraska's law is patterned largely after Iowa's. The law can work if given a chance.

The first year or two will be the testing time and the roughest time for the law itself. There likely will be violations by immature and irresponsible hunters. But given time, the hunters will mature with the law and legalized road hunting could save a number of headaches in the long run.

I have the notion the road hunting law will affect hunters like a case of initial buck fever. Time and experience will be the cure.

Paterno New Grid Percentage Leader

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Penn State's Joe Paterno has supplanted Arizona State's Frank Kush as the nation's most successful active college football coach in terms of win-loss percentage, according to a list released Wednesday.

The list, prepared annually by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins of the Southeastern Conference office, showed Paterno has 74 wins, 13 losses and 1 tie for a .848 winning percentage. Kush's record is 132-34-1 for a .793 mark.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan is third, followed by Darrell Royal of Texas, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, John McKay of Southern Cal, Charlie McLendon of LSU, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Frank Broyles of Arkansas.

Runty Compares Role of Mustang To Husker

Steve Runty

Runty, the darling of Ogallala during his No. 2 days in the Big Red Empire and the No. 1 quarterback for the Omaha Mustangs, has ambivalent feelings on the question.

"It's really a tough comparison to make," said Runty, who hands down was the top drawing card in the Mustangs' 5-1 semi-pro comeback. They finish their season Saturday night at Cedar Rapids, Ia.

"You always like to go with the best, and that's what Nebraska pretty much was," he said. "It was fun being part of that group, even if I only really played a part in two games."

Runty, Nebraska fans won't soon forget, was subject of Nebraska's hottest debate last fall. He led the Huskers to wins over UCLA and Texas, by far their two most impressive victories of the year.

"You can't compare the Mustang level with Nebraska. But we were winners this year and it was great to have played a major role," said Runty who completed 47.9 per cent of his passes for 1,026 yards and nine touchdowns.

"As far as fun goes, it's hard to compare Nebraska and the Mustangs because of certain pressures involved. Here (the Mustangs) you can make a mistake and not get pulled," he said without rancor. "With the Mustangs I could call my own plays, and send my receivers where I wanted."

It was a neat set-up," he added. "It was a lot more fun than just waiting for the play to be brought into the huddle. I think it's definitely beneficial to football."

But Runty, for all his success with the Mustangs, doesn't think he'll give professional football another crack. He was cut from the California team of the World Football League this summer, and indicated he didn't think he got the greatest shake in the world.

"I don't think I'll try out again," he said. "If you're going to make it at quarterback, you almost have to have a no-cut contract. And they've got to offer you pretty much money."

But if a semi-attractive professional offer did come his way, you can bet the Omaha's most recent sports personality would grab it. It's certain that he's got the confidence of Mustang coach Dallas Dyer.

"I couldn't see how he didn't make it in the NFL, from what I've seen on TV," Dyer opined. "I think he's very definitely got the ability to make it. And he's got a great attitude."

For now, however, Runty is content with his new life in Omaha, a new bride (the former Jean Trowbridge), and prospects for a business career.

"We'll just have to wait and see what the Mustang situation is, what I'm doing, and what they have to offer."

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Along about mid-August, the true outdoorsman, the guy or gal who lives fishing and hunting and camping and boating all year round, undergoes a mystical transformation.

It's a changing of the seasons for this fanatic. Kind of like the changing of summer to fall or winter to spring. Hunting begins to creep into the back of the mind. Sort of like a down-and-out pattern.

At first it comes on slow. Fishing generally helps by tapering off in the hot weeks of August. Then the deep pass route. Hunting fever hits like scoring on the long bomb.

Fishing doesn't count any more, even though one of the best times of the year is ahead — from late September into early November.

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission also is thinking about hunting this time of year. The seven-man board of commissioners gathers in Lincoln Friday to establish hunting seasons and bag/possession limits for the state's fall and winter months.

Rabbit and squirrel seasons always follow a Sept. 1 start. Few hunters take advantage of this super warmup for the upland bird, waterfowl and big game seasons which follow. Rabbits also are excellent target practice for bow-hunters.

Roadside Bill Tested

While the seasons slowly unravel, another major test will be awaiting hunters this fall. It is the initial step for Nebraska's road hunting bill passed a year ago.

The bill will permit hunting from roadsides with the landowner's permission. As always, the key word in hunting is permission. Too many hunters don't bother to get it.

Asking permission to hunt someone's land is often as simple as knocking on a farm house door. It can and does save a lot of justifiable complaints filed by farm families. I have seldom been turned down to hunting when asking permission. And now is a good time to start asking.

The road hunting bill is a controversial one. Being a native Iowan, I know how such a law should work, because Nebraska's law is patterned largely after Iowa's. The law can work if given a chance.

The first year or two will be the testing time and the roughest time for the law itself. There likely will be violations by immature and irresponsible hunters. But given time, the hunters will mature with the law and legalized road hunting could save a number of headaches in the long run.

I have the notion the road hunting law will affect hunters like a case of initial buck fever. Time and experience will be the cure.

Paterno New Grid Percentage Leader

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Penn State's Joe Paterno has supplanted Arizona State's Frank Kush as the nation's most successful active college football coach in terms of win-loss percentage, according to a list released Wednesday.

The list, prepared annually by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins of the Southeastern Conference office, showed Paterno has 74 wins, 13 losses and 1 tie for an .848 winning percentage. Kush's record is 132-34-1 for a .793 mark.

Bo Schembechler of Michigan is third, followed by Darrell Royal of Texas, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, John McKay of Southern Cal, Charlie McLendon of LSU, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Frank Broyles of Arkansas.

Vince Dooley of Georgia is 11th, trailed by Ralph Jordan of Auburn, Bob Blackmon of Illinois, Bill Yeoman of Houston, Jerry Claiborne of Maryland, Bill Hess of Ohio U., Jim Parker of Clemson, Jim Owens of Washington, Paul Dietzel of South Carolina.

Runtz Compares Role of Mustang To Husker

Omaha (UPI) — Steve Runtz and Julius Caesar have somewhat differing attitudes on power and prominence.

Caesar liked to note he would rather be top dog in a remote outpost in the sticks of the empire than the No. 2 man in Rome.

Runtz, the darling from Ogallala during his No. 2 days in the Big Red Empire and the No. 1 quarterback for the Omaha Mustangs, has ambivalent feelings on the question.

"It's really a tough comparison to make," said Runtz, who hands down was the top drawing card in the Mustangs' 5-1 semi-pro comeback. They finish their season Saturday night at Cedar Rapids, Ia.

"You always like to go with the best, and that's what Nebraska pretty much was," he said. "It was fun being part of that group, even if I only really played a part in two games."

Runtz, Nebraska fans won't soon forget, was subject of Nebraska's hottest debate last fall. He led the Huskers to wins over UCLA and Texas, by far their two most impressive victories of the year.

"You can't compare the Mustang level with Nebraska.

But we were winners this year and it was great to have played a major role," said Runtz who completed 47.9 per cent of his passes for 1,026 yards and nine touchdowns.

"As far as fun goes, it's hard to compare Nebraska and the Mustangs because of certain pressures involved. Here (the Mustangs) you can make a mistake and not get pulled," he said without rancor. "With the Mustangs I could call my own plays, and send my receivers where I wanted."

"We had a lot of things going. It was a neat set-up," he added.

"It was a lot more fun than just waiting for the play to be brought into the huddle. I think it's definitely beneficial to football."

But Runtz, for all his success with the Mustangs, doesn't think he'll give professional football another crack. He was cut from the California team of the World Football League this summer, and indicated he didn't think he got the greatest shake in the world.

"I don't think I'll try out again," he said. "If you're going to make it at quarterback, you almost have to have a no-cut contract. And they've got to offer you pretty much money."

But if a semi-attractive professional offer did come his way, you can bet the Omaha's most recent sports personality would grab it. It's certain that he's got the confidence of Mustang coach Dallas Dyer.

"I couldn't see how he didn't make it in the WFL, from what I've seen on TV," Dyer opined. "I think he's very definitely got the ability to make it. And he's got a great attitude."

For now, however, Runtz is content with his new life in Omaha, a new bride (the former Jean Trowbridge), and prospects for a business career.

"We'll just have to wait and see what the Mustang situation is, what I'm doing, and what they have to offer."

Preakness Winner Syndicated

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Little Current, the winner of the Preakness and Belmont Stakes, is being syndicated for $4 million, owner John Galbreath said Wednesday.

Galbreath said the syndication of the 3-year-old colt will be in 40 shares, with him retaining half of them.

So far there have been 35 applications for shares and he has decided favorably on eight of them, Galbreath said. He declined to disclose names.

Little Current will race in Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm colors until he is sent to stud at Darby Dan in Kentucky next year.

Galbreath said he has not decided what will be Little Current's next race after Saturday's Travers Stakes at Saratoga but said he is considering the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe Oct. 6 in Paris and the invitational Marlboro Cup Sept. 14 at Belmont Park. Galbreath's True Knight also has been invited to the Marlboro.

Little Current, beaten a nose by Holding Pattern in the Monmouth Invitational Aug. 3 in his first start since winning the Belmont June 9, could meet top 3-year-old filly Chris Evert in the 1 1/4-mile Travers.

Birmingham Favored

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Undeclared Birmingham Wednesday was made a solid 13 1/2 point choice over the Hawaiians in this week's World Football League odds posted by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

In other games, Chicago is a 6 1/2 point favorite over Philadelphia; Florida 8 1/2 over Jacksonville; Houston 2 1/2 over Southern California; New York 9 1/2 over Portland; and the Memphis-Detroit game was rated even.

Vets Report To Camps —Give Or Take A Few

The National Football League teams had their striking players in camp Wednesday ... well, some did, some didn't and others fell somewhere in between.

In Baltimore, Colts veterans were ready to join the training camp, but team officials asked them not to report until Sunday. Colts' officials said they were too busy preparing for Saturday night's exhibition game against the Cleveland Browns in Tampa, Fla., to accept veterans before Sunday.

A Colts' spokesman said, "We decided it would be better for them to report Sunday morning to pick up their equipment and take their physicals. We have rooms to get ready for them and our equipment manager now is inundated with packing up to get for the trip to Tampa."

Earlier this week, Coach Howard Schnellenberger had criticized the veterans for now showing up as soon as the "cooling off period," scheduled to start Wednesday, was announced Sunday.

The Colts spokesman said, however, Schnellenberger since has come to understand the desire of the players to report as one unit.

The Denver Broncos also have been concerned with acting in concert during the strike and reported en masse to the Broncos' camp Wednesday.

Other teams had a few stragglers as most of the NFL veterans reported to camp, but the Minnesota Vikings faced possible resistance in the form of one-man gang Alan Page, the team's player representative.

Thirty Vikings' vets arrived at camp Wednesday despite Page's insistence that they would stay out on strike. By noon, the only players not to report were Page and linebackers Roy Winston and Wally Hilgenberg. A team spokesman said the linebackers were expected shortly.

The Pittsburgh Steelers were missing five players at noon, but had been in contact with four and expected them to report later in the day. The fifth, defensive tackle Tom Keating, is a member of the Players Association bargaining unit and a Steelers' spokesman believed he may be tied up in work on the negotiations committee.

Work on the negotiating committee was also the reason given for the absence of Kermit Alexander in the Philadelphia Eagles' camp. The only two other players absent from camp, Randy Logan and Gary Pettigrew, were expected to report when they take care of personal business.

Actually, except for Page and perhaps one or two others, the players appeared to accept the strike moratorium, despite whatever reservations some had on the tactic.

New York Giants' fullback Vincent Clements, who has signed with the World Football League for next season, was quoted Tuesday as planning to remain on strike until a contract settlement is reached.

But, in the New York Jets' Hofstra University training camp, Joe Namath reported — an annual sign that the vast majority of the players already have joined their teams in training camp.

Namath never has been known as a premature arrival for the rigors of training.

ROTUNDA, Fla. (UPI) — Olympic pole vaulter Bob Seagren won four events and was named winner Wednesday of the first of three qualifying rounds for the third annual Superstars competition.

Seagren accumulated a total of 60 points, worth $16,000, in the two and a half days of rain-delayed qualifying competition by winning the speed rowing, swimming, 100-yard dash, half-mile run and obstacle course events and finishing second in the bike race and third in weight lifting.

Another pole vaulter, Steve Smith, finished second in the qualifying round with 38 points and earned $8,800. He won the weight lifting and finished second in rowing, swimming, the obstacle course and 100yard dash.

Speed skater Ard Schenk finished third in the qualifying round with 23 1/2 points and basketball star John Havlicek finished fourth.

Two more qualifying rounds will be held in January to round out the field for the finals.

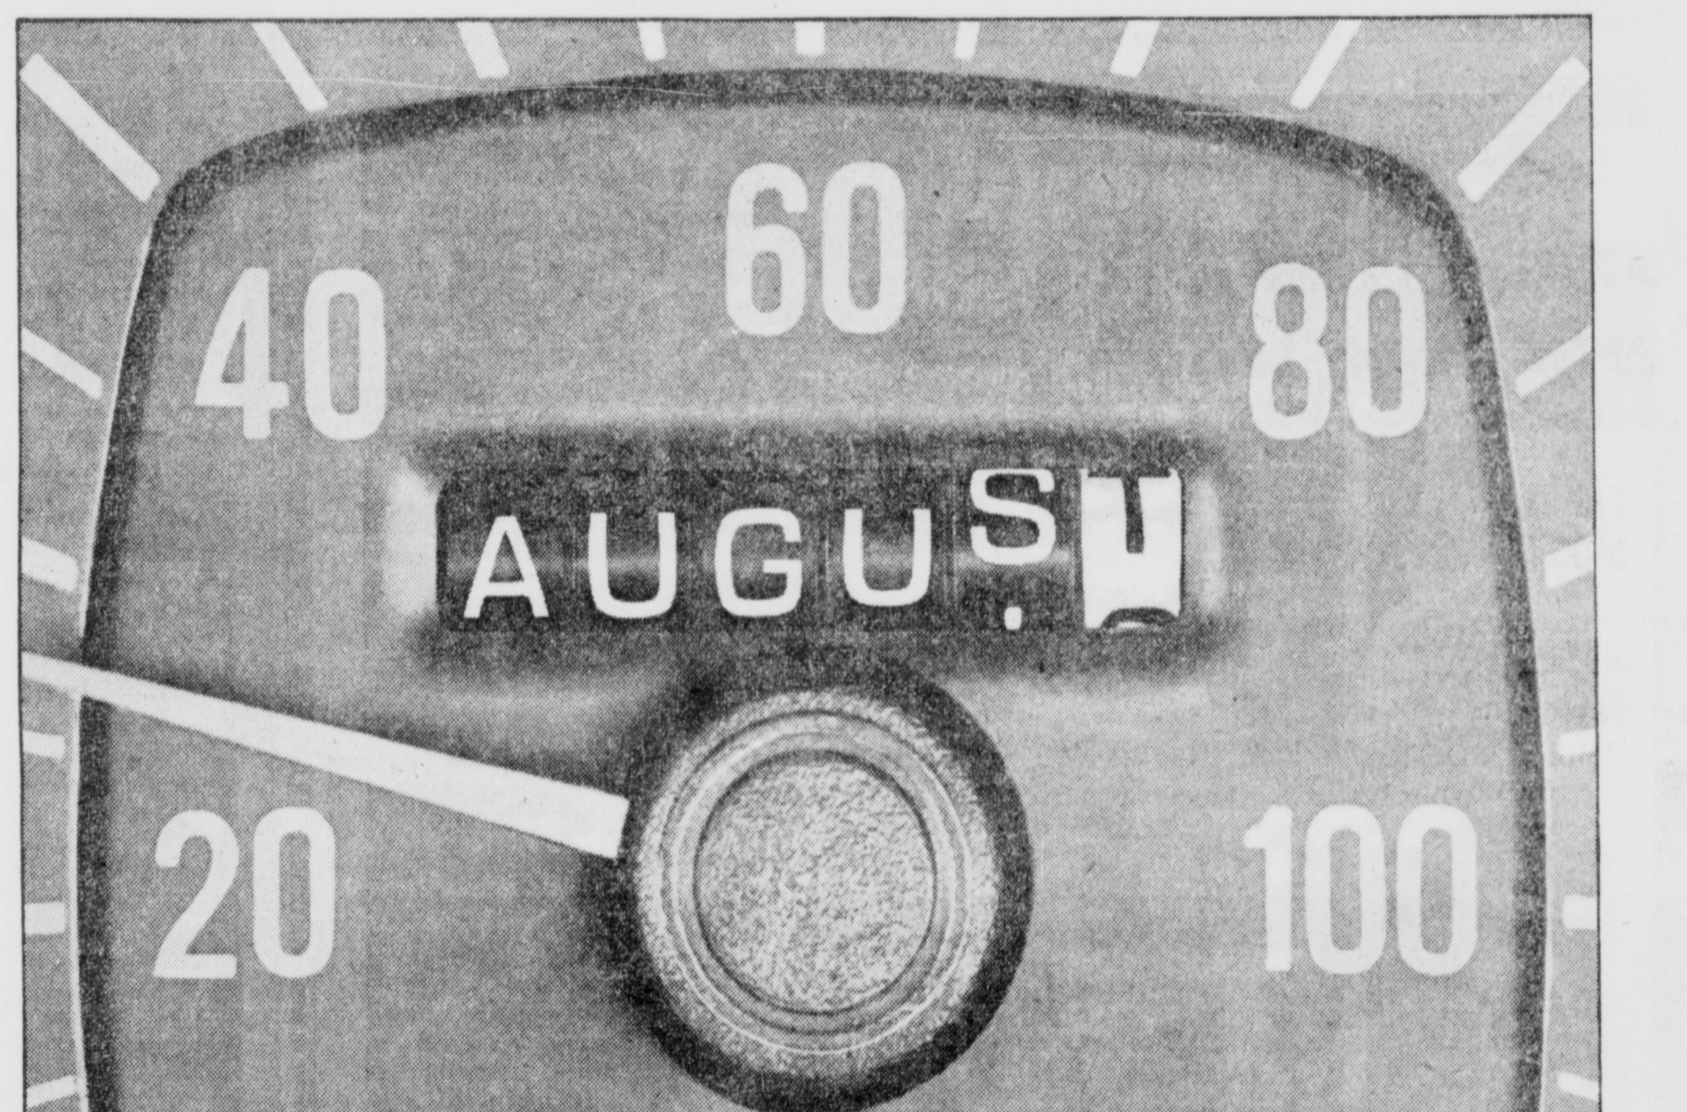

Death Claims Youth Gridder

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) — A 17-year-old Kentucky youth has died after sustaining an injury Saturday in a high school football scrimmage.

Michael Ballard, the son of Mrs. Barbara Jo Ballard of Richmond, died Tuesday at the University of Kentucky's Chandler Medical Center, according to Richmond Madison High School coach Monty Joe Lovell.

Lovell said Ballard, a linebacker, collapsed while running from the practice field after a play and never regained consciousness.

The coach said the injury occurred in the upper spine at the base of the brain. He said an autopsy was not performed at the request of the boy's mother.

GOP Officials Urge Bush As Vice President

Nebraska's top three Republican Party officials have urged the selection of GOP National Chairman George Bush as President Ford's vice president.

National Committeeman Richard Herman, National Committeewoman Patricia Lahr Smith and State Chairman Bill Barrett sent telegrams to members of the GOP national committee urging support for Bush.

"He has an understanding of the domestic and international situation and the confidence of the domestic and international leaders because of his sincerity, intelligence, integrity, judgment and sincerity, intelligence, integrity, judgment and ability to make considered decisions," the telegram stated.

Bush was also proposed for selection as vice president by Congressman John McCollister of Omaha.

Sen. Carl Curtis named Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona as his first choice, but also endorsed Bush and former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird.

Sen. Roman Hruska suggested four names, in alphabetical order, without listing a preference. They were Sen.

Howard Baker of Tennessee, former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Bush and Goldwater.

Congressman Charles Thone of Lincoln said he will not propose any names, suggesting he will be satisfied with Ford's choice.

First Minilibrary Nearing Completion

Construction of the city's first mini-library in Van Dorn Park should be completed by next week, Library Board members were told Wednesday.

Library Director Charles Dalrymple reported that the platform is constructed and that Clark Construction Co. should complete erecting the prefabricated building by Monday or Tuesday.

The public will not be able to start checking out books and other periodicals until mid September, he said, since mechanical work must be completed and the library furnished.

The Library Board spent a year searching for a site in the Indian Village vicinity, near S. 13th and High.

When no arrangement could be reached, the Parks and Recreation Board agreed to furnish land in Van Dorn Park, near 10th and Van Dorn.

GOP Officials Urge Bush As Vice President

Nebraska's top three Republican Party officials have urged the selection of GOP National Chairman George Bush as President Ford's vice president.

National Committeeman Richard Herman, National Committeewoman Patricia LaRue Smith and State Chairman Bill Barrett sent telegrams to members of the GOP national committee urging support for Bush.

"He has an understanding of the domestic and international situation and the confidence of the domestic and international leaders because of his sincerity, intelligence, integrity, judgment and sincerity, intelligence, integrity, judgment and ability to make considered decisions," the telegram stated.

Bush was also proposed for selection as vice president by Congressman John McCollister of Omaha.

Sen. Carl Curtis named Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona as his first choice, but also endorsed Bush and former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird.

Sen. Roman Hruska suggested four names, in alphabetical order, without listing a preference. They were Sen.

Howard Baker of Tennessee, former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Bush and Goldwater.

Congressman Charles Thone of Lincoln said he will not propose any names, suggesting he will be satisfied with Ford's choice.

First Minilibrary Nearing Completion

Construction of the city's first mini-library in Van Dorn Park should be completed by next week, Library Board members were told Wednesday.

Library Director Charles Dalrymple reported that the platform is constructed and that Clark Construction Co. should complete erecting the prefabricated building by Monday or Tuesday.

The public will not be able to start checking out books and other periodicals until mid September, he said, since mechanical work must be completed and the library furnished.

The Library Board spent a year searching for a site in the Indian Village vicinity, near S. 13th and High.

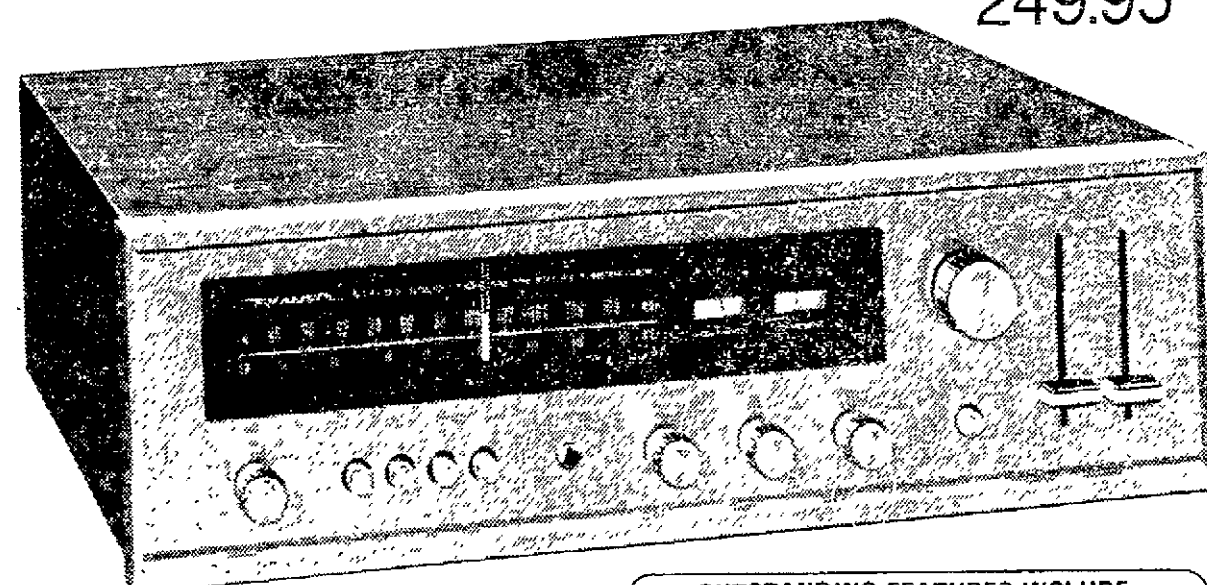

When no armament could be reached, the Parks and Recreation Board agreed to furnish land in Van Dorn Park, near 10th and Van Dorn.

Brothers Arrested In Scottsbluff Holdup

Scottsbluff (AP) — Four Scottsbluff-area brothers were arrested early Wednesday morning on charges stemming from an April 15 armed robbery at the Ramada Inn here.

Officials said about $9,000 in cash and checks was taken in the holdup.

After a lengthy investigation, Scottsbluff police and Scotts Bluff County sheriff's officers served the warrants, and made the arrests in simultaneous raids.

Police said Gerald Richter, 23, of Mitchell, was being held on $50,000 bond after being charged with armed robbery and conspiracy to rob. His brother, Ronald, 27, of Scottsbluff, was also held on $50,000 bond in charges of concealing a conspiracy.

A third brother, Vernon, 26, also of Scottsbluff, was charged with concealing a conspiracy, falsifying police records and being an accessory after the fact, and was released on $5,000 bond.

Joe Richter, 32, also of Scottsbluff, was released on $1,000 bond after being charged with concealing a conspiracy and falsifying police records.

A string of charges, some involving the Ramada Inn holdup, are also pending against a Scottsbluff woman.

Sherry Pascoe, 28, a former catering manager at the Ramada Inn, was arrested shortly after the April 15 incident at a road block near Torrington, Wyo.

A trial date for the Pascoe woman has not been set.

Funds Application OK'd To Hire More County Deputies

The Lincoln Star 27
Thursday, August 15, 1974

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

An application for funds to beef up the Lancaster County Sheriff's staff by six deputies received the blessing Wednesday of the Region II Crime Commission.

The sheriff requested $60,916.14 for six additional deputies which the county board has agreed to finance after the first year, providing the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funds are approved.

Sheriff Merle Karnopp, in response to questions by Commission Member Sue Bailey as to why this is an appropriate application for LEAA funds, said that under new provisions funds may be made available for one year for additional personnel.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Spahn told the Commission that the workload of the sheriff's office has increased 15% during the first seven months of 1973.

He said two more deputies are needed to be assigned to the warrant units of the office which leaves the patrol units short.

"The patrol coverage in the county is already inadequate to meet the rising demand," he said.

Karnopp, who is a commission member, said that the situation in his office is "critical."

Mrs. Bailey, who was the only member voting in opposition to the grant, and Eric McMasters indicated they weren't opposed to the request or in doubt of the need but that the Commission was failing to follow guidelines it had set up for approving grants.

Mrs. Bailey also voted against a $5,000 grant approved by the Commission which would provide funds to the sheriff's office to enable personnel to attend advanced training seminars throughout the county.

She explained that she was not opposed to the proposal, per se, but was opposed to the inconsistency of the Commission in acting on grants which had not been routed through the appropriate channels before being presented to the Commission.

Unit Approved
The Commission gave approval for the second year for $129,700.15 for the major crimes unit for the Lincoln Police Department.

The major crimes unit concentrates its efforts on narcotics cases and related burglaries and robberies.

Unanimous approval was given for two Youth Service

System grants.

One involves $70,000 in funds from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to continue funding the system.

It was explained that the amount was double that of last year because LEAA funds were not received last year and more funds are needed to implement new programs.

$800 Granted
The second grant of $800 approved by Region II is for financing a Youth Needs Workshop involving 76 junior and senior high age youths, 10 of whom will be school dropouts.

The Commission was told that the workshop, scheduled for Sept. 17, will include small group determination of what unmet needs for youth exist in the community and which task forces will be assigned to work on the needs cited by the youth.

Action was deferred on a request for funds by Creighton University Law School to extend its criminal justice research system to include Lancaster and Douglas counties.

Extended Service
Mike Fenner explained that a previous grant includes the other 91 counties but approval of this grant involving $24,734 in federal and $1,374 in state as well as local funds, would extend the service to be state-wide.

He said the service provides requested research for attorneys in city and county government as well as for the courts.

The Lancaster County Board Tuesday refused to approve the $343 requested from the county because the county attorney's office indicated that they would not utilize such a service since it has its own law clerk staff to perform such functions.

Fenner said City Attorney Dick Wood had indicated his office would utilize the service, but Municipal Judge Thomas McManus said that he didn't think any of the courts had been contacted and they are "alleged beneficiaries" of the service.

Crime Group Votes To Be Autonomous

Region II Crime Commission Wednesday voted itself an autonomous group and authorized the chairman to act for the commission in hiring a full-time regional director.

The commission members were told that 30 applications have been received for the position required under new regulations.

After considerable discussion as to what actual authority the commission possesses, the commission gave Chairman Roger Larson the authority to hire the new director subject to its approval.

Larson said his committee would be in contact with the City Council, County Board and mayor before making a decision to present for commission approval.

Bailey, Merwick Opposed
Voting against the autonomous organization were City Council member Sue Bailey and the Mayor's Administrative Assistant Mike Merwick.

A proposed ordinance to give the mayor authority to appoint the director subject to the approval of the City Council, the County Board and the commission drew strong opposition from some of the commission members.

The proposed ordinance would also give the mayor authority to appoint all members of the commission with City Council and County Board approval.

Several Not Sure
Several indicated they were not sure the body could really be governed by a city ordinance since the region includes all of Lancaster County.

County Board Chairman Robert Colin said the County Board would oppose the mayor's making appointments because such appointments should be a joint venture of the city and county.

"We're all citizens of Lancaster County, but we're not all citizens of Lincoln," he said.

Mrs. Bailey, who had indicated special legislation might be required to define the authority of the commission, said she favored the county in cooperation with the city having some sort of established authority over the Crime Commission.

Funds Problem
She said she opposed the city having the authority as outlined in the proposed ordinance but thought there are problems with an autonomous commission if federal funds evaporate.

Municipal Judge Thomas McManus agreed that some sort of enabling legislation might be necessary.

Larson said that the commission has authority but must have the cooperation of both the city and county to function.

Officials Of Juvenile Agencies Discuss Overcrowding, Funds

What happens in Lincoln when kids get into trouble — real trouble?

—Too much of the agencies' funding is spent for administration and not enough for direct help.

—Not enough money or manpower is spent for early prevention, before a crisis entraps a child.

—The community isn't fully aware of what services are available, and even the agencies don't communicate with each other.

—Parents are reluctant to admit their children have a problem.

All Apply
No matter which one you might have picked as a key problem, you're right. They all apply, according to testimony Tuesday at a hearing to prepare a plan for statewide juvenile services.

Psychology Professor Brian Sarata of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln conducted the sixth hearing in the state in Lincoln under the 1974 Legislature's directive to form the plan.

Juvenile Court Judge W. W. Nuenberger said, while it appears there are sufficient numbers of referral agencies, they "are already filled to capacity."

Lincoln and southeast Nebraska need an "ability to serve new (court) referrals that come in all the time," he said.

Can't Respond To Need
Agency directors and representatives agreed, saying they cannot respond to the need for juvenile services.

Specific problems cited include a need for foster homes, group homes and supervised apartment living for State Welfare Department wards.

Others noted a need for more short-term living arrangements for juvenile offenders and more job opportunities for teenagers.

Innovations Restricted
While testimony indicated agencies should redefine their priorities, many of the witnesses said the community sometimes restricts agencies' tries at innovative approaches. They agreed they have little freedom to work with parents.

Acknowledging a need to deal with older offenders, they also agreed with retired social worker professor Albert Schreiner: "The challenge for this community is to develop the kinds of services that will find trouble at the very start."

He said the school system needs more social workers (there are two, and six psychologists) for 30,000 Lincoln students. But education officials disagreed, saying handling referrals is enough.

'Horrible' Fragmentation
James A. Foley of the Lincoln Regional Center attacked the juvenile service system for the "horrible" fragmentation in use of services. He said some youth are labeled mentally ill, only because a more appropriate agency had no room for them.

Funds Application OK'd To Hire More County Deputies

Averages Hit 4-Year Lows

New York (AP) — The stock market stumbled through its worst day of a bad week Wednesday, dragging the popular averages to new four-year lows in the process.

Brokers said that with the new concern over fighting in Cyprus piled on top of such continuing worries as inflation and high interest rates, the market was simply unable to attract any support.

The more broadly based New York Stock Exchange composite index sank to a 49-month low with a .91 drop to 40.28, its lowest finish since July 9, 1970.

NYSE volume stepped up slightly to 11.75 million shares. The Dow, which climbed 43 points in the first three days of last week in anticipation of the transfer of the presidency from Richard M. Nixon to President Ford, has fallen back more than 57 points in the five trading days since then.

Brokers said the market reacted with particular sensitivity

The selling once again focused on high-priced growth and blue-chip issues which have been the favorites of institutional investors in recent years.

The count in feedlots as of Aug. 1 was down 23 per cent from the same period in 1973 in the seven state providing the bulk of the slaughter marketing for the country.

During July, about seven per cent more cattle were placed on

Trotter Speaker At UNL Meet

Virginia Y. Trotter, assistant secretary for education in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will be among featured speakers Friday at the third annual Commissioner's Day in Lincoln.

About 300 Nebraska school administrators are expected to attend the meeting, sponsored by the State Department of Education, in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Student Union ballroom, 14th & R.

Other speakers include John Prash, Lincoln Public Schools superintendent; Howard B. Casney Minnesota education commissioner, and Cecil E. Stanley, Nebraska education commissioner.

City, County Engineering Consolidation Favored

Consolidation of the city and county engineering departments into one department received the endorsement of the Citizens Advisory Committee of the City-County Implementation Commission (CCIC).

The committee adopted the Public Works Task Force's report recommending such a merger and sent that recommendation onto the CCIC for further action. The CCIC, which is composed of five elected officials, will hold its regular monthly meeting Aug. 21.

Under the plan, all city and county engineering, traffic engineering, inspections, real estate, solid waste disposal, road maintenance and a central garage would be contained in one department.

The director of that department would be appointed, as is the city's public work director, not elected, as is the county engineer.

Task Force Chairman Verne Traudt said the combination of engineering areas would result in better services to taxpayers.

House Approves

Washington — The U. S. House of Representatives has approved an additional $3 million in railroad safety funding for Lancaster County, Rep. Charles Thone said Wednesday. The Senate-House compromise appropriations bill approved by the House authorizes $3 million for Lancaster County's Railroad Transportation

Task force member Jim Blackman said a work pool could be created to allow employees to help out on projects when they have completed their own work.

Traudt acknowledged that in order for the merger to occur, it may be necessary to seek enabling legislation. One such area in which legislation may be needed would be to change the elective status of the county engineer.

Any recommendation from the CCIC will be forwarded to the City Council and County Board for final action.

Railroad Funds For Lancaster

Safety District (RTSD) during fiscal 1974-75.

Already approved for RTSD during the fiscal year which ended June 30, was $1.4 million in funding.

The $3 million will finance plans for construction of additional railroad track around the Burlington Northern yards near West O, leading to abandonment of the BN crossing on West O. Part of the money may also be used for engineering work leading to the abandonment of a segment of Rock Island track leading south from downtown Lincoln, Thone said.

Trotter Speaker At UNL Meet
Virginia Y. Trotter, assistant secretary for education in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will be among featured speakers Friday at the third annual Commissioner's Day in Lincoln.
About 300 Nebraska school administrators are expected to attend the meeting, sponsored by the State Department of Education, in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Student Union ballroom, 14th & R.
Other speakers include John Prash, Lincoln Public Schools superintendent; Howard B. Casmey, Minnesota education commissioner, and Cecil E. Stanley, Nebraska education commissioner.

City, County Engineering Consolidation Favored
Consolidation of the city and county engineering departments into one department received the endorsement of the Citizens Advisory Committee of the City-County Implementation Commission (CCIC).
The committee adopted the Public Works Task Force's report recommending such a merger and sent that recommendation onto the CCIC for further action. The CCIC, which is composed of five elected officials, will hold its regular monthly meeting Aug. 21.
Under the plan, all city and county engineering, traffic engineering, inspections, real estate, solid waste disposal, road maintenance and a central garage would be contained in one department.
The director of that department would be appointed, as is the city's public work director, not elected, as is the county engineer.
Task Force Chairman Verne Traudt said the combination of engineering areas would result in better services to taxpayers.
Task force member Jim Blackman said a work pool could be created to allow employees to help out on projects when they have completed their own work.
Traudt acknowledged that in order for the merger to occur, it may be necessary to seek enabling legislation. One such area in which legislation may be needed would be to change the elective status of the county engineer.
Any recommendation from the CCIC will be forwarded to the City Council and County Board for final action.

House Approves Railroad Funds For Lancaster

Washington — The U. S. House of Representatives has approved an additional $3 million in railroad safety funding for Lancaster County, Rep. Charles Thone said Wednesday.
The Senate-House compromise appropriations bill approved by the House authorizes $3 million for Lancaster County's Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD) during fiscal 1974-75.
Already approved for RTSD during the fiscal year which ended June 30, was $1.4 million in funding.
The $3 million will finance plans for construction of additional railroad track around the Burlington Northern yards near West O, leading to abandonment of the BN crossing on West O.
Part of the money may also be used for engineering work leading to the abandonment of a segment of Rock Island track leading south from downtown Lincoln, Thone said.

CHILDREN WHO NEED HEARING AIDS

"Children who need hearing aids should be discovered and fitted at as early an age as possible. The time to begin working with a hard of hearing or deaf child is the moment the problem is discovered, regardless of age. A hearing aid can be fitted to very young children, even infants. It is also of utmost importance that the parents be counseled and guided and helped to understand how vital a role they must play at home in helping the child to learn speech and language, especially during the pre-school years." . . . The above was written by A. J. Brizzolara, M.D., and R.R. Hawkins, M.A., and appeared in the MAICO Audiological Library Series. County Reports Low TB Incidence

While only five newly diagnosed cases of active tuberculosis (TB) were reported in Lancaster County last year, the Lincoln-Lancaster Health Dept. continues an active program of free tuberculin skin tests.

This past Monday and Wednesday mass screening clinics were held for the 300 employees of the Southeast Nebraska Community Technical College.

Mrs. Margaret Royer, chief of the public health nursing division, said that over 7,000 public and parochial school employees, including teachers, foodhandlers and custodians, were tested this past spring.

State To Press Suit For Highways Funds

Omaha (AP) — The State of Nebraska will press its federal suit for about $20 million in highway funds, Gov. J. James Exon said Wednesday.

Exon said the suit would "pry loose the money we have coming to us" from the U.S. highway construction fund.

The governor said the state's highway program would continue without a gasoline tax increase, if the federal money is received.

The state is not "asking for a grant," he said. "It's our money. The people of the State of Nebraska have paid into it (the fund). They are impounding that money."

Exon said "if and when" it becomes necessary to hike the gasoline tax in order to continue highway building, "your governor will be in the forefront."

Exon spoke at the official opening of the last stretch of I-680 in north Omaha. The new stretch of highway extends from 48th Street to the Mormon Bridge.

The opening, along with the planned Oct. 19 dedication of a portion of I-80 between Sidney and Potter, will make Nebraska "the first state in the nation to complete its mainline interstate," Exon said.

I-680 is a 10-mile bypass of Omaha that will be known as the Mormon Trail Interstate, in commemoration of early settlers who established a site on the west bank of the Missouri River in 1846 from which to launch overland expeditions to Utah.

Fort Calhoun Plant Struck By Lightning

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District's (OPPD) Fort Calhoun nuclear power station finally won a battle with Motor Nature when it cranked back up about 3 p.m. Wednesday afternoon.

OPPD's Vice President for Public Relations Dan Kelly said the plant was generating some 240,000 kilowatts late Wednesday, about 40% of maximum capability.

The plant had been producing about 375,000 kilowatts before lightning somehow knocked it out of service just before 11 a.m. Tuesday. The plant started up again about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, but problems caused officials to shut down again about three hours later.

Kelly said the plant will be brought back up to 375,000 kilowatts some time Thursday "if things check out."

He said OPPD bought up to 130,000 kilowatts of power from neighboring utilities to meet its load Wednesday afternoon.

OPPD officials are not quite sure how lightning knocked the big generator out originally. Kelly said one Fort Calhoun employee quipped, "We made Mother Nature jealous."

And Kelly added, "one force of electricity sort of battled the other and we lost momentarily."

Butz Remark Raises Grand Rapids Hackles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A casual remark by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz about President Ford being from a country town has produced angry reactions from Grand Rapids, Mich., including a reported demand to the White House that Butz be fired.

Last Friday, shortly after Ford was sworn in as the 38th President, Butz spoke to employees about how he thought administration policies affecting USDA would develop.

"I think he approves of what we're doing, he's a man of the soil — Grand Rapids is just a country town," Butz said.

"You take a couple of furniture factories out of the place, a stiff wind would blow it into Canada. I don't see much change. But beyond that here's a man who has a basic faith in America," he said.

A department spokesman said that infuriated the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce which expressed disbelief that Butz would say such a thing but then read a transcript of the secretary's remarks.

Raymond Kerr, Businessman, Dies At Age 65

Funeral services for Raymond W. Kerr, Lincoln and Hastings businessman, will be 11 a.m. Friday at the Roper and Sons Chapel.

Kerr died Tuesday in Lincoln. He was 65.

He was the founder of R. W. Kerr Building Specialties in Hastings, Sioux City, Iowa, and Madison, Wis., and Kerrco, Inc., in Lincoln and Hastings.

At the time of his death he was president of Kerrco, R. W. Kerr Realty and D. L. C. Corp., all of Hastings.

Kerr was a member of the Sheridan Lutheran Church, Society of Plastics Engineers, Hastings Chamber of Commerce and the Republican party.

Survivors include his wife, Muriel; two sons, Donald and Marvin Kerr, both of Hastings; a daughter, Mrs. Betty Honaker of Sioux City, Iowa; a sister, Mrs. Eloise Jones of Hastings; and nine grandchildren.

Alliance Hospital Gets $872,634 Building Grant

Washington (AP) — The Box Butte General Hospital in Alliance has been selected to receive a Hill-Burton matching-construction grant of $872,634, Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., said Wednesday.

The money will be matched by local funds and will be used to construct a new, 50-bed acute-care facility.

The new facility will replace an existing 54-bed hospital, which has been used for the past 60 years.

Fremont First Dividend Rises

Shareholders in the Fremont First State Co. were voted a 10% common-stock dividend by directors of the company.

Stockholders as of Aug. 26 may receive their 10% dividend that day or as soon as certificates can be issued, directors decided.

The company owns the First State Bank of Fremont.

Employees in nursing homes and childcare centers are also among those screened annually. Mrs. Royer went on to say that TB is pretty much under control.

Three or four newly diagnosed cases turn up each year, she said. But she added that most positive skin test reactions are on people who have moved into the state.

"The chances for native Nebraskans having positive reactions are more rare than some other states," she said.

Mrs. Royer credited the emphasis on skin testing for the reduced incidence of TB among Nebraskans.

She explained that 75% of newly diagnosed cases of active TB come from those who have positive reactions on the tuberculin skin test.

But she added that a number of those with positive reactions do not necessarily have active TB. Such a reaction, she said, might indicate that sometime during the person's life he had primary TB which is now latent.

Mrs. Royer stressed that TB is now controllable and rarely fatal.

"It's also very difficult to pick up," she noted. A person must be in close proximity to a TB-patient for a long time, she explained. The disease is passed on only through a droplet from coughing or sneezing that reaches the nose or mouth of another.

Free skin tests are available to anyone in the county every Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Lincoln-Lancaster Health Dept., 2200 St. Marys, or at any one of the 10 nursing stations throughout the county.

County Reports Low TB Incidence

While only five newly diagnosed cases of active tuberculosis (TB) were reported in Lancaster County last year, the Lincoln-Lancaster Health Dept. continues an active program of free tuberculin skin tests.

This past Monday and Wednesday mass screening clinics were held for the 300 employees of the Southeast Nebraska Community Technical College.

Mrs. Margaret Royer, chief of the public health nursing division, said that over 7,000 public and parochial school employees, including teachers, foodhandlers and custodians, were tested this past spring.

Employees in nursing homes and childcare centers are also among those screened annually.

Mrs. Royer went on to say that TB is pretty much under control.

Three or four newly diagnosed cases turn up each year, she said. But she added that most positive skin test reactions are on people who have moved into the state.

"The chances for native Nebraskans having positive reactions are more rare than some other states," she said.

Mrs. Royer credited the emphasis on skin testing for the reduced incidence of TB among Nebraskans.

She explained that 75% of newly diagnosed cases of active TB come from those who have positive reactions on the tuberculin skin test.

But she added that a number of those with positive reactions do not necessarily have active TB. Such a reaction, she said, might indicate that sometime during the person's life he had primary TB which is now latent.

Mrs. Royer stressed that TB is now controllable and rarely fatal.

"It's also very difficult to pick up," she noted. A person must be in close proximity to a TB-patient for a long time, she explained. The disease is passed on only through a droplet from coughing or sneezing that reaches the nose or mouth of another.

Free skin tests are available to anyone in the county every Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Lincoln-Lancaster Health Dept., 2200 St. Marys, or at any one of the 10 nursing stations throughout the county.

State To Press Suit For Highways Funds

Omaha (AP) — The State of Nebraska will press its federal suit for about $20 million in highway funds, Gov. J. James Exon said Wednesday.

Exon said the suit would "pry loose the money we have coming to us" from the U.S. highway construction fund.

The governor said the state's highway program would continue without a gasoline tax increase, if the federal money is received.

The state is not "asking for a grant," he said. "It's our money. The people of the State of Nebraska have paid into it (the fund). They are impounding that money."

Exon said "if and when" it becomes necessary to hike the gasoline tax in order to continue highway building, "your governor will be in the forefront."

Exon spoke at the official opening of the last stretch of I-680 in north Omaha. The new stretch of highway extends from 48th Street to the Mormon Bridge.

The opening, along with the planned Oct. 19 dedication of a portion of I-80 between Sidney and Potter, will make Nebraska "the first state in the nation to complete its mainline interstate," Exon said.

I-680 is a 10-mile bypass of Omaha that will be known as the Mormon Trail Interstate, in commemoration of early settlers who established a site on the west bank of the Missouri River in 1846 from which to launch overland expeditions to Utah.

Fort Calhoun Plant Struck By Lightning

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District's (OPPD) Fort Calhoun nuclear power station finally won a battle with Motor Nature when it cranked back up about 3 p.m. Wednesday afternoon.

OPPD's Vice President for Public Relations Dan Kelly said the plant was generating some 240,000 kilowatts late Wednesday, about 40% of maximum capability.

The plant had been producing about 375,000 kilowatts before lightning somehow knocked it out of service just before 11 a.m. Tuesday. The plant started up again about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, but problems caused officials to shut down again about three hours later.

Kelly said the plant will be brought back up to 375,000 kilowatts some time Thursday "if things check out."

He said OPPD bought up to 130,000 kilowatts of power from neighboring utilities to meet its load Wednesday afternoon.

OPPD officials are not quite sure how lightning knocked the big generator out originally. Kelly said one Fort Calhoun employee quipped, "We made Mother Nature jealous."

And Kelly added, "one force of electricity sort of battled the other and we lost momentarily."

Butz Remark Raises GrandRapids Hackles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A casual remark by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz about President Ford being from a country town has produced angry

ry reactions from Grand Rapids, Mich., including a reported demand to the White House that Butz be fired.

Last Friday, shortly after Ford was sworn in as the 38th President, Butz spoke to employees about how he thought administration policies affecting USDA would develop.

"I think he approves of what we're doing, he's a man of the soil — Grand Rapids is just a country town," Butz said.

"You take a couple of furniture factories out of the place, a stiff wind would blow it into Canada. I don't see much change. But beyond that here's a man who has a basic faith in America," he said.

A department spokesman said that infuriated the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce which expressed disbelief that Butz would say such a thing but then read a transcript of the secretary's remarks.

Raymond Kerr, Businessman, Dies At Age 65

Survivors include his wife, Muriel; two sons, Donald and Marvin Kerr, both of Hastings; a daughter, Mrs. Betty Honaker of Sioux City, Iowa; a sister, Mrs. Eloise Jones of Hastings; and nine grandchildren.

Alliance Hospital Gets $872,634 Building Grant

Washington (AP) — The Box Butte General Hospital in Alliance has been selected to receive a Hill-Burton matching-construction grant of $872,634, Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., said Wednesday.

The money will be matched by local funds and will be used to construct a new, 50-bed acute-care facility.

The grant will come from the Public Health Service of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Wishing Well

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
